NEW YORK CLIPPER

THE OLDEST AMERICAN SPORTING AND THEATRICAL JOURNAL.

FRANK QUEEN, Editor and Proprietor. | NEW YORK, SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1875. | VOLUME XXIII.—No. 5. Price Ten Cents.

"TOO MANY BOBS TO THE KITE."

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY E. NORMAN GUNNISON.

The old man sat by the window-sill,
With hair of a silvery white;
Without, it was windy, and drear, and chill,
And the boys were flying a kite.
He watched as the kite came tumbling down
In the midst of an upward flight,
And said, with his face in a gath'ring frown,
"There's too many bobs to the kite,
My boy—too many bobs to the kite."

Do you see that merchant with drooping head,
And a stoop, as he walks the way;
With broken look, and a cat-like tread,
As he shrinks from the glare of day?
He was counted but lately a rising man,
And spoken of as "all right;"
But he marred the wisdom of every plan,
With too many bobs to his kite,
My boy—too many bobs to his kite.

If you run too fast in the race for wealth,
And stumble, or trip a friend—
If you forfeit Friendship, or Love, or Health,
While striving to gain your end—
Just stop a moment—don't go so fast!
Be sure from the first you're right:
You are going up, on a fleeting blast,
And there's too many bobs to your kite,
My boy—too many bobs to your kite.

The bobs are needed—you could not fly
If they did not steady down—
But keep your head, and don't soar too high,
And cavil at Jones and Brown;
For the man forgetting his starting lift
Must find, with a thrill of fright,
That his string is broken, his frame adrift,
And too many bobs to his kite,
My boy—too many bobs to his kite.

But, starting in life, be your steady aim
To work with a purpose true,
And fly your kite for a higher name
Than sought by the common crew;
And you'll find, when winds blow fierce and wild,
And threaten your hopes to blight,
That God and the truth, and wife and child,
Are just the right bobs for your kite,
My boy—just the right bobs for your kite.

AROUND HIS NECK;

OR,

THE DOUBLE MURDER

OF

THE BROKEN LOCK.

WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY JOHANNA BRITCHARD.

CHAPTER XV.

THE FIRST STEP TO REVENGE.

Lady Vanderbuilt's guilty conscience haunted her. This beautiful woman was not naturally bad; she was but weak, yielding and impulsive in love. Her feelings for Richard Harkaway were but the infatuation of a girl. When convinced he did not love her, a detestation of him filled her heart. The fact of her writing to her mother (before she had the interview with him at the fatal rock) to revenge her murder, should she never return, proves that she instinctively dreaded and feared him; that she no longer loved or respected him; and that she had prepared herself for his punishment in case she did not live to gratify her vengeance. It is true, her nature was unforgiving; still she was a true friend to those whom she professed to love, but an implacable enemy when once she hated.

When she opened her eyes on the Irish coast, and saw the waves dashing wildly around her, and felt herself pressed in rapture to the breast of someone, she knew not whom, and heard him whispering words of passionate love, breathlessly she listened, breathless and motionless she felt his kisses upon her lips. She was entranced. And when the dark clouds passed away and the day broke, the voice still whispered!—their eyes met! There was now no resemblance in Thomas Harkaway's face to bring back the image of Richard, his stepbrother. With the wig, vanished the resemblance of the man whose memory she hated to John the valet. She saw only the handsomest man she had ever beheld, and the soft desires of her nature responded to the gentle pressure of his lips. She loved him from that moment, and we will do her justice when we say that if Thomas Harkaway had not so suddenly disappeared, she would now have been Mrs. Edgar Montgomery, and not Lady Ernest Vanderbuilt. But Hester Bertram never expected to see him more. She respected the Earl of Chester, and for her own interest alone she married him. In spite of her resolve to forget the handsome stranger who had saved her life, when the Earl turned from her with inward dislike, while her soul longed to be resting on the bosom of the man, she felt convinced, adored her; and hour after hour, in the absence of her husband, she paced the velvet floors of the gorgeous rooms, ringing her hands in despair, and praying Heaven to send to her him she loved.

"Only to gaze once into his eyes!" she would cry "Only to listen to the music of his voice, only to feel the pressure of his hand!"

He came!

His gaze, the music of his voice, the pressure of his hand, were fatal to this wildly loving woman. And now he was with her evermore to protect her from coming danger, to help her on to her revenge, to adore, to worship, to idolize her.

As the secretary of her husband, how they could blind him who trusted them!. Who would dare to suspect there was any wrong between them? Still she pretended.

"Am I not sinful and deceitful? If I thought I was not the idol of this old man's life, I would be cold and distant towards him. No; I must wait until all is over—until my revenge is begun and ended!"

At this hour in which I write Lady Vanderbuilt was buried on the same soft cushions of that antique chair on which she sat when her unsuspicious husband left her in the care of Edgar Montgomery, as he thought.

Burning with the memory of that hour, the object of her wayward thoughts glided quietly towards her, and flung himself on the cushion at her feet.

"Marianna!"

"Have you succeeded?"

"I have, my love! See, it is here."

Thomas Harkaway placed a small box in the white hand held forth to receive it.

"Your key, darling," he said, as she was about to open it. "Let me explain to you its magic opening and its magic use."

"Where is my lord?" she asked in a low voice, as she smoothed with the gentlest touch the golden locks of her lover's hair.

"In the library, dearest," he breathed, in a cautious voice. "Now, listen, Marianna, to what I say; and, while I speak, listen, for an approaching step."

"Go on. I will not interrupt you, but mark, with greatest attention, all your instructions." And Lady Vanderbuilt sank back in her cushions.

"This is your disguise," he said, taking off the lid. "This is the rouge kings and princes have used to pass their royal wives unknown, and to enter the chamber of their mistresses. See, Marianna."

Producing a small downy puff, he dipped it in the box, and shook it carefully over his face and hair. Lady Vanderbuilt sprang from her low seat, and gazed wondering at the transformation. Thomas Harkaway's golden hair was instantly changed to black. His skin, so white and fair, was changed to a beautiful Spanish brown.

"Wonderful!" she exclaimed.

"And this is more wonderful, Marianna," he replied. Taking a tiny bottle from his pocket, and sprinkling its contents on a white handkerchief, he wiped his face and hair, which returned to its natural purity of color, as if some enchanted wand had blown it away.

"Marianna, I defy Richard Harkaway, or any man or woman beneath the sun, to recognize Hester Bertram or Lady Vanderbuilt when sprinkled with my magic rouge. It will change your soft brown eyes to a flashing black, whose brilliancy shall drive men mad. Your darkened skin, with a touch of carnation upon your cheek, will enhance the pearly whiteness of your teeth. The Spanish language, which falls from your lips like sweetest music, shall fall upon the ears of Richard Harkaway till it drives his guilty soul back to the past, while the mark around his neck shall grow blacker and blacker!"

"And the rope," cried Hester Bertram, interrupting him, "shall grow tighter! tighter! tighter!"

"Be calm, my love," said Thomas Harkaway, startled on beholding the wild, revengeful expression on her white face, "and do not forget yourself, whatever surprise or difficulty you might suddenly find yourself in. Bear always in mind your title, your wealth. The honor of Lord Vanderbuilt and his lady depend alone upon Hester Bertram; therefore, you must be self-possessed, collected. Even should you find yourself standing upon the verge of an abyss, do not tremble—stand firm, resolute, defiant. Should," he added in a mocking sneer, "this Lord Arthur Ferdinand grasp the hundredth part of a suspicion, you are lost!"

"Do not fear me, Edgar," breathed Lady Vanderbuilt in a low voice. "You do not know me. When you are from my side, I am no longer the weak woman you found me. When near you, my love, I become intoxicated with your language, and I hear nothing save the music of your voice, and feel only the joy with which your magic touch inspires me. So fear me not," she went on. "If there lives a love, unquenchable in woman's breast, so does there live a hate. Think you Hester Bertram can forget that night upon the Broken Rock? Never, never!" She stooped nearer to her lover, as she almost hissed in his ears—"Edgar, not a day passed but I go through that terrible scene! His curses damning me because I had been born that his eyes should fall upon me—blasting the beauty with which I had won him, as he struck me down upon the rock, and beat my head 'gainst the blood-stained stones, while he tore wet masses of my hair in handfuls from my head. As I —O my God!—in mercy begged him to spare my life, he cursed me more, and tried to strangle me in my own gore. As my screams rent the air, he caught me by the throat and pitilessly dashed me over the Broken Rock into the dark rushing waters beneath! Do you think I could live—knowing that he lives—and tremble at the thought of revenge?"

"No, Marianna, you will not tremble; but I tremble, my love, to put my hands around his neck and strangle the life out of him for the injury he has done to you."

"Slow and sure must be my revenge, Edgar. Once I gain the consent of Lord Ernest Vanderbuilt, I'll set to work."

"No more of this, love," said Thomas Harkaway. "Let my arms clasp my Marianna before we hear the approaching step."

A deep-drawn sigh was the only answer, as she laid her head upon her lover's breast. Thomas Harkaway, who loved this woman, tightly clasped her to his heart as he murmured:

"Ah, my love, would you had never been another's! Would we had met years ago, ere that fiend had laid his hand upon my beautiful flower and crushed it. O my Marianna! my wife—before God, my wife! before God, my wife!" he cried, and he kissed her again and again with throbbing heart; for this man's love for Hester Bertram was sincere, faithful, tender, adoring. He wildly, passionately, loved her. She was his God, his idolatry. As they clung closer to each other's breast, a step was heard slowly approaching. Lady Vanderbuilt dropped in her low chair. Thomas Harkaway vanished through a secret panel, as the Earl of Chester entered the apartment.

"Where's my Lady Vanderbuilt?" said his lordship, nearing the antique chair.

Tresses of her lovely hair hung over the side of it. He knew she was there; so he glided softly and caught the brown locks, and pulled them with all the arts of a young lover, and she, like an innocent, sprang into his arms.

"Call me your pet, darling," his false wife cried, with all the simplicity of a child. "I don't like you when you call me Lady Vanderbuilt," she pouted.

"I thought my pet loved to hear herself addressed by her title," he replied, as he sat in the antique chair, and drew her upon his knee.

"Yes," she answered softly; "by strangers and servants; but not by you, my lord."

"And do you indeed wish me always to call you pet names, dearest?" he said, smiling tenderly upon her.

"When we are alone, Ernest, I do, because I know you love me better than all the world, and that you would grant me every wish that is in your power, would you not, my lord?"

And she patted his cheeks, and kissed his brow, and fondled him with that seeming purity of touch as though he were her father, not her husband.

"I can refuse you nothing. What is it, Marianna?" he said.

"Who said I wanted anything?"

"I can see it, read it in your bright eyes, pet."

"Well, I do," she cried in a delighted tone; "but I fear you will not grant it me."

"Suppose," his lordship replied, "I relate to you a dream I have just had in the library, before you make your request."

"Is it a good dream," she asked anxiously, "or bad? Take care not to frighten me, my lord."

Lord Ernest laughed.

"I don't think there is anything in it so fearful that it will cause you the least uneasiness. I dreamed, my pet, that I was a king!"

"A king!"

"And you, Marianna, a queen."

"Oh, that's splendid. Go on."

"I was leading you up the steps, to seat you on the throne, with so much pride and joy that my heart was filled with deep emotion. As I tried to gaze upon your love-liness, your brilliancy dazzled my sight, and all became darkness before me. Still it seemed I could see you, but not as before; for you were no longer beautiful; you refused to sit upon the throne—you insisted that I should mount it and be crowned; but you, Marianna, were lying at my feet, stripped of your garments, covered with mire——"

"O stop, my lord, stop!" she exclaimed, "I won't hear more. It is a stupid dream, without meaning."

"It is indeed," he said. "It is not likely I shall ever be a king."

"Nor I a queen without garments," she laughed. "So, please you, listen to my request."

"I am dumb, birdie. Go on," he said pleasantly.

"Do you not think, my lord, my skin is too transparently white for a Spanish lady?"

"What a strange question!" laughed the Earl. "It certainly is the most snow-like of all the Spanish beauties I ever saw."

"And I don't like it."

"Why, my pet?" said the old lord.

"Because the Spanish belles pride themselves on their dark olive complexion, tinted with the bloom of the carnation."

"Aye, that is true. So you want to be a brunette, eh?"

"You know, my lord," she continued, "I have been reared in the wild Western woods of America. Had it not been for my parents' education, I should have been a poor, ignorant girl, of whom you would have blushed to say, 'This is my wife.'"

"Nay, my darling, I should never have been ashamed of you," said Lord Vanderbuilt earnestly.

"Suppose, my lord, if by using a simple dye I stamp myself before the eyes of the world the true daughter of a Spanish nobleman, will it in this ruse save me from the slightest suspicion of my origin, and save you, Ernest, many painful and unanswerable questions that in an unguarded moment may thoughtlessly be put to you?"

"True, Marianna. Still you are the daughter of a Spanish nobleman."

"Aye," she replied. "But on inquiry the curious would discover that Velasques Bernardo was under punishment of death, and that, through your father's intercession only, was banished—his title and estates confiscated, and his name disgraced. I was born in the land of America, and can claim no title—not even the name of Bernardo. For your own sake, my kind lord and husband, I beg you to grant my request, which, you will find, will be for your good and mine, as well as for that of the future heir. Nay," she continued, "don't speak until you have seen my experiment."

To his lordship's astonishment, she produced the little box with the puff. She shook the latter over her face and hair. Delighted at the success she felt she was gaining as he gazed in wonder at her transformation, she danced with joy before him—her hazel eyes black and brilliant, her hair now the color of the raven, her alabaster skin a beautiful olive, tinted by carnation pink—a transformation that enhanced her glorious beauty a thousandfold.

"You are right, Marianna," the excited lord exclaimed, entirely bewildered at her appearance. "Who dare question you, or men, when once their gaze has met the dazzling brilliancy of yours?"

"Who dares?" she cried. "And when we are alone, see—behold my magic wand! Presto, vanish!"

She waved the handkerchief that Thomas Harkaway had held, and shook it lightly above her head. The magic rouge faded instantly away, and she stood before her husband transformed back again to her own lovely self.

"Where in the world did my birdie procure such a secret?" asked the Earl, straining her to his breast.

"You will never betray it?" she said, in a most cautious manner. "My mother gave it me, and vowed to me that my great wealth lay in the fact that the mistresses of kings and princes had used it. She bade me, when my lover grew cold, to use the rouge and dance before him, as I did before you, my lord, and I should win him back again."

"And did you?" said the Earl in a jealous tone.

"I never had a sweetheart but you, my lord," she said shyly, hiding her blushing face in the old lord's breast, as innocently as a dove.

"I believe you, my own precious wife," he said proudly, "and I give you my full consent to use it at your pleasure. But when with your husband you must say presto, vanish!"

"Never fear, my lord. In your presence, I am at your command. And now," she said, changing the subject, "when am I to receive a visit from Lady Arthur Ferdinand?"

"I have just received an answer to my letter," he replied, handing her the note. She hesitated, and, waving it off, said carelessly.

"No, my lord; you read it."

Little did the Earl of Chester dream of the loathing with which his young wife prepared herself to listen to his favorite's letter. Seating himself upon an ottoman at his lady's feet, he pressed open the folds of Violet's letter and commenced to read as follows:

"DEAR FRIEND OF MY DEPARTED GUARDIAN.—The pleasure I felt on receiving your letter was more than my simple words can express. Your condolence with me in my loss in the death of my more than father was truly appreciated. My health was the cause of your intended visit to London with your Spanish bride. You do not tell me how long you have been married. It is three months and two weeks since your little Violet became a bride. Do you wonder if I am as happy as when my Guardy was alive? Although I shall ever mourn his loss, let me tell you I am her happy. I find myself the worshipped idol of my first love.

"Lady Vanderbuilt's face darkened.

"I live in such a dream, I can scarcely believe I am an inhabitant of the earth, for my life is a paradise of bliss—a heaven!

"The listener's brow grew darker.

"I think if aught should happen to me, it would be a comfort to my beloved; for to tells me daily, hourly, I am his very existence, his life, his soul ——

"It was well Lord Ernest did not look at his wife, or he would have trembled indeed.

"—his first and only love. The imagination of my spirits is heart it realized to the brim, and I long for you to come, my lord, and see the treasure of my life!

A low laugh burst from Lady Vanderbuilt's lips! But it passed unnoticed by the reader, as he earnestly continued, so interested was he in this girl friend's epistle:

"Arthur, my husband, is anxious that we should meet. He thinks the companionship of yourself and wife would be a delight and a comfort to us in our seclusion; for we shall not receive guests until a year has passed over the grave of his uncle, my guardian. He has heard me speak so much of you, and, knowing that you were once the betrothed of his dead mother and the steadfast friend of his uncle, he will look upon a visit from you and your fair bride with profound gratitude. Will you, dear Lord Vanderbuilt, present our sincerest respects to your lady, and beg that she will consent to our invitation? I feel in my heart that she is good and beautiful, or she would not have borne the title of Lady Vanderbuilt. I am prepared to receive her with the tenderest of welcomes, for I love her already. I shall wait with anxiety until I hear from you, and I beg of your lady to address me."

"I shall. I shall!" Lady Vanderbuilt exclaimed. "I shall not neglect it a moment, my lord." She hastened to the bell, and pressed the golden knob, which was answered instantly by the lackey.

"Writing-materials," she said abruptly, turning from his gaze.

"What can the matter be with my lady?" thought the lackey. "Her face is as pale as death, and what a peculiar look is in it!"

"Here is the letter, my love," said his lordship, placing it on the table, and, glancing at his gold watch, inlaid with precious stones, he begged his wife to excuse his absence for a while, as he wished to speak a few words to his secretary. Observing that her head was turned from him, he would not disturb her, believing she was in deep meditation over the letter she was about to write; so he threw unseen kisses at her and left the room.

Thomas Harkaway glided to her side:

"Marianna, have you succeeded?"

"I have," she replied firmly, stamping the paper before her.

"What's this?" he asked, pointing to the open letter. "Lady Arthur Ferdinand's letter."

"Ah!" he exclaimed anxiously; "and your reply to this?"

She answered darkly, tearing it to pieces:

"Is the first step to my revenge!"

CHAPTER XVI.

"AROUND HIS NECK."

As Lord Arthur Ferdinand was leisurely walking around his grounds, admiring his beautiful flowerbeds, his conservatories, his grand statuary, which stood at every turning, he observed his young wife running towards him in great delight, waving above her head a letter. Catching her in his arms, as he would a romping girl, he tried in vain to understand the meaning of her breathless words, as she endeavored to express herself.

"She's coming! He's coming! They are all coming!" broke from the burst of her sweet lips.

"She! Whom?" exclaimed Lord Arthur. "Your dressmaker, or milliner?"

"No, you naughty boy," she said, laughing, and kissing the letter. "It is my Guardy's dearest friend, and his wife. They are coming, Arthur. Lord and Lady Vanderbuilt may be expected at any moment. Oh, it is such a loving letter!" she rattled on. "His Spanish wife wrote to me herself. She calls me 'dear little angel.' She says her lord has so praised me that she feels, as I do, that we love each other already, and she longs for this year to pass, that we may mingle together in the world of fashion. And she says I am only twenty years of age, and that her heart is full of brightness, and the contrast between our beauty will crown us as the belles of England. I am so happy, and I do long to see her. She shall be my sister, and Lord Vanderbuilt shall be to you a friend and brother."

"Surely," said Lord Arthur, "you would not have me own an old man of sixty as my brother?"

"It's not your fault—he is not your father," she said, laughing warily at her joke.

"Why, Violet, this excitement has brought back the roses to your fair cheeks. In the expectation of their visit, dismiss you wild, so much joy and freshness, what will the reality bring you?"

"Friends," she said, looking at him seriously and calmly. "The wife of Ernest Vanderbuilt, the Earl of Chester, must be an honorable lady, of high birth—so, she must be good and pure."

"My darling," Lord Ferdinand answered quickly, "do you think I doubt it?"

"No," she said; "I thought you spoke satirically."

"Perhaps I did," he replied. "I was not aware I exposed myself to you. I did not intend to be satirical. I was only jealous, love."

"Jealous of me!" She burst into a merry laugh. "Of whom?" she asked.

"Of Lady Vanderbuilt. I imagined I could see you—Two souls with but a single thought—two hearts that beat as one."

Again Violet's merry laugh rang through the air.

"I should have been surprised, my lord, if you had been jealous of the Earl of Chester. But of a woman! As if I could love any of the female sex better than my husband!" And, springing into his arms, she hugged and kissed him like a child.

"You will promise, Violet," said her husband, "never to divulge the story of the pistol-shot wound to this lady when she arrives, or to her husband, or to any living being? Promise——"

"Certainly, if you wish it; but I really cannot see any harm in it."

"It is my wish, Violet," firmly putting her away from him. "You are my wife, and it is your place to obey your husband."

"I shall obey you, my lord—not because it is my duty, but for the love I bear you." And, kissing his hand, she ran joyously away.

"This is a new phase in my young wife's character," thought his lordship, repeating her last words. "I shall obey you, my lord—not because it is my duty, but for the love I bear you. That is to say, she will obey no command."

Lord Arthur Ferdinand thoughtfully and slowly wended his way back to the mansion.

An elegant barouche, with six yellow ponies, dashed through the streets of London towards the locality of Lord Arthur Ferdinand's mansion. Leaning back on the soft cushions was an old and noble-looking gentleman, and by his side sat a young and beautiful woman, whose clear, olive complexion, softened with the tint of a delicate rose upon her cheek, and the laughing, sparkling and brilliant eyes, attracted the passers-by, as they caught a glance of their glorious light, while the carriage flew onward and left them to their disappointment, gazing with admiration, and wondering who the handsome lady was in the grand equipage.

On flew the barouche, through St. James' Park, and many a noble, as they drove by, bowed low to the aristocratic old gentleman, their eyes dazzled by the beauty of the woman who sat beside him. And ere that night was passed, reports were being sent to lords, dukes and princes of the wonderful beauty of Lord Vanderbuilt's Spanish bride.

As the six yellow ponies neared Ferdinand's mansion, Lady Vanderbuilt's eyes shone brighter, the rose upon her cheek deepened, and her pearly teeth seemed whiter as she asked:

"Is your secretary to meet us here, my lord?"

"Why, did I not tell you, Marianna, he had gone to South Wales, to remain there with a friend until our return to Chester?"

"No, my lord; you did not inform me."

"I beg your pardon. It was unintentional."

"I supposed so, my lord. Have you anyone with you to take his place?"

"I did not think it worth while. Our stay here will be very short."

"Did you discharge your valet, my lord, as I desired?"

"I did; though his surprise at my accusation was really laughable. He swore it was a plot against him, invented by the footman, who, he said, was jealous of him."

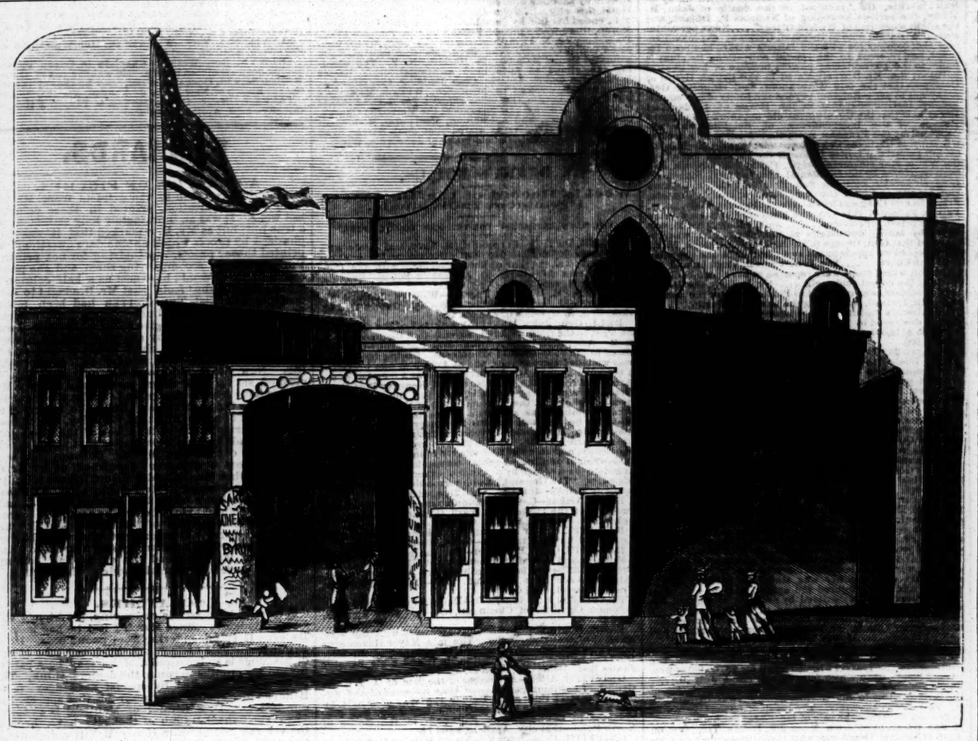
"It is always the way with servants and low people—they will tell you a falsehood to your face. My lord, I detested that man. I hope the new valet will stand my inspection?"

"You will be able to judge for yourself, dearest. He rides behind us."

The barouche, with its six yellow ponies, stopped in front of the majestic gate of Ferdinand mansion.

"Arrived!" exclaimed the Earl of Chester.

Lady Vanderbuilt's heart beat loud and fast. Violet Ferdinand and her husband stood upon the balcony ready to welcome them.



THEATRES AND HALLS OF AMERICA.
No. 24.—Sargent's Athenæum, Columbus, O.

"I want no introduction, my lord; for this is your Violet, I am sure."

Lady Vanderbuilt leaped from the barouche, and caught Lady Ferdinand to her breast and kissed her with all seeming devotion.

"And this is my husband, Lord Arthur Ferdinand," Lady Violet said excitedly, turning towards him, and, leaving them together, she rushed into the arms of Lord Vanderbuilt and burst into tears.

"My little wife is affected on seeing the dear friend of her beloved guardian," said Lord Arthur, bowing low, and offering Lady Vanderbuilt a white and trembling hand, which she appeared not to notice. Still, as she bowed and conversed, her sparkling orbs flashed upon his pale face, which grew paler and paler at each word she spoke. His gaze seemed to be riveted upon her, as if her wonderful beauty had already fascinated him, or as if some irresistible power over which he had no control chained him to the spot. As he listened to the music of her voice, a note struck a familiar chord in his quiet heart, and it filled him with terror, and the hot blood rushed to his brain. It was a note that he had heard before.

"But where, when, and how?" he inwardly cried.

The answer came at last:

"Murderer!" whispered his skeleton. "Around your neck! around your neck! Ha, ha, ha!"

Lord Ferdinand sank upon a lounge, and buried his face in the cushions, just as his wife and the Earl joined them.

"I believe my lord is ill," said Lady Vanderbuilt in a frightened voice.

"Ill!" exclaimed the young wife. "Impossible! Arthur, what is the matter?"

The Earl of Chester raised him gently up from his leaning posture.

"A sudden pain—that is all, my friends," said Lord Arthur—"struck through my brain and bewildered my senses."

"Neuralgia!" exclaimed Lady Vanderbuilt decidedly and looking earnestly from one to the other, as much as to say: "Is it not terrible?"

"Suppose you lean upon my arm, my lord, and we'll take a stroll in the garden," said the Earl, smiling cheerfully, and assisting him.

"With pleasure," his lordship replied; "nor do I need your assistance. I am very much better, I assure you." He bowed to the ladies with a sickly smile, as he said: "We will leave you to talk over the fashions."

"Oh, I am so grieved, Lady Vanderbuilt, that such an accident should occur on our first meeting. I—I am afraid it's an ill omen," stammered Lady Ferdinand.

A strange yet melodious laugh rang through the apartment.

"An ill omen—an attack of neuralgia? O you little angel! how innocent you are!" And Lady Vanderbuilt caught the unsuspicious Violet to her bosom, and pressed her lips upon her lips, as she thought: "Would that every kiss dropped poison between your lips."

"You are so beautiful, so fascinating, Lady Vanderbuilt, that my sight grows dim as I gaze upon you," said the innocent wife. "And your hair—what an abundance! Oh, it is so magnificent. See, I can almost cover myself with it."

And as Lady Ferdinand wrapped the wavy masses about her neck and shoulders, she sighed deeply.

"Ah, what would I not give to be as handsome as you are! It seems to me, dear lady," she added simply, "you are going to dazzle all men mad with the strange magic of your brilliant glance. I never dreamed there dwelled such a creature on earth, and I feel very homely as I look upon you."

"O you foolish girl!" laughed Lady Vanderbuilt. "You flatter me, for I am sure there never was a more lovely blonde than you, sweet Violet. So long as your husband worships you and deems you beautiful, what more do you wish?"

"Nothing, nothing!" she exclaimed, brightening up suddenly. "His love is all the world to me, and mine to him!" Drawing closer to Lady Vanderbuilt, she asked, in a whisper: "Do you love your husband?"

Lady Vanderbuilt whispered back:

"I never loved in my life; but I respect the noble Earl of Chester."

"Oh, I am sorry," said Lady Ferdinand.

"Wherefore?" asked her companion.

"Because you cannot be happy."

"You are mistaken, Violet; I am the happiest woman upon the earth, for my husband adores me."

"Some day, might you not meet one you love, and then desire to break the chain which binds you?" asked Lady Ferdinand.

"Never!" said Lady Vanderbuilt, for in a few months there will be a dearer and stronger chain to bind us."

She looked intently upon the blushing face of the listener, who hung down her head at this last remark. Lady Vanderbuilt understood the blushing, but she wanted to be sure, and so she played her cards well.

As modest as a young maiden, Violet hid her face in Lady Vanderbuilt's lap.

"Is it so, Violet?"

Lady Ferdinand peeped slyly and nodded yes three or four times, and then sprang to the piano, and played and sang a lively air. It was well she did, for her guest sat silent, the terrible truth glaring before her—the two lives of a murderer, each with the offspring of a guilty parent breathing in her bosom.

"Was I not," thought Lady Vanderbuilt, "as innocent and pure as the young Violet, when he knelt at her feet? Yes; I was, I was. And whatever I am now—a sinful, guilty woman—he made me. Is there any revenge too great for this impostor? No!" she cried, "nothing, nothing! Oh, how I hate her," she hissed—"almost as deadly as I do him! Little does she dream that she sleeps upon the blood-stained heart of a murderer. Little does she think these brilliant eyes of mine which dazzle her sight are but the poison, the vengeance my soul throws upon her. No! I'll not stop in my revenge until I have driven her mad and broken his heart—until I have dragged him down from his high estate and cast him a wanderer upon the earth, with his hair white with the sufferings of his nightly anguish and despair. For ever and ever your skeleton shall whisper in your ears 'Murderer! Murderer!' Forever and ever shall you hear the dying shriek of Hester Bertram! And in your dreams and in your daily visions your skeleton shall laugh in mockery, pointing at the black mark around your neck!"

Lady Ferdinand's fingers flew over the instrument. She was quite ignorant of her guest's thoughts.

"I'll sing you a song," suddenly broke from the lips of her visitor, who stood by her side smiling.

"Oh, I shall be delighted," cried the young mistress of Ferdinand, placing her upon the music-stool. "It's a Spanish air," said Lady Vanderbuilt.

"Oh, I cannot understand Spanish."

"Then I'll sing it you in French."

"Oh, that will do. I love to hear French airs," replied Lady Violet impatiently.

Lady Vanderbuilt commenced the song, and the young hostess stood enraptured, not seeing the two gentlemen, who had entered and stood listening. The singer's melodious voice thrilled all present. One moment her notes were soft and low, like the rippling of a Summer-wave; then wild, like the mad, roaring sea, as it dashes against the rocks; and she ended her song with strains of trills, which struck upon the ear like birds whistling for their mates. It was the strangest, maddest, wildest, sweetest air that ever had been sung in Ferdinand's mansion.

At the conclusion, Lord Ferdinand, entirely recovered from his indisposition, stood wrapped in silence by her side. The Earl of Chester had never before heard his wife sing this beautiful but wild and mysterious air, and he too, standing by the side of his departed friend's adopted daughter, was charmed and thrilled by the beauty and genius of his wife.

"Lady Vanderbuilt, it would be impossible for me to find language in which I could express to you the beauty of your song. All I can say is, I never heard anything to equal it, either in private or in public. Allow me."

And Lord Arthur Ferdinand offered his hand to assist her off the stool. But Lady Vanderbuilt darted a glance upon him, and said softly:

"Flatterer!"

Waving off his proffered hand, she wheeled round to the Earl and Lady Ferdinand. A deep blush spread over the villain's face as Lady Vanderbuilt threw her fascinating glance upon him, and, leaving the trio to converse, he retired to the window to meditate.

"This creature is bewitching. The fiend of her wondrous eyes acts like magic to my brain; a better man than I could not resist her charms. What fiend possessed me a while ago? It was all imagination—nervousness on receiving strangers. I must overcome it. I will! Why, it was not her voice that startled me—it was only fancy. Because one tone she spoke reminded hers—as if voices never resembled one another. Fool! But this Lady Vanderbuilt, this Spanish beauty, whose spell is over me ——"

"Arthur!"

And Ferdinand's wife stood by his side.

"How you frightened me," said her husband, starting; "I was absent. What do you want?"

"Why, my lord, I did not intend to surprise you. You must have been in a deep study. Has Lady Vanderbuilt wove her magic spell over you?"

The little lady innocently hit home. Lord Ferdinand laughed as he thought: "This little girl-wife of mine is wiser than I imagined."

"I fear, my darling," he said, "it is the magic of your sweet spell that is over me, for I was meditating as to what elegant material I should purchase for you to-morrow. I am getting weary of seeing you dressed in black. Would you not admire the color of your sweet name, my Violet?"

"Oh, yes. You are so good, Arthur."

Lord Ferdinand put his arm around her as he said:

"Come, we will join our guests."

"Do you not think she is the most fascinating beauty you ever saw, Arthur?" asked his wife.

"I think you are the most fascinating little witch I ever saw, sweet wife."

And he kissed her brow, and, changing the subject, they advanced towards their visitors.

On the second night after the arrival of Lord and Lady Vanderbuilt at Ferdinand mansion, when all was still, and every one supposed to be slumbering, Hester Bertram, wrapped in a loose robe of white lace, lay upon her soft couch—alone, and by appearances impatiently waiting for somebody.

She was no longer the brilliant brunette, but the pale yet beautiful Hester Bertram. Her hair was no longer black, but golden. Her satin slippers, which almost touched her feet, were wound around her finely moulded form, and her wild and sparkling eyes were now as soft and sweet as a young gazelle's.

"Why don't he come?" she murmured. "My love! my love!"

The words had hardly escaped her lips when she sprang to the floor, and, as gently as possible, turned the key in the door and opened it. His lordship's new valet appeared and entered the apartment, while Lady Vanderbuilt closed and locked the door cautiously. Instantly the disguise was thrown aside, and Thomas Harkaway clasped her to his bosom idolatrously.

"O!" she cried, "why have you kept me waiting? I have so much to tell you, Edgar."

"It was the old lord's fault," he replied. "I thought he never would retire. I have but a few moments to remain with you, my Marianna. My—my—do not droop," he continued, as she gazed upon her lover with reproachful eyes, from which shone inviting tenderness. "All I do is for your sake, sweet one. I live for you, dearest. Was it not I who tempted you from your noble husband? How, then, can I be too careful to guard you love from even the shadow of suspicion. O Marianna! wife of Heaven's law, will you always love me thus?"

"O Edgar!" she answered, "will you love me, when I tell you that I deceived my lord when I married him? He never knew I had been a wife—he believed my word. I—I ——" Lady Vanderbuilt hesitated.

"You what, love? Go on."

"Deceived him still further."

"With our love, Marianna?"

"Further than that!"

"My blood turns cold, Marianna!"

"The expectant heir of the Earl of Chester is not his child, but the lord of Ferdinand's, the fiend of all fiends, Richard Harkaway!"

"Merciful Heaven!" exclaimed Thomas Harkaway. "What will you do? You will never allow his offspring to be loved and cherished by the noble Lord Vanderbuilt as his future heir?"

"Never, never!" answered Lady Vanderbuilt. "Do you think I could have the feeling of a mother for Richard Harkaway's child, or for any child who bore his detested name?"

Thomas Harkaway started and turned pale.

"The child is innocent of the father's crime, Marianna, and all the men who bear the name of Harkaway are not guilty of his sins. Be just in your revenge; I would not hate his child."

"Edgar, you are too good for a revengeful heart like mine; but rest assured that I'll never harm it, nor allow another to do so, if you will help me in this affair."

"I will help you, dearest. What do you intend to do with the child when it is born?"

"Wait, and you shall see."

"How have you succeeded with this villain and impostor?"

"Why," she laughed, "he is already caught in the trap. I intend to drag him down to my feet. I'll not rest until I have driven him to madness—until he swears he never loved but Lady Vanderbuilt, and that his young wife's heart is breaking at his neglect and broken vows. Until then I'll bury every tone that shall remind him of his crime. Then I'll laugh at him in mockery. Wait patiently, Edgar, and you shall see how slow, yet how sure, I will carry out my revenge."

"But be not too hard on his young wife. She is innocent, Marianna," said her lover persuasively.

"Leave me to follow the dictates of my own purpose, dear one; and do not forget," she added darkly, "that I too was once as innocent as this Violet, before he set eyes upon me."

Hours passed away. Plots for the carrying-out of Hester Bertram's vengeance were schemed. The day was nearly broke ere the secret lovers parted.

TO BE CONTINUED.

COLUMBIA—QUEEN!

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

Ye may sing of Italia's beauteous skies,
And the vine-clad hills of France,
Of Castilian maids with their sparkling eyes,
Whose dearest love is the dance.

Ye may sing as sweet of the Rhine's fair vales,
And its cragged cliffs so high;
Of their titled lords who, with pipes and ales,
Drink deep of philosophy.

Ye may sing, likewise, of the Switzer's land,
Of his Alpine hills and lakes,
Where the soul is brave, the heart is true, and
As pure as his own snow-flakes.

Ye may sing to me of the Czar's domain,
And his power so absolute
That his flat covers a lord with chains
And makes man almost a brute.

Ye may sing of the Sultan's golden horn,
Of minarets, towers and domes,
Of maidens fair, but to servitude born,
Of harems in lieu of homes.

Ye may sing of Egypt's glories bright,
Her pyramids and her Sphinx,
Of her ancient lore and her former might,
Amazing man as he thinks.

Ye may sing of Scotia's glorious realms,
Her mountains, lakes and air,
Of the beauty that every sense o'erwhelms,
And that greets one everywhere:

Of her Wallace, her Bruce, her Burns and Scott,
Her Rhoderick and Fitz-James;
Of the mem'ries clustering in ev'ry spot
Of most illustrious names.

Ye may sing of the Emerald Isle so fair,
Its beautiful lakes and scenes,
Of its rich old brogue and its whiskey rare,
Its moors and evergreens.

Ye may sing of Old Albion's princely land,
Philosophers, poets and kings;
Of the royal wealth seen on ev'ry hand
In all sublunary things:

Of the grand historic display she makes
In every sphere of art;
Of the pow'r she wields and the hold she takes
In ev'ry generous heart:

Of the lessons she's taught to all mankind
In the arts of war and peace;
Of her bright career, which ages will find
On a sure and broad increase.

But of all the lands ye can sing to me,
However happy or blest,
There's a fairer spot that my eye can see,
Far dearer than all the rest.

'Tis the land I knew in my boyhood days,
When my heart was fresh and young;
'Tis the land I'd crown with immortal lays,
Had I only the poet's tongue.

America, home of the brave and free,
Of thee I rev'rently sing!
Earth's wearied and worn e'er finding in thee
A prophet, a priest and king.

A glorious mission God gave thee in charge—
A destiny fair and bright—
The bound'ries of Truth to ever enlarge,
And transform error to light!

Asylum of all the oppress'd of earth,
Thy arms open wide to receive
The king that's dethroned, the lowest of birth,
And ev'ry sorrow relieve.

All climates and soils of earth we behold,
All types of beauty and race,
From basest of metals to purest of gold,
Spread out on thy broad surface.

All species of fruits and flowers and trees,
In endless variety;
All products of lands, of rivers and seas,
To perfect society.

All languages spoken under the sun,
All sciences and all arts;
All deeds of valor that have ever been done
Or inspired by human hearts.

Speed on in thy course, forever advance,
Thy watchword "Excelsior" still,
Till Truth shall illumine thy broad expanse
In valley, 'cross plain, o'er hill.

No foeman shall daunt, no tyrant oppose
Thy march to enduring fame,
Till the bravest warrior stays his

NEW YORK CLIPPER.

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1875.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ Letters seeking information replied to only through this channel, and answered by mail.

C. S., Philadelphia.—1. Such has been our decision for seventeen years, and we have not rendered any other, upon that point, in twenty-three. 2. One of those two makes no pretense as an authority upon cards, and we have known the other to give it as its opinion that an assisted player ought not to go alone, and leave to decide that even a player who is ordered so may pass alone. You counted a muddle when you invited a decision from three separate quarters. Fortunately, the case is one that can be decided in only two ways, else there might have been three different decisions.

3. Our reason, aside from the seniority of THE CLIPPER and its unvarying consistency, is that in nine cases out of ten an "assistance" is a virtual exposure of a player's hand. Hence good players either bar "assistance" altogether, or else bar a lone hand when a partner assists.

J. C.—We have since our past issue learned the following additional particulars concerning W. K. Linyard. After closing at the Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, Mo., he retired from the stage for one year, residing in Brownsville, Tenn. He then joined Katie Putnam's Comedy Company in Memphis, and traveled with them some months. On reaching St. Louis he was engaged at Deagle's Varieties for one year as low comedian, and then returned to Brownsville, where he remained until Dec. 12, 1874, when he rejoined the Katie Putnam Company, with which he is now performing.

G. W. S., Chester.—1. We cannot spare the space to name all the duties. He should have a good knowledge of hotels, routes of travel, and an extended acquaintance with newspaper people. There are many other details, which vary widely according to the style of show he is traveling with. 2. Salary would depend entirely upon his previous experience, reputation, etc. It would range from $20 per week and expenses to $100.

J. S. C.—G. L. Fox and his Combination Pantomimic Company, consisting of C. K. Fox, Pantaloon; Master Timothy, Harlequin; Miss Kate Pennoyer, Columbine; and a ballet troupe under the direction of Mons. Grossi, opened the Summer season at Barnum's New American Museum, on Broadway above Spring street, July 9, 1866, performing in "Jack and Gill." They closed their season Sept. 1.

CLIPPER'S FRIEND, Johnstown.—1. He was born at Birmingham, Eng., in 1841. 2. Young George Holden was born at Walsall, Eng., in 1851. He stands 5ft. 3in. in height, and fought at 112lbs. He beat Charley Lynch and Mick Moran, was beaten by Peter Morris and J. Lead, and fought a draw with Morris.

R. B., New Orleans.—1. You were justified in playing to win the pot. No man can be required to throw his money away. Had the game been ordinary cut-throat euchre for "beverages," you would have been bound to have played euchre. James; but "first man out" and "last man stuck" are different games. 2. No answers by mail.

F. H. W., Galveston.—The Lees played the Mutuals when the latter visited New Orleans, and also the Red Stockings of Cincinnati and the White Stockings of Chicago; but we do not remember the score. The Lees were amateurs, and one of their members is now in State.

BROOKLYN.—The cards being played 2, 6, 10 and 5, and A (with a 4 in his hand) calling "a go," it is optional with B (with a 3 in his hand) to take one for the "go," or make a day in 4, and then take three for the run, which latter B will probably do.

F. B. H., Fillsburg.—Several persons advertise to do so, but we cannot undertake to recommend any of them. Stammering is generally but a habit, and in many cases persons can cure themselves by reading aloud slowly and distinctly.

G. W. L., Detroit.—Nothing to the contrary having been mentioned, the bet must be assumed to comprehend only skill wager. But if no objection to the umpire, and he had accomplished the feat in a three-mile current, then you lose, having taken a chance to win.

CONSTANT READER, Toledo.—1. You are not too old. The number of lessons required would depend entirely upon your quickness for learning. 3. Get some of the performers who play in your town to give you lessons, and let the price be a matter of private agreement.

HARRY LYNWOOD, Jeffersonville.—1. John C. Heenan was beaten by John Morrissey and Tom King. 2 William Perkins walked a mile in 8m. 25sec., in England, while in the best time on record. 3. Weston did not walk a mile in seven minutes.

HYDE & BEHMAN, Orleans.—1. There is no such work. 2. Prepared chalk or a solution of bismuth in rosewater. Rub it on the face and neck until the desired degree of whiteness is obtained, and then paint the eyebrows with India ink, and the lips with Carmillion.

E. M., Brooklyn.—1. No. You must furnish parts, for each member of the orchestra, of all your songs, and a full score for the leader. 2. Salary would depend upon the singer's ability and reputation. From $20 to $100 per week. 3. It is in the present issue.

WYMAN.—Your telegram was not delivered at the office until 7 o'clock in the afternoon, after everybody had left; and as you were traveling, we concluded that an answer sent the day following would not reach you. Moreover we did not have your permanent address hereabouts.

F. L., Abingdon.—1. Fenton in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" is as near as you can come to it. 2. The Prince of Wales in "Henry IV., Part II." 3. Benvolle in "Romeo and Juliet." 4. Buckingham in "Richard III." 5. Lorenzo in "The Merchant of Venice."

J. H. CARLETON, Watertown.—A correspondent intimates that you are a contributor from Watertown. Only I would save you time if you would send along the books, instead of the manuscript.

THE Rice circus.—Corrigan and Rickey made their first appearance in this city at the Globe Theatre, and not the Theatre Comique, although they had been underlined to appear at the latter place.

JENNIE H., Troy.—1. Cannot say when and where born, but she made her debut on the stage at the Fifth-avenue Theatre, in this city, Sept. 3, 1872, acting Mabel Wycherly in "Diamonds." 2. Married.

UNION, Urbana.—Mutual Club address, W. H. Cammeyer, Union Grounds, Brooklyn; Athletic, A. G. Wright, Phila. Sunday Mercury; Chicago, Jas. Wood, Chicago Baseball Club.

DR. MACK, Canada.—See advertisements on our fifth page. Cannot say where you can purchase second-hand lay-tools, and the price of new ones varies according to quality.

A. H. TEN B., Parker City.—There are two persons advertising in THE CLIPPER to supply what you want. Write to either of them, and they will give you all the information.

W. S. R., Staunton.—The non-dealer can play his king before the ace, and if he calls before the ace is played, the dealer covers it. The dealer must declare it before he plays, otherwise he cannot score it. This is the only penalty.

THE—The organization of the Lees to provide dramatic representations on the same principle that it can meet to play parlor croquet or dominoes, or anything else in a sociable manner. Don't split hairs. It is subversive of harmony.

CLIPPER CLUB, Baltimore.—The ball is the ball, transfer the privilege of going blind to the player next him. It is sometimes done, but only by virtue of a general agreement among the players.

BALDWIN, Chicago.—1. It depends upon how high you want to go, and how long you desire to stay up. 2. Balloons are made to order, and under the supervision of practical aeronauts.

W. H. W., Fort McPherson.—1. The area of Fairmount Park is 2,991 acres; that of Central Park, 937.68-100ths, according to Department of Public Parks. Other authorities make it 862.70-100ths.

STRAIGHT-FLUSH, Phila.—The English work should contain neither that nor faro; but, not having a copy, we cannot say positively. It would be difficult to find such a work now. Better draw.

S. K., Chillicothe.—A and B are out, even though they did not know the ball was in the right-hand box. In neglecting to so claim, they simply ran the risk of C and D's going out by tricks.

J. H. S., Duluth.—1. Frank Parker defeated Rudolphe in Buffalo, Jan. 11, 1871. Buy a CLIPPER ALMANAC for fifteen cents. 2. John T. Hoffman's majority over Griswold was 27,946. 3. The lady was married Oct. 15, 1868.

C. H. C., Cincinnatis, after the closing of the boisterous season of 1869, lost their first match in Brooklyn in June, 1870, the Atlantics beating them 11 to 8 in a game of eleven innings. 2. Have no such record.

ISAAC.—Your shot is a perfect right to do so. The work you name, which does not affect our decision, was not written by the lady named, and was never seen by her until after it had been forwarded to this office.

GUILDRIVER, St. Louis.—1. In this city. 2. He acts as advance agent for traveling companies. 3. In this city.

E. P., Brooklyn.—We are not certain as to his present whereabouts. Address a letter to him in care of this office, and it will reach him.

WYMAN.—Your telegram was not delivered at the office until 7 o'clock in the afternoon, after everybody had left; and as you were traveling, we concluded that an answer sent the day following would not reach you. Moreover we did not have your permanent address hereabouts.

F. L., Abingdon.—1. Fenton in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" is as near as you can come to it. 2. The Prince of Wales in "Henry IV., Part II." 3. Benvolle in "Romeo and Juliet." 4. Buckingham in "Richard III." 5. Lorenzo in "The Merchant of Venice."

J. H. CARLETON, Watertown.—A correspondent intimates that you are a contributor from Watertown. Only I would save you time if you would send along the books, instead of the manuscript.

THE Rice circus.—Corrigan and Rickey made their first appearance in this city at the Globe Theatre, and not the Theatre Comique, although they had been underlined to appear at the latter place.

JENNIE H., Troy.—1. Cannot say when and where born, but she made her debut on the stage at the Fifth-avenue Theatre, in this city, Sept. 3, 1872, acting Mabel Wycherly in "Diamonds." 2. Married.

UNION, Urbana.—Mutual Club address, W. H. Cammeyer, Union Grounds, Brooklyn; Athletic, A. G. Wright, Phila. Sunday Mercury; Chicago, Jas. Wood, Chicago Baseball Club.

DR. MACK, Canada.—See advertisements on our fifth page. Cannot say where you can purchase second-hand lay-tools, and the price of new ones varies according to quality.

A. H. TEN B., Parker City.—There are two persons advertising in THE CLIPPER to supply what you want. Write to either of them, and they will give you all the information.

W. S. R., Staunton.—The non-dealer can play his king before the ace, and if he calls before the ace is played, the dealer covers it. The dealer must declare it before he plays, otherwise he cannot score it. This is the only penalty.

THE—The organization of the Lees to provide dramatic representations on the same principle that it can meet to play parlor croquet or dominoes, or anything else in a sociable manner. Don't split hairs. It is subversive of harmony.

CLIPPER CLUB, Baltimore.—The ball is the ball, transfer the privilege of going blind to the player next him. It is sometimes done, but only by virtue of a general agreement among the players.

BALDWIN, Chicago.—1. It depends upon how high you want to go, and how long you desire to stay up. 2. Balloons are made to order, and under the supervision of practical aeronauts.

W. H. W., Fort McPherson.—1. The area of Fairmount Park is 2,991 acres; that of Central Park, 937.68-100ths, according to Department of Public Parks. Other authorities make it 862.70-100ths.

STRAIGHT-FLUSH, Phila.—The English work should contain neither that nor faro; but, not having a copy, we cannot say positively. It would be difficult to find such a work now. Better draw.

S. K., Chillicothe.—A and B are out, even though they did not know the ball was in the right-hand box. In neglecting to so claim, they simply ran the risk of C and D's going out by tricks.

J. H. S., Duluth.—1. Frank Parker defeated Rudolphe in Buffalo, Jan. 11, 1871. Buy a CLIPPER ALMANAC for fifteen cents. 2. John T. Hoffman's majority over Griswold was 27,946. 3. The lady was married Oct. 15, 1868.

C. H. C., Cincinnatis, after the closing of the boisterous season of 1869, lost their first match in Brooklyn in June, 1870, the Atlantics beating them 11 to 8 in a game of eleven innings. 2. Have no such record.

ISAAC.—Your shot is a perfect right to do so. The work you name, which does not affect our decision, was not written by the lady named, and was never seen by her until after it had been forwarded to this office.

GUILDRIVER, St. Louis.—1. In this city. 2. He acts as advance agent for traveling companies. 3. In this city.

E. P., Brooklyn.—We are not certain as to his present whereabouts. Address a letter to him in care of this office, and it will reach him.

LIP, Chicago.—1. Born in this city Nov. 7, 1847. 2. No.

Made her debut at eight years of age in a concert hall in this city. 3. New York.—It would not be politic to do so.

H. H. J., Memphis.—The circulations of newspapers are their own concern. They are seldom made public, and are not always to be relied upon, when they are published.

HARRY E. and W. K.—Sixty-nine without a mark is same as our two-handed fifteen-ball pool. It is not necessary to bar the board of balls.

C. S. AND D., Phila.—The high is out. Jack was carried, but he must fall into line, in the rear rank, nevertheless.

G. G., Greencastle.—Thanks for old bills. 1. We believe Mr. Darcy is dead in Brooklyn. 2. We do not know what has become of her.

E. M. W. H., South Thompson.—No answers by mail, as meant that you should write to him in care of this office, and so, and your letter will be forwarded to him.

SEAG, Baltimore.—Charley Gallagher defeated the party named, knocking him out of time in the second round. Jerry afterward fought a draw.

S. M. AND C.—When last heard from, a few weeks ago, Charles W. Noyes was so seriously ill at Dallas, Texas, that was thought he could not recover.

INQUIRER, Richmond.—John C. Heenan died at Greenwood Station, Wyoming Territory, in a Pacific Railroad car, S. 26, 1873.

SOLOIST, Cincinnati.—1. All reliable works of that kind go out of print. 2. They are two distinct individuals. E. Locke acted in your city, and not "Yankee."

K. W. SNOOK.—Your subscription commenced with No. 51, vol. 23 (March 20, 1875), and will terminate with No. 50 of the present volume.

J. B.—1. There are those that have been leading men in Boston, Albany, Brooklyn, Philadelphia. 2. No. No. He is with the Kellogg English-opera Company.

HAGGIN, Williamsburg.—He is the manager of a troupe of bellringers. Address a letter to him, stating his name on the envelope, in care of this office.

TCH., Phila.—Thirteen clubs are to play ten games each with every other club; and, should they fail to play six of ten, all their games will be thrown out.

J. C.—1. In this city. 2. Because he is a faithful server. 3. In Chicago. 4. In Washington. 5. Boston. 6. Has not done so.

W. C., Providence.—1. Send 25 cents and a 3c. postage up to Ed. James, and he will send you one. 2. It is not proper. 3. Fair. It has a foreign aspect.

STOP.—Will answer next week.

A AND B.—The 2:35¼ at the Hippodrome ought to be a record, for that way of going. The Board of Appeals may decide to the contrary, some day.

DON BALTHAZAR, Lulling.—A player can bid but once, unless with the consent of all the others in the game.

G. P. A., New Orleans.—It is a matter of opinion, and we do not care to express ours.

HARRIET.—The authorities are disagreed as to whether hard-boiled eggs or soft ones are the more digestible.

FRIENDSHIP, Allegheny.—Such a feat has never been accomplished.

C. JOHNSON, Elizabethport.—Tom Sayers never visited this country.

DISPUTANTS, Clinton.—It has never been done, and probably it is not within the power of man to accomplish it.

D. C. Boston.—Except for that particular locality, it would not be of interest.

INQUIRER.—He would be compelled to give bonds to support the child, unless he married her.

A. C., Newark.—Gladiateur won the English Derby in 1865, and Lord Lyon in 1866.

SHAGGYDOG.—Is hardly passed after the draw, could not come in. Only the age has that privilege.

D. A. G. G., Albany.—Do not know the parties personally. LOVE IN THE SUPREME, Hillsboro.—B is out with his lows.

J. F. M., Lowell.—Bonner's Dexter still chews his oats.

H. I., Louisville.—Goldsmith Maid was foaled in 1857.

D. J. H., Detroit.—We have had no later intelligence.

BLAKE, Greenfield, Indiana.—Will be answered by mail.

W. D. B.—We do not know any player of that name.

THOS. M. DERRICK.—The manuscript is in our care.

J. H., Denver.—We are not aware that he was.

R. V. M., Detroit.—Be kind enough to state the bet.

P. R.—We have no record of such a performance.

H. D. L.—Hicks the pirate was hung July 30, 1860.

PAT.—Can only say that Jem Mace is now in Australia.

B. M., Phila.—Thanks for your old-time clippings.

C. A. R., St. Louis.—They are paid by the club.

SPORT, Brooklyn.—Game cocks are bred for cocking.

M. B. F.—She has been on the stage since 1868.

J. H., Denver.—We are not aware that he was.

R. M. H., Rochester.—Can only refer you to the committee of the Louisiana Legislature recommended that State-auditor Clinton be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors. It was a conspiracy in the form of law.

S. S., Traer.—A is out, of course, on the gift.

SHARK.—Apply to some dramatic agency.

WESTERN HOSE, Phila.—Shall look into it.

MOSE AND JIM, Louisville.—Foaled in 1857.

H. W. S., Grand Rapids.—Will be pleased to present.

L. W.—Six dollars for each insertion.

SUBSCRIBER, Birmingham.—B owes a $20.

J. R., New Haven.—We cannot say.

BARNES.—Answer.—There was not.

"J. H. B."—Yes.

THE CAMPAIGN OPENED.

"Behold how brightly breaks the morning!" And behold, likewise, how brightly breaks the morning of our baseball campaign. From the East, from the West, from the North and from the South we have glowing accounts of the opening of the ball—how this one's daisy-cutters mowed down all before them; how that one sent out a grounder that went through the left fielder, which caused him to be a left fielder in another sense; how Jimmy Guberson was put out on strikes not in accordance with the rules of the magic circle; how Dick McBride sent 'em in red hot—so hot, indeed, that the batsman feared to touch them; how Barty Brady got under a beautiful fly, and held it; how Wally Pirdue, the short stop, was compelled to stop short and run home, owing to a violent collision between his head and the ball; how Dave Bradley made a three-baser, and carried in three men, which was a good lift for one man; how the Jersey Blues got whitewashed; how George Wright with one hand put three men out—nevertheless, George has two hands; how Fergy doubled up two men like they had the colic; how Cuthy stole a base, notwithstanding there were police-officers present; how Charley Suds scooped in two men, and terminated the inning; how the Hartfords came near getting warmed by the Atlantics; how the Bostons got away with the New Havens; how the Aths punished the Phillies; how the St. Louis put put the Louisville Eagles on the fly; how the Centennial heroes made a good fight with the Jibbenainosays; and much other good news of similar import. Our heart bounds within us as we read these beautiful tributes to the boys, and with true inwardness we marvel that all classes and all conditions of men do not go out upon the ball-field, and emulate the example of these heroes of the bat and ball. We never could understand how anybody managed to live in this world and not play ball. It teaches us how to brave the bullets of a treacherous foe; it implants within our hearts the germs of courage and magnanimity; it instructs us in the tactics of warfare, and makes us shrewd and canning and watchful. Show us a man who doesn't play ball, and we will show you a seducer and malefactor. Show us a man who decries the national game, and we will place our hands on a traitor to the State. These are hard words, but we will stand by them. Come with us to yonder ball-ground. See those young lambs so blithe and gay as they toss the ball about to get their hands in play, and to ease the joints that thrift may follow fawning. See with what pride yon pitcher looks at the ball, how fondly he fondles it in his hands, and squeezes it as though it were his first, his only love. Behold the attitude he assumes as he prepares himself for the critical moment when he shall speed the sphere upon its winding way. Isn't it a glorious picture? Youth, fame, ambition, hope, all centred in that one pitcher. See, too, the batsman, as he seizes the stick and poises himself on one foot, awaiting the opening of the assault upon his works! Dear, dear, isn't it soul-inspiriting? With what manly vigor he steadies himself as he swings aloft the rounded bat, and swoops down upon the leather! Nay, more, watch this one and behold the bat! He is the catcher—plucklest of the plucks—standing calmly and bravely in the very face of danger, with limbs distended and eyes a-glaring wildly, like an American eagle ready to pounce upon its prey. And when he misses a ball—lets it pass him—how cheap he looks, as the assembled multitude guy him with unhallowed words, and call him a muff, and even baser names. O! to be a truly good and loyal ballplayer were worth a thousand lives!

HIS VIEWS.

Another clandestine interview has taken place between James and an irrepressible clandestine interviewer. The latter has kindly permitted us to look over his notes, and this is what the boy has to say on the subject of "it." He declares "That if Henry Ward is guilty, his conduct towards Mrs. Tilton was all to get her wrong! That if Dory is the devil they are trying to make him out, his love for Victoria must have been an Imp affection! That when a gourmand dies it is generally because he will gorman dize. That if Bessie Turner had not testified, Henry would still have missed her efforts to help him out. (Mr. Evarts?) That Robinson Crusoe's assistant was a Good Friday. That Mr. Tilton, seeing Bessie during the day, was of course accustomed to Turner out of bed! That some old people might call her Queen Bess, and think that the old ballad should be changed to Bessie o' the Lie! James imagines that Bess must have lunched every day in court, because he read that she brought her muff in with her. That it's a mixed-up case with "wet nusses" for witnesses, and a minister who makes a meaner stir than people expected. That Vic., in offering Theodore a couch, did so in the following musical manner: Davy-me 'Sofa'-la! See? Do!" But then Vic. has asserted that the evidence of the waiters was false, which was certainly not the way to testify. Still we know that "Heaven rewards the patient waiter." That Henry has been very merry, for has he not pastor Holliday with the time? That Shearman fights for his Hennery with sheer-men-tal strength. Egg-sellent man. As for the gathering of small matter for the case, Jim thinks it 'pears all very easy, but Pearsall could tell another story. The indignant colored gentleman who refused to inform Mr. Fullerton as to his worldly wealth has privately informed James that he did not state the amount, 'Kase he couldn't, on de stand!" And there we let Jim rest.

A FAIR SECTION of the Plymouth people are always in attendance at the dark seance in Brooklyn; but now that the best (or worst) of the evidence is in we may expect to see the fair sex shun the court room.

SHARKEY would have done much better had he risked the chances of Europe, rather than those of our rope. In Spain he might have walked Spanish, and no man to make him afraid. But man's inhumanity to woman has again placed him in the hands of the law, and in a Cuban dungeon he now has time to reflect upon the errors of the past. And yet we do not believe that he will be brought back to New York.

WE WERE under the impression that Billy Edwards had given up his Ring tactics; but our readers will perceive, by a paragraph in another column, that he has just entered into a new match. We have every assurance that this engagement will be conducted on the square.

JIM SAYS it's no wonder that some folks think Mr. Beecher has soiled himself in this matter, for Henry writes to Mr. T.: "I have put myself in Moulton's hands, and there I must meet you."

THE HORSE-RACE will soon play a prominent part in our outdoor pastimes, and "there's millions in it"—as Col. Sellers would say—to those who "get on" the right horses.

OUR MOVING DAY will be Saturday of this week; but before that let us make a well-meant movement in behalf of the Bryant Testimonial.

NEWS OF THE WEEK BOILED DOWN.

 On April 19: The centennial anniversary of the battles of Concord and Lexington, Mass., was celebrated at those places and in other portions of New England..... Judge Lawrence granted the motion of defendant's counsel for a bill of particulars in the suits brought by this city against Wm. M. Tweed..... Mrs. Catharine Blanckmeyer died in Jersey City, N. J., from injuries believed to have been inflicted by her husband Frederic..... An affray at Hawkinsville, Ga., resulted in the death of John M. White, the serious wounding of Nicholas P. Dillard, and the slight wounding of Willard Oliver..... News per cable: that in a second note to Belgium, Germany expressed regret that compliance with the latter's wishes had been refused, and referred to the special obligations Belgium is under to the guaranteeing powers because of her neutral position; that Mr. Disraeli stated in the British House of Commons that the late Government had requested Germany not to press Belgium beyond the limits of her constitutional institutions; that in the House of Lords Earl Derby said that the Government did not think the peace of Europe or the independence of Belgium was endangered by the Prussian note; that Austria and Russia will support Germany in her demands; that the Ecclesiastical bill passed the Lower House of the Prussian Diet; that the White Star steamers Belgic, Celtic and Oceanic had been chartered by the Occidental and Oriental Steamship Line, for service between San Francisco, Cal., and China and Japan; and that the American war vessels Juniata, Franklin and Congress had arrived at Spezzia, Italy..... Patrick Fallon of this city was sentenced to twenty years in State prison for robbery..... Julia Boole, aged 13, was killed by falling downstairs in this city..... It was announced that Hon. George S. Batcheller of Saratoga, N. Y., has accepted an appointment as a member of the Egyptian Supreme Court..... Reports from Quebec to the effect that Canadian wheat crops were reported to have been badly injured by the recent cold spell..... Mr. Parnell, the Home-rule candidate, was defeated..... The cavalry at attacked sixty Cheyenne Indians on North Fork Creek, April 23, and defeated them after a severe fight, killing twenty-three and capturing 125 ponies. Sergt. Papier and Private Thomas of the cavalry were killed..... Brigham Young was summoned before Chief Justice Lowe, at Salt Lake City, for contempt of court in failing to pay Ann Eliza $6,000 alimony. The case was appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court..... The Louisiana Senate refused to suspend Auditor Clinton, and the Legislature adjourned sine die..... The murderer Johnson had his death sentence commuted to imprisonment for life by the Governor of Ohio..... It was stated that Dr. Lorell, who was killed by Mexicans at Carrizo, Texas, was shot six times..... At Buffalo, N. Y., the Indian William Jones was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and fined $250 for killing the squaw Betsy Stevens..... Richard Burns was killed at Saundersville, R. I., by a rail knocked from a car by a passing train..... A verdict of justifiable homicide was rendered by the coroner's jury in the case of Ebenezer Green of Orange, N. J., who with a stroke of a cane killed Patrick Walsh Jr., one of a party of boys who were annoying him..... Giuseppe Pondalfo died in this city from the effects of a stab received inflicted by Romanico Pellico..... A Louisville, Ky., dispatch stated that Col. Blanton Duncan had been engaged by several thousand coupon holders to bring suit against the managers of the Louisville Lottery Louse and Bank..... Mrs. Edna Vidal, widow of Captain Videll, committed suicide by cutting her throat in Brooklyn, L. I..... The body of a man found in the Hudson River, at Bull's Ferry, N. J., was identified as that of James Graham..... Losses by fire: Logan's tannery, Fiction, N. S.—loss $50,000, insured for $16,700; Rothschild Brothers and other firms, 35 Lispenard street, New city—loss $40,000, insured for $20,000; office and a book-store, Oakland, Oregon—loss $30,000; the Central Pacific Railway workshops, Sacramento, Cal.—loss $10,000; Justice Monfort's barn, Hamilton, Ohio—loss about $2,000; on April 23: St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, San Jose, Cal.—loss $50,000, insurance $17,000..... Louis Moore, a railroad conductor, was killed by a train at Holmesburg Junction, N. J..... Philip Kern was thrown from a wagon in Jersey City, sustaining fatal injuries.....

A proclamation was issued in Canada granting pardon to all persons engaged in the Manitoba rebellion, except Riel, Lepine and O'Donoghue, the two former being banished for five years..... William Prescott and William Spencer were drowned at Clinton, Me.

 April 22: Great damage was reported to have been done at Omaha, Neb., by a freshet, the river being higher than for many years past..... Paul Fritscher committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart in Sweeny's Hotel, this city..... John Colbert, a clerk at Baltimore, Md., ended his life by hanging..... The body of Patrick Moran, three weeks missing, was found in Pelton's Pond, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., with marks on the head which indicated foul play..... John Broderick shot and mortally wounded Daniel Mahoney in Harlem, N. Y. The shooting is claimed to have been accidental..... Losses by fire; the Union League Club building, this city—loss about $85,000, covered by insurance; William McMurly's brick, Bowmanville, Ont.—loss $27,500; The Rutland Herald building—loss on furniture; the Methodist Church, Sherman House, and a dwelling, Pentwater, Mich.—loss about $10,000..... It was stated that John Baxter, aged 74, was burned to death in his house at Janesville, Wis.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Weekly Record of the Decease of Prominent Individuals.

COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

BOYER, Dr. S. P.—Surgeon U. S. Navy, and lately with the Pacific Squadron. He was attached to the gunboat Mattabassett at the time of her engagement with the Confederate ram Albemarle in Albemarle Sound—Reading, Pa., April 13, aged 61.

BLEECKER, Virginia Pegram—Wife of Richard W. Bleecker, and daughter of the late Capt. George H. Pegram, U. S. Army—this city, April 15.

BELL, Gen. John H.—At the outbreak of the Civil War he went to the front with the Seventy-first Regiment N. Y. S. M. After their three months' term had expired, he enlisted in the Seventy-second Volunteers. During the war he was wounded eleven times, and at Antietam was brevetted a brigadier-general for gallantry..... He was a member of the Army and Navy Club, and also of Phil Kearney Post No. 8, Grand Army of the Republic, and had for some years been employed in the Custom-house of this city. Somewhat prominent as a patron of sports, particularly of athletic ones, he was known in the gymnasiums of the metropolis. The wounds he received during the war caused his premature death. To use his own words, he had been shot away, and an enfeebled vitality ultimately culminated in downright decay. He was a genial companion, a fund of anecdote backed up by a worldly experience far beyond his years, "The General," as he was popularly called, is missed in many a circle—this city, April 21, aged 36.

HERAN, John—Carriage manufacturer, and well-known resident of the Twenty-first Ward, this city. Suddenly, of heart disease—here, April 18, aged 55.

LE BLANC, Joseph—Formerly a highly esteemed resident of St. Louis, and Mayor of that city—there, April 24.

DAGGETT, Capt. Philander—For the past twenty years a shipping master in the port of this city—Glasgow, Scotland. Prior to 1855 he had been prominent as a master of clipper packet-ships between that port and this—Boulogne-sur-Mer, France, April 1, aged 65.

DERBY, Ida—Belle—Daughter of the late Capt. Solomon Catterlin of Cincinnati, O.—this city, April 22, aged 29.

LORING, Mrs. Helen Johnson—Widow of Rev. J. B. Loring—Yonkers, N. Y., April 19, aged 76.

LYNDALL, Joseph R.—One of the first Commissioners of the Paid Fire Department of Philadelphia, and for many years a director in the Fire Association of that city. His business was the manufacture of window-blinds, he having originally been a carpenter. Early after reaching his majority, he joined Wecacoe Engine Company, and remained in the department until it ceased to be a volunteer organization. In 1856 the Republicans put him forward as a candidate for the Mayoralty, but he was not elected. In 1862 he was elected City Commissioner, and he was chosen again at the expiration of his first term. It is not a little to his credit that he always recognized the claims of old-fellowship, and in dispensing the patronage at his command he ignored the demands of mere time-servers, politicians and chose his subordinates mainly from among his old companions of the Fire Department. Besides standing high in the community for his sterling worthiness and executive ability, he had also acquired a name among the poor and the lowly as a generous if prudent almsgiver—Philadelphia, April 22, aged 64.

LOZIER, Anna—Daughter of the late well-known Abraham Lozier—Stapleton, Staten Island, April 25, aged 72.

MARSELLUS, Mrs. Jane—Wife of Rev. N. J. Marsellus, Brooklyn, L. I., April 17, aged 52.

MOULTON, Joseph White—Historian and writer on law. Born in Stratford, Ct. While young he removed to Troy, N. Y., where he was admitted to the bar in 1832-14. Having amassed considerable means by investments in real estate, he came to this city, and in 1834 and 1826, with the cooperation of J. V. N. Yates, he published "A History of the State of New York." Of late years he has been at work on a law-work that will transform his establishment into a pool-room in part..... The press tournament in Brooklyn hangs fire, Alex Samuells being apprehensive that he cannot get the Knights of the Quill together..... Francois Ubassy's winnings in the recent Brooklyn tournament amounted to $1,000, which sum he deposited to win more..... Griffith & Co. have issued a lithographed group of the players in last November's tournament. It is neatly framed, and will do to hang up almost anywhere..... The efficacy of potato water as a foot-bath, to be used by those who would win billiard matches, long been vaunted..... Doubtless the wash has been tried by a competitor in a tournament. Prior to playing a game, he would soak his feet for thirty minutes, as he had been informed Maurice Daly is in the habit of doing. Potato water is rich in stamina, and enables the player to hold out. A prominent American pugilist used always to walk in it before sitting down to a game of seven-up for big bills; and it is conceded that he could "hold out" longer and better (one-third of the deck sometimes) than any other man that ever lived..... Vignaux and Garnier are to play their $500 match at Tammany Hall on April 28. The former is largely the favorite..... It is announced that the match for the challenge cup between Vignaux and Rudolphe is off. Judging from Rudolphe's late challenge, it has never been really on. The latter offered to play Vignaux for the cup in Chris. O'Connor's private room. The proposition was declined with thanks. Rudolphe, escaping the annoyance to which a mixed assemblage usually subjects him, might have a little the best of it in O'Connor's room, but nevertheless these games should be public..... Budd Scofield's brother has taken charge of the pool table at the big room near the Grand Central Depot, still presided over by Peter F. Tracy..... At the Yonkers Lyceum, Yonkers, N. Y., during the week ending April 17, there was a tournament at the three-ball game, 200 points up, for a gold badge. The contestants were Messrs. Murphy, Starr, Ackerman, Houston and Swazy. Starr won all his games; Murphy won three out of the four; Ackerman, two; Houston, one; and Swazy none. The grand average of the winner was 2½. The largest run of the tourney was 27..... Chris. O'Connor reiterates his offer, made first at Tammany Hall on March 26, and again in these columns of issue April 10, to bet $2,000 that Vignaux can beat Garnier in any three-ball game of 600 points on anybody's table. Although this is not meant for the public, nevertheless anyone is at liberty to accept it, and the money will be covered by calling at 60 and 62 East Fourteenth street. Those for whom it is really meant can cover it elsewhere. The odds on the game of this week is $100 to $60 in favor of Vignaux..... Carter and Tom Horning, now of Chicago, are having good practice for their Ohio championship match..... The Harper family of amateur billiardists is thinning out. When P. D. Kilduff was in his glory as proprietor of the rooms corner Broadway and Twenty-second street, there was scarcely a night that some one of the Harpers might not have been seen there, cue in hand..... Brunswick, Balke & Co. have issued a lithographed group of the players in the late John W. Coon, if for Rhines himself. Miller has within the past two years been an occasional competitor for the amateur championship of Louisiana, held mainly by Frank Maggioli. This simply illustrates the looseness by which, for the sake of expediency, billiards in this country has been characterized of late years; for Miller has been almost bred in a public billiard-room, and is a professional beyond the possibility of a doubt. This tournament stamps him, whether he be amateur or professional, as the best three-ball player in the West or Southwest, next to George Slosson, who was not permitted to enter the lists. Rhines and Parker have both proved to be his superiors in three-ball game has never been Parker's best, but it has been Rhines', and years ago he did almost as good work on a 5½x11 table as he has now done on a smaller. It is true that he ran 100 week before last, which is something he had never done before; but then Frank Maggioli, who won but four games, had done better than that in the course of a tourney began. Burleigh's play was not equal to general expectation, and Shaw's was even weaker. Carter and Gallagher are quite up to medium form, but Slosson, like Miller, went beyond it. Honing is out of practice, and French caroms did not used to be his forte. Hoa is an amateur, and it was venturesomeness on his part to enter into a tourney of professionals. A Mr. Bill, from Rochester, has never been known to win much of anything outside of Wisconsin, and therefore Harris did well enough in making a stand-off with him for last place. The summary will be given next week..... As far as telegraphed, Burleigh has made the best average, as well as the best run (117). Miller's play having been remarkable for its steadiness, not to say uniformity.

GARNIER CLAIMS FORFEIT.

Billiardistic folks in the metropolis were startled on Monday morning last, April 26, by the announcement that Garnier had claimed forfeit of $250 and the match from Vignaux, with whom he is matched to play this week. There is, it seems, a clause in the rules requiring the full stake to be up five days before the date of the match. So far Vignaux was concerned, it was up, his business partner, Mr. Daniel Strauss, having drawn up a check for $250, and delivered it to Chris. O'Connor, one of Vignaux's backers, and he, in turn, was to have delivered it to the official stakeholder. This Mr. O'Connor neglected to do in time last, and Garnier, with much promptitude, addressed a note to the stakeholder, claiming forfeit. Mr. Strauss, on learning that Vignaux can be held to have forfeited by reason of Mr. O'Connor's failure to transfer the check in time. There can be no doubt that Garnier has a perfect right to forfeit, who never would have thought of this manœuvre, and who has undoubtedly been advised to resort to it, is thus forced to occupy, especially as the odds in betting has been largely against him. The $2,000 will be forthcoming.

There was a meeting held at Maurice Daly's room, at five P. M. on the 26th, for the purpose of coming to some decision. Daly represented Garnier, and Strauss acted for Vignaux. Mr. O'Connor, while maintaining that Garnier's claim was merely a technicality, and tendering four affidavits showing that Vignaux had put up the balance of his stake several days before, offered to give up the $250 in dispute, and proposed $500 to make a new match, to be played on Wednesday night following, the winner to take all. Sheridan also offered to bet $2,000 that Vignaux would win the game. O'Connor made a similar offer, a French gentleman in the party offering $1,000 to back Garnier, and proposed to make a match for $2,000, and to give Garnier $250 and the medal, whether he won or lost. All this was non-protective. Daly had no authority to do else than claim the $250 and the medal, and to call for a fresh match for $500 and the medal, Garnier meanwhile to be the custodian of the latter. As the stakeholder, who was present, declined to render a decision, maintaining that the rules themselves settled the point, Mr. O'Connor proposed that the match for Vignaux should be brought together at eight o'clock that night. This was agreed to. The result will reach us too late for this issue. Our opinion is that there will be some kind of a match on Wednesday night. It was announced some weeks ago, that Daly had challenged the winner of the match adjudged to have forfeited, it will therefore be some months before he can legally play Garnier.

LATER.—A messenger from the battle-ground reports that the two players came together; that Garnier stoutly insisted upon a forfeit; and that ultimately a compromise was agreed upon, at the conclusion of which Garnier and Vignaux resigned medal and money, and will play on Wednesday night simply for the original stake, $500 a side. The case is devoid of parallel. Comment is needless.

NO CHANCE FOR SPECULATION.—After it had become known that Garnier had claimed forfeit from Vignaux, Chris. O'Connor, armed with $2,000 in greenbacks, went where the supporters of Garnier are to be found, with the view of testing the actual strength of the player and backers previous to the pending match. The roll was not covered. As the current odds was $100 to $80, and even $

BASEBALL.

GAMES TO COME OFF.

April 27, Athletic vs. Centennial, at Philadelphia.
May 1, Athletic vs. Philadelphia, at Philadelphia.
May 5, Atlantic vs. Philadelphia, at Brooklyn.
May 6, Athletic vs. Washington, at Philadelphia.
May 6, Mutual vs. Philadelphia, at Brooklyn.
May 8, New Haven vs. Philadelphia, at New Haven.
May 8, Athletic vs. Centennial, at Philadelphia.
May 10, New Haven vs. Philadelphia, at New Haven.
May 11, Boston vs. Philadelphia, at Boston.
May 11, Athletic vs. Atlantic, at Brooklyn.
May 12, Athletic vs. Mutual, at Brooklyn.
May 12, Philadelphia vs. Hartford, at Hartford.
May 13, Athletic vs. Hartford, at Hartford.
May 13, Philadelphia vs. Atlantic, at Brooklyn.
May 14, Athletic vs. Hartford, at Hartford.
May 14, Philadelphia vs. Mutual, at Brooklyn.
May 15, Philadelphia vs. Mutual, at Philadelphia.
May 17, Boston vs. Athletic, at Boston.
May 17, Philadelphia vs. Mutual, at Philadelphia.
May 18, Athletic vs. Atlantic, at Brooklyn.
May 19, Athletic vs. Mutual, at Brooklyn.
May 20, Athletic vs. New Haven, at New Haven.
May 21, Athletic vs. New Haven, at New Haven.
May 21, Athletic vs. Mutual, at Philadelphia.
May 22, Athletic vs. Hartford, at Philadelphia.
May 26, Philadelphia vs. Hartford, at Philadelphia.
May 26, Philadelphia vs. Boston, at Philadelphia.
May 28, Athletic vs. Hartford, at Philadelphia.
May 31, Athletic vs. Philadelphia, at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA vs. CENTENNIAL.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE CLIPPER.

The second match between these Quaker City Clubs was played on the grounds of the Pearls on Monday afternoon, April 26. Radcliff and Lovett of the Centennial, and Malone and Schaffer of the Philadelphia, did not play, on account of sickness. The game was poorly played, especially the first three innings, by each club. Craver made two splendid hits. The score was as under:

PHILA.	T.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.	CENTENNIAL	T.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.
McMullin, lf	5	0	0	4	0	2	Bechtel, p..	5	2	1	0	1	2
McGeary, 2b	5	2	2	4	1	2	Craver, s s..	5	0	2	1	6	3
Addy, r f....	5	1	1	0	1	0	Treswith, 3b	5	0	2	0	3	3
Meyerle, 3b	5	2	2	0	1	3	Fenney, 1f..	5	0	1	2	0	0
Fisler, p....	5	1	1	1	1	1	Warner, c f..	5	0	0	0	1	0
Crawley, 1 b.	4	0	1	5	0	0	Somm rville	5	2	1	7	2	1
Fulmer, s s..	3	0	1	1	2	2	McGinley, c.	5	0	2	2	2	4
Murnan, c f	5	2	0	0	0	0	Abadie, 1st b	4	0	0	12	0	2
Snyder, c....	4	2	0	12	3	3	Mason, r f...	4	2	2	3	0	1
Totals...	43	10	8	27	9	13	Totals...	43	7	11	27	15	16

Centennial.....	2	1	1	0	0	0	3	0	—7
Philadelphia..	0	1	0	0	3	0	0	0	—10

Runs earned—none. Base on errors—Philadelphia, 11; Centennial, 8. Umpire, John Clapp. Time of game, 1h. 50m.

BOSTON vs. WASHINGTON.—These professional teams played their opening game this season at Washington, D. C., Monday, April 26. We give the score by innings, as received by telegraph:

Boston.....	0	1	1	0	0	6	0	0	0—8
Washington....	0	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0—2

Umpire, N. E. Young.

ATLANTIC vs NEW HAVEN.—The score by innings of the game between these clubs, contested at New Haven, Ct., on Monday afternoon, April 26, is given below:

Atlantic.....	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	1—3
New Haven....	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0—2

Umpire, Mr. Daniels.

PHILADELPHIA vs. CENTENNIAL.

The championship season in Philadelphia was inaugurated on April 21, by the Centennials and Philadelphias playing their first game on the former's new ball-ground, at Twenty-fourth street and Ridge avenue. There were about one thousand persons present, the weather being cold and disagreeable, else there would have been a much larger attendance to witness the newly-organized Centennials make their first professional game. The ground is small and devoid of turf, but promises to be an excellent ball-field, and is neatly fitted up with substantial pavilions and seats. Both nines appeared in new and neat uniforms; that of the Philadelphias being gray pants, white flannel shirts and dark red stockings, while the Centennials were attired in white flannel shirts and pants, and chocolate-colored stockings. McMullin was unable to be present, and Murnan efficiently filled the vacancy on the Philadelphia nine. The Philadelphias took the lead at the outset by scoring a run on a safe hit of Murnan's and errors of McGinley, two, and Somerville. A fine hit by Treacy, followed by loose fielding by Malone and Schaffer and Meyerle, allowed the latter some left-fielder of the Centennials to make a run in the second inning and thus tie the score. Each made a run in the fourth inning, the Centennials by Bechtel's splendid two-baser to right-center, and a hard hit by Treacy; and the Philadelphias theirs by the muffing of Craver and Radcliff. In the sixth inning the Philadelphias took the lead, scoring three more runs, the poor fielding of Warner, Radcliff and Craver. This virtually settled the question of victory; the Centennials, however, making three more runs, one of which was earned, by Bechtel's splendid two-base hit on Bechtel's down to the centre-field fence. The Philadelphias made a couple of unearned singles by the errors of Warner, McGinley and Radcliff, and were thus enabled to win by a score of 10 to 8. The game was poorly played, the only redeeming feature being Bechtel's general play, he pitching very effectively, making two double plays on brilliant line catches, and batting and running the bases well, his three two-bases each. Sommerville and McGeary also played well at second for their respective nines. The full score was:

CENTENNIAL.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.	PHILADELPHIA.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.
Radcliff, s s	1	1	3	6	4	Murnan, lf	2	2	4	0	1
Lovett, r f....	1	0	1	0	0	McGeary, 2d b	1	0	3	1	0
Bechtel, p....	2	3	1	2	4	Addy, r f....	1	1	1	0	0
Craver, 1st b	0	1	9	0	0	Meyerle, 3d b	1	1	0	2	0
Treswith, 3d b	0	1	0	2	1	Fisher, p....	0	1	1	2	0
Fenney, lf....	1	1	1	0	0	Malone, 1st b	0	0	12	0	0
Warner, c f..	0	0	1	0	1	Fulmer, s s..	0	1	0	1	3
Somm rville	0	1	1	1	0	Schafer, c f	0	1	1	2	0
McGinley, c..	3	0	0	3	0	Snyder, c....	0	0	9	0	1
Totals...	9	8	27	14	10	Totals...	4	6	27	7	5

Centennial.....	0	1	0	1	0	0	1	2	0—5
Philadelphia..	1	0	0	1	1	0	1	1	0—7

Runs earned—Centennial, 1. First base on errors—Centennial, 1; Philadelphia, 10. First base on balls—Centennial, none; Philadelphia, 2. Double plays—Bechtel and Craver, 2; McGeary and Malone, 1. Umpire, John Clapp of the Athletics. Time of game, 2h.

ATHLETIC vs. PHILADELPHIA.

The first championship game between these prominent professional nines of Philadelphia was played on April 29, on their grounds, at Twenty-fifth and Jefferson streets, in the presence of between two and three thousand persons. The weather was rather warmer than had been the case for the preceding two or three days; but still it was cold enough to materially hurt the attendance, and the high wind which prevailed was directly against the batting, and interfered considerably with the throwing of the catchers of both clubs. Eggler on this occasion made his first appearance on the Athletic's nine, and by his magnificent fielding and batting proved what a valuable acquisition he is. The Athletics were decided favorites in the betting, the odds being 100 to 40. Before the game commenced, Am. McLean of the Amateur Experts had been mutually agreed upon to fill the position of umpire, and the game commenced punctually at 4 P. M. Both failed to score in the first two innings, errors by Malone and a safe hit by Hall allowing three of the Athletics to reach first in the safety; while Fisher, by a fine hit, was the only one of the Philadelphias to reach that point, and in attempting to steal second he was cleverly thrown out by Clapp to Richmond. Malone redeemed his errors by a splendid running one-handed catch of a foul-bound, and Eggler made three pretty catches in these two innings. Force led off for the Athletics in the third inning with a safe hit to short left field, but was forced out at second on Clapp's hit. Anson followed with the best hit of the game, a liner to the extreme right, and easily made his second, while Clapp came home and scored the first run of the game. A good running catch by Addy then closed the inning, leaving Anson still at second. The Philadelphias offset this by scoring a run on a safe hit of Murnan's and errors of McGinley, two, and Somerville. A fine hit by Treacy, followed by loose fielding by Malone and Schaffer and Meyerle, allowed the latter some left-fielder of the Centennials to make a run in the second inning and thus tie the score. Each made a run in the fourth inning, the Centennials by Bechtel's splendid two-baser to right-center, and a hard hit by Treacy; and the Philadelphias theirs by the muffing of Craver and Radcliff. In the sixth inning the Philadelphias took the lead, scoring three more runs, the poor fielding of Warner, Radcliff and Craver. This virtually settled the question of victory; the Centennials, however, making three more runs, one of which was earned, by Bechtel's splendid two-base hit on Bechtel's down to the centre-field fence. The Philadelphias made a couple of unearned singles by the errors of Warner, McGinley and Radcliff, and were thus enabled to win by a score of 10 to 8. The game was poorly played, the only redeeming feature being Bechtel's general play, he pitching very effectively, making two double plays on brilliant line catches, and batting and running the bases well, his three two-bases each. Sommerville and McGeary also played well at second for their respective nines. The full score was:

ATHLETIC.	T.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.	PHILADELPHIA.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.
Force, s s..	5	0	1	0	2	1	McMullin, lf	5	0	1	2	0	1
Clapp, c....	5	1	0	5	1	1	McGeary, 2b	4	1	1	3	4	0
Anson, 1st b.	5	1	1	8	1	0	Addy, r f....	4	0	0	3	0	0
Fisler, r f..	4	0	1	1	0	0	Meyerle, 3 b.	4	0	0	2	3	2
Sutton, 3d b.	4	1	1	1	3	2	Fisher, p....	4	0	1	1	5	0
Hall, l f....	4	0	1	1	0	0	Malone, 1st b	4	0	0	12	0	2
McBride, p..	4	0	1	1	0	0	Fulmer, s s..	4	1	0	0	1	3
Richmond, 2b	4	1	1	1	2	1	Schafer, c f.	4	0	1	1	0	0
Eggler, c f..	4	2	2	6	0	0	Snyder, c....	4	0	0	9	1	1
Totals...	39	6	9	27	9	12	Totals...	37	3	6	27	12	13

Athletic.....	0	0	2	0	2	0	2	0	—6
Philadelphia..	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	1	0—3

Runs earned—Athletic, 1. Bases on errors—Athletic, 5; Philadelphia, 5. Double play—Meyerle, 1. Umpire, Wm. McLean of the Expert Club. Time of game, 1h. 50m.

BOSTON JR. vs. EGLESTON.

The first game of a series between these two Boston clubs was played on the Boston grounds on Friday, April 23, which, after ten inning's play, resulted in favor of the former by a score of 16 to 15. Below we present the full score:

BOSTON JR.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.	EGLESTON.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.
Pearl, 3d b....	2	2	2	2	1	Cogswell, 3d b.	0	1	3	2	1
Kerr, 1st b....	4	4	10	0	1	Lavers, s s....	4	3	2	3	2
Kearns, c....	1	1	5	2	2	Pease, l f....	2	4	2	0	1
Wright, c f....	2	2	1	3	0	Hardidge, s s..	2	2	1	2	1
Wright, c f....	1	1	3	0	0	Farrell, 1 f....	0	0	3	0	0
Thomas, 1 f....	1	1	3	0	0	Day, 1st b....	1	1	6	0	2
Dowd, 2d b....	0	1	1	0	4	Lewis, c....	0	0	6	3	2
Sullivan, r f....	1	1	1	0	1	Adams, p....	1	0	1	5	3
Mulloy, 2 b....	2	3	2	3	2	Holberie, r f..	1	1	1	0	0
Marquese, p....	2	2	2	3	1	Leonard, c f..	1	1	1	0	0
Totals....	16	16	30	15	11	Totals....	13	14	30	15	12

Eglestons....	0	1	0	0	0	1	3	0	0—13
Boston Jr. 1	2	3	0	3	0	3	4	0	1—16

Bases on errors—Boston Jr., 10; Eglestons, 9. Total bases—Boston Jr., 20; Eglestons, 14. Umpire, C. Waitt, Hub B. B. C. Time of game, 2h. 10m.

HARTFORD vs. AMATEUR.

On April 23 the Hartford played against the Amateur Club nine of that city, giving them Harridge, and the splendid fielding of the professionals led to a score of 30 to 0 in their favor, as follows:

HARTFORD.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.	AMATEUR.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.
Allison, c....	4	3	7	0	2	Harbidge, s s..	0	2	1	2	3
Burdock, 2d b	3	2	2	2	0	Farrell, 1 f....	0	0	3	0	0
Carey, s s....	4	2	0	1	0	Smith, c f....	0	0	1	0	0
Cummings, p...	4	3	0	0	0	O'Neil, c....	0	0	2	4	7
Daniels, p....	4	3	3	0	0	Daniels, p....	0	0	0	4	2
Ferguson, 3d b.	2	2	1	2	0	Knox, 3d b....	0	0	2	0	3
Remsen, c f....	4	2	1	0	0	Ramsey, 1st b..	0	0	16	0	2
Mills, 1st b....	3	2	10	0	1	Kellogs, r f....	0	0	0	0	0
Bond, r f....	3	2	1	1	0	Brady, 3d b....	0	0	3	6	3
Totals....	30	20	27	16	4	Totals....	0	4	27	19	23

Hartford.....	3	10	5	4	3	0	5	0	—30
Amateurs.....	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—0

Earned runs—Hartford, 4. Bases on errors—Hartford, 13; Amateur, 1. Umpire, J. H. McCan. Time of game, 2h.

BOSTON vs. NEW HAVEN.

The return match between these clubs was played at New Haven, Ct., Wednesday, April 21, when the Reds were again victorious. The score:

NEW HAVEN.	T.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.	BOSTON.	T.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.
Geer, 2d b....	4	1	1	4	3	1	G. Wright, s s	5	1	2	3	2	1
A. Wright, s s	4	1	1	1	3	1	McVey, c f....	6	0	1	1	0	0
Luff, r f....	5	0	1	1	0	0	Barnes, 2d b.	6	3	3	1	5	1
Bancker, c....	5	0	0	0	0	2	Spaulding, p.	5	1	2	1	3	2
McKelvey, 3b	4	0	3	3	6	2	Leonard, 1f..	5	0	2	2	0	0
Gould, 1st b..	5	0	1	17	0	2	White, c....	5	0	1	2	3	1
Ryan, l f....	3	0	0	0	0	1	Manning, r f.	5	2	0	1	1	0
Tipper, c f....	3	0	0	0	0	0	Latham, 1b..	5	1	0	12	0	0
Nichols, p....	3	0	0	0	2	2	Schafer, 3d b	4	3	0	2	4	0
Totals....	35	3	8	27	20	13	Totals....	47	14	12	27	14	6

New Haven.....	2	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	—3
Boston	0	0	0	3	1	3	0	1	5—14

Runs earned—New Haven, 2. First base by errors—New Haven, 3; Boston, 9. Total bases—Boston, 17; New Haven, 10. Umpire, Mr. Avery of the Yale Club. Time of game, 1h. 55m.

ST. LAWRENCE CLUB OF KINGSTON, CANADA.—The above club has lately been reorganized. The officers for the ensuing year are: G. W. Baden, president; John Angling, vice-president; J. Jarvis, M. D., corresponding, and R. Bannerman, recording secretary; Wm. Carson, treasurer. The game is very popular with the citizens of Kingston, who have subscribed over $300 to aid the club in the erection of a grand stand, and otherwise to assist in putting them on a first-class footing; consequently, they are now open for matches, and quite prepared to test the mettal of any club that may visit Canada.

THE CRITTENDENS defeated the Doerr Club by 9 to 3, on April 21.

ATLANTIC vs. HARTFORD.

More appropriate weather for a ball-game than prevailed throughout Friday, April 24, when the Hartfords played their first championship game and the first of their series with the Atlantics of Brooklyn at the former place, could not be desired. The ground was hard, and in every way favorable for fine fielding. The game was announced to begin at 3:30 P. M.; but long before that time people began flocking to the grounds, and, when the game commenced, fully 2,500 spectators had gathered within the inclosure. Game was called at 3:45 by Charles Daniels, with the Hartfords at the bat. Allison, the first striker, after being missed on a foul bound by Knowdell, took his base on called balls. Burdock then hit short to Casaday, who juggled the ball, and Burdey had a life given him. Carey made a clean hit to left, bringing in Allison. Knowdell took a foul tip beautifully from Cummings' bat. Patterson fielded York out, but two successive errors by him immediately afterwards gave Ferguson and Remsen their base, and let in Burdock and Carey. Kessler captured Millson on a fly, closing the inning for the Hartfords, with three runs and but one base-hit. Boyd went first to bat for the Atlantics, and hit a beauty for two bases. A wild throw by Carey to Mills gave Kessler a life. Nichols retired on strikes and Boyd came home on Crane's safe hit. Patterson tried to get second on his hard hit to right, but was captured, Bond throwing well; Kessler and Crane coming in meanwhile. Cummings captured Casaday on a fly—three runs, one earned. Neither scored in the second inning, but in the third, after Knowdell, Patterson and Kessler had fielded the Hartfords out for a blank, and Boyd of the Atlantics had fouled out, Kessler hit safe between short and third, and errors of Mills and Cummings gave Nicholls and Crane their first, and the bases were filled. Patterson's hit to Burdock, forced Crane out at second, and Burdock threw to Mills for a double play, but the latter failed to hold it, and Nichols and Kessler scored. As Casaday and Knowdell were quickly disposed of, the inning closed with no unearned runs, leaving the score at 5 to 3, with the visitors in the van.

This ended the run-getting for a time, and the Hartford stock was very low, as their chances to win were thought to be slim, and those who had bet heavily that the home club would beat the visitors in two innings were looking very blue. But the end was not yet. In the eighth inning the Hartfords went in for a rally, and after Carey had taken his base on called balls, and Cummings had struck out, York hit a vicious one for two bases, bringing Carey home. Ferguson then fouled out, and Remsen took his base on called balls —two men out, two on bases, and one run. A good hit would tie the score. Mills, full of confidence, took the bat, and hit a hot grounder to right-field, which Boyd fumbled, and also threw wild to home, York and Remsen coming in. "That settled it," so far as run-getting was concerned, for the Atlantics were quickly retired for a blank, and neither side scored in the ninth inning.

Of the Atlantic players, Cassiday's pitching, although very wild, proved effective, the Hartfords hitting him for but four base-hits, from which no runs were earned. The first and third bases were well guarded, while Patterson at second proved their weakest point. With the exception of Boyd, who made two damaging errors, the outfielders played their position well, Pabor especially. Knowdell behind the bat, and Kessler at short, did good service. Boyd and Patterson led at the bat. Of the Hartfords, the catch of Carey was perfect, Remsen being particularly worthy of mention. The infielders also played finely, but three errors marking their fielding, two of which belong to Mills and one to Carey. Cummings' pitching proved effective, though seven base-hits were made off it, and one run earned. Allison also played his position well. The score:

HARTFORD.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.	ATLANTIC.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	E.
Allison, c....	1	0	7	0	2	Boyd, r f.....	1	2	1	0	2
Burdock, 2d b..	0	0	4	1	0	Kessler, s s....	2	1	3	3	0
Carey, s s....	2	1	0	2	1	Nichols, 3d b...	1	0	2	2	1
Cummings, p...	0	1	2	2	0	Crane, 1st b....	1	0	9	0	0
York, l f.....	1	2	2	0	0	Patterson, 2d b.	0	2	4	1	2
Ferguson, 3d b	0	0	1	0	0	Cassiday, p....	0	1	0	2	1
Remsen, c f....	1	0	1	0	0	Knowdell, c....	0	0	7	0	0
Mills, 1st b....	0	1	7	0	2	Clack, c f.....	0	0	2	0	0
Bond, r f.....	0	0	1	2	0	Pabor, l f.....	0	1	1	0	0
Totals.....	5	4	27	8	5	Totals.....	5	7	27	9	5

Hartford.....	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	3—6
Atlantic.....	3	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	0—5

Runs earned—Atlantics, 1. Left on bases—Hartford, 5; Atlantic, 3. First base on errors—Hartford, 10; Atlantic, 6. Umpire—Charles Daniels of Hartford Amateurs. Scorer—B. F. Douglass Jr. Time, 2h.

ST. LOUIS vs. OLYMPIC.

The professional St. Louis Club indulged in a week's practice at Louisville, Ky., returning to the Mound City April 23. The games played were chiefly with the new amateur nine of Louisville, and underneath will be seen the score of the last meeting between them.

ST. LOUIS.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	OLYMPIC.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.
Pearce, s s....	5	5	1	3	Welsh, c.....	1	2	7	1
Cuthbert, l f....	4	3	0	0	Wright, 2d b....	1	1	1	1
Chapman, s f....	3	3	1	0	Booth, r f.....	1	2	0	1
Fleet, c f.....	2	2	1	0	Dyler, l f.....	0	1	1	0
Bradley, p.....	3	2	0	0	Burke, 3d b.....	0	0	1	4
Dehlman, 1st b.	3	2	14	0	Graham, 1st b....	0	0	12	0
Miller, c.....	2	0	1	7	0	Ross, c f.....	0	0	1	0
Battin, 2d b....	2	2	3	4	Brookshaw, s s....	0	0	2	6
Hague, 3d b.....	1	0	1	3	Gault, p.....	1	1	0	1
Totals.....	23	18	27	14	Totals.....	4	8	27	13

Umpire, W. G. Osborne of Louisville Eagles.

RED SOX vs. NIAGARA.

The match between these St. Louis Clubs, played April 18, resulted as follows:

ST. LOUIS RED.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.	NIAGARA.	R.	IB.	PO.	A.
Blong, l f.....	2	3	1	0	McCaffrey, 1st b..	0	0	13	1
Morgan, c.....	1	1	7	1	Hoffman, p.....	0	1	0	4
Oran, 3d b.....	3	2	4	0	Krebs, 2d b.....	1	1	2
Houtz, 1st b.....	2	1	14	1	Galvin, p.....	2	2	1	5
Causey, 2d b.....	1	2	2	3	Keane, r f.....	0	0	1
Croft, c f.....	0	2	1		Hunt, 3d b.....	0	1	0	1
McSorley, s s....	2	2	1	2	Sumner, c f.....	0	0	4	1
Redmond, c.....	2	3	4	1	Dolan, c.....	0	0	6	1
J. Dillon, r f....	1	0	0	0	McCanne, r f.....	0	0	1	0
Totals.....	14	15	27	15	Totals.....	4	6	27	13

St. Louis Red....	0	0	0	0	6	0	0	6	1—13
Niagara.....	0	0	2	0	0	2	0	2	0—6

Runs earned—St. Louis Red, 4; Niagara, 0. First base on Errors—St. Louis Red, 6; Niagara, 7. Umpire, Mr. Wm. Medart of the Atlantics. Time of game, 1h. 21m.

THE WESTERN CLUB OF KEOKUK.

The St. Louis Democrat of April 19 says: Al. Pratt having been released from his engagement with the Westerns of Keokuk, his place has not yet been filled, and the state of that club has been changed accordingly. The following is a correct and reliable list of the nine, together with the weight, age and height of each:

	Weight.	Age.	Height.
Barnie, c.....	157	23	5. 7
Golden, p.....	168	23	5. 8
Simmons, 1st b.....	188	25	5. 8
Miller, 2d b.....	169	24	5 10½
Goldsmith, 3d b.....	146	25	5. 7
Hallihan, s s.....	172	24	5. 9
Jones, l f.....	191	24	5 11½
Quinn, c f.....	148	23	5. 8½
Riley, r f.....	160	21	5. 10

MUTUAL vs. FIELD.—On April 24 the Mutuals played their last practice game at the Capitoline Grounds, and having a strong field nine against them composed of Roche, Clinton, Ducharme, McDermott—of St. John's College—Shevlin, Metcalfe, Wilson, Vanderbeck and Beavens, they had to do to escape defeat, the score standing at 3 to 1 against them at the close of the sixth inning. They finally closed the eighth inning with the lead in their hands, and then rain stopped further play.

Field.....	0	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	0—3
Mutual.....	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	4	2—7

Umpire, Mr. Thomas.

On April 28 the Mutual play the Centennial in Philadelphia, when they will display their new brown stockings for the first time. The return match will be played on the Union Grounds on Friday, May 30. On May 3, the Mutuals play the Bostons in Brooklyn.

HANDBALL AT MCQUADE'S.—On Saturday, April 24, a double-handed match at handball was played at Barney McQuade's Court, 404 Madison street, this city, John Manix and Dan McCarty defeating W. Ryan and Arthur McQuade after an exciting contest. On this (Tuesday) afternoon, at 2 o'clock, Theo. Bomeisler and Barney are to contend against John Lenihan and Manix in a match for $50 a side. It is probable that a match is making for a much heavier purse. Kirby and George Hanley, which is to take place on Friday afternoon, April 30, commencing at 2 o'clock. Both men are prominent players and residents of this city, and met in a contest for a century a few weeks ago, when Kirby was defeated; but he claimed that he was not in condition then, and sought another meeting, which was readily accorded him. He has another the favorite for the coming affair.

THE CHELSEA (MASS.) nine are now hard at practice preparatory to the Summer campaign. The nine has recently been strengthened by the addition of Oxley, a noted junior catcher. The uniform will be white with "Chelsea" on breast, white pants, caps, and red stockings and belts. J. A. Nutler will be manager this season.

THE BALL GROUND at Gloucester, N. J., has recently been inclosed, and will be inaugurated on April 30 by an exhibition game between the Philadelphia and Centennial Clubs, playing ten men and ten innings, so as not to infringe the rules prohibiting exhibition games.

THE HARTFORD CLUB commenced their season's play on April 20, as will be seen by report on our fifth page. On the three following days they practiced with field nines, scoring respectively 13 to 3, 26 to 1, and 30 to 0.

MESSRS. PECK & DAVIS have offered a silver ball for the junior championship of Chelsea, Mass., and several clubs will enter for the prize, among them the Resolutes, Dreadnaughts, Franklins and Pioneers.

THE NEW HAVENS played the Yale nine on April 24, and won by a score of 16 to 4. This is doing well. On the 22d they played a field nine, and won by 42 to 1.

THE CENTENNIALS start on their first tour this week, playing on Friday in Brooklyn, Saturday in New Haven, May 3 and 6, Hartford, and May 4 and 5, Boston.

THE NEW GROUNDS of the Ludlow Club at Cincinnati will be finished May 10. The Bostons are to play there June 1, and the New Haven Club June 30.

THERE ARE LETTERS in this office addressed to the secretary of the Silver Star B. B. C., and (2) for Mr. Van Delft, manager of the Atlantic B. B. C.

"GRIS" WOODHEAD, formerly of the Live Oaks of Lynn, and Brown of last years Stars of Boston, Mass., have joined the Lowell nine.

THE HEADQUARTERS of the Hartford Club will be found at 230 Main street, Hartford.

THE ST. LOUIS NINE defeated the Olympics, at Louisville, April 22, 24 to 4.

TWENTY-FIVE MILES ON BICYCLES.—David Stanton of Hornsey and W. Cann of Sheffield, Eng., met at the latter place April 12, to decide their return bicycle match. These men raced against each other a short time previously at Lillie Bridge, London, contending for £50 in a thirty-mile race. Cann having two minutes start. After going about twenty-two miles, the latter's machine got out of order, and he gave up. The distance fixed was twenty-five miles, ostensibly for a piece of plate, value £50, Cann having 500 yards' start. The Hornsey man was made favorite, 2 to 1 being laid on him, but on reaching the ground Cann's supporters took 25 to 20 or even shorter odds. Shortly after four o'clock the men issued forth, and had a very cordial reception. F. White, of Wolverhampton, sent the men away to a very even start; Cann, down-hill, got best off, Stanton having to climb a somewhat stiff ascent. Cann gradually gained on Stanton, and at the seventeenth lap was nearly level with him. In the twenty-first he got three lengths, and had the lead for a short time. Two or three times subsequently he took the lead for a brief period, but Stanton coming again as frequently deprived him of it. About the forty-fifth lap, Stanton forged ahead slightly, but Cann kept pretty close in his wake, ultimately one and then the other gaining a slight advantage. After the fiftieth round, Cann essayed to spurt, but could not come again at the sixty-second round, and made up some of his leeway. They then for some time kept their respective positions. It required no fewer than seventy-four laps and 266 yards to complete the twenty-five miles. After the seventieth circle had been compassed both appeared to get slower, and the pace had evidently told its tale on each. Stanton stuck to his work gamely and materially lessened the gap betwixt himself and Cann, but in the last turn round it was evident that Cann was too far ahead to be caught, and he ultimately came in a somewhat easy winner by about eighty yards, amidst loud plaudits from the spectators. The winner's time, including his start, was 1.38.36. J. Vandy had no difficulty in giving his award as referee.

A SHUFFLEBOARD HANDICAP, for three prizes, took place a few days ago at Billy McKune's Scotia House, corner of Bleecker street and Sullivan street,

A SIMBLE SHDORY.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.
DEDICATED TO MY FRIEND BOB STICKNEY, ESQ.

Of der many boor dot suffered
Drough der hard, hard Vinters gone by,
I can't found a trace of a sadder case
Dan dat of boor Barbara Shley.
Of four big ungles ven Ocdemper glosed,
Efrey dam von he vas dead:
Und efery von said: "Miss Shley vill be rich
Ven dem vills vas made oben und read!"

For dem ungles, dem all, efery von,
Dem vas richer as dot kin be,
Und dem don'd got a friend, or a shick, or a shild,
In here or in Germany.
So efery von dinked, like a madder of course,
Now efery dam von he vas dead,
Miss Shley vill be rich like a son-of-a-gun,
Ven dem vills vas made oben und read.

"Ungle Jake" vas der fired to got shleeby,
He vas kigged on der head by a mool;
He chued lied on his side, gif a grund, und den died,
Und Barbara gried like a fool.
Yes, she gried like a fool four nights und fife days,
Ghued cause "Ungle Jakey" vas dead;
Und efery von said: "Miss Shley vill be rich
Ven dem vills vas made oben und read!"

"Ungle Pede" vas der nexd to bass in his shecks,
'Cause he failed off der dob of a house;
Und ven dey rushed down vere he vas on der cround,
Dey find him so shdill like a mouse.
So der beeble's durned oud, from all round aboud,
To his fooneral so soon he vas dead;
Und efery von said: "Yoon'd Miss Shley be rich,
Ven dwo vills vas made oben und read!"

Der dird son to vent vas hoir Simon—
A lager-bier brewer vas he;
His horse runned away like der deffil von day,
So he vas blayed oud "number dree."
His blace vas glosed out mit some grabe on der door,
Dot someron kin knew he vas dead;
Und beebles all said: "Yoon'd Miss Shley be rich,
Ven dree vills vas made oben und read!"

Der older of all, "Ungle Gris" vas his name,
Vas der oney von leefed of der four;
But, strange to relate, he vas bringed home in shdate,
Von nighd on a big cellar door.
He vas shdabbed mit a bistol by who no von knowed,
Und he don'd good dold—he vas dead.
"She'll be rich like 'Oil Ganderbilk,'" efery von says,
"Ven four vills vas made oben und read!"

Der foonerals vas done, und leedle Miss Shley
Of lovers did had hond four-shore;
Dem vas dicker like flies ven der Summer-dime comes—
Bond minedy, I guess, less or more.
Dem shdared in her face, und rushed in her place,
Dem verried Miss Shley mead all dead—
She vood hafe got married bond dwenty-dree times
Before dem dam vills dem vas read.

Dere vas budchers und bakers, und leedle shoemakers,
Und lawyers und doctors so pold—
Yes, der son-of-a-guns—und nine gendlemen's sons,
Und the lod more, some young und some old.
Dey all hard did dry for to von poor Miss Shley,
Now dot her ungles vas dead:
"She's all righd, you kin bet, und der shdambs she will get Ven dem vills vas made oben und read."

Dey did foughdt mit delrseits und kig ub a row
Vonefer dey habbened to meet,
Und der efery von rushed for leedle Miss Shley
Vonefer she vent on der shtreet.
Dey crowled und dey howled und dold all kind of dings,
Dill her senses dem mosd all vas fled,
Und she vished she vas dead der day dot a gir vood came
For dem vills to been obened und read.

Vell, der day camed ad lasd, und der sitevalk vas pack
Mit beebles, und all round der door
Der lowers vas dick, eckseedly like flies—
But I vood dold you all dat before.
Dem lawyers dem sat, some din and some fat,
So soleum just like dem vas dead,
Und all of der crowd kebt quited und loud
For dem vills to been obened und read.

Dere vas four shdacks of babers, so big und so shdoud,
All tied ub mit red dabe and dings,
Und nine or fife lawyers, so soleum-like—vell,
A shmall leedle owl ven he sings.
Dey vinkered und grinned, and guckled und shinned,
Und von, mit an awful big head,
Says: "Kind friends, ve are here, on dis Habby New Year,
To heard dem vills obened und read."

He sod down mit a bop—you kin heard a house drop,
Dere vas no subbressing dot dime;
Den anudder von rose, mit a bile on his nose
Und a woice like a den-year-oit bull.
He bade her a leed, hummed vonce or dwice, und shneezed,
Den dore off der shoeshdrings und dread,
Und opened der vills just like dey vas pills,
Gleared his drout und gommenced to read.

"Number Von!"—dat vas "Jake's;"
Dem all shdrained deir eyes und deir ears—
Der bain vas blank—"Uncle Jake" vas a grank,
He don'd lefd a cend dot abbears.
"Number Dwo," "Number Dree," und den "Number Vour,"
Nod a dollar, nod nary a red;
Der sum vas so shmall dot dem lawyers dook all,
Und Miss Shley she did faind avay dead.

I hafe heerd boud horses a-running away,
Ub mit a shank—Uncle Jake" vas gone loose,
But to dry und dyshcripe der shdambede of dot growd,
So, hellub me Gott, dot's no use!
Dey busded und run, und dey dried efery von
To be fired on der sitevalk head—
Dree men in der grash got shmashed indo hash
On 'cound of dem vills being read.

So soon ven der growd vas all shcaddered avay,
Der Coroner come, und he sat
On dree men und a shild (dey vas all drawing dot mild),
Dwo boods, und a shoe und a hat.
Der jewry looked vise, rupped deir noses und eyes,
Den game forwards und said:
"Ve find in our mind dot dese beebles vas plind,
For to vent vere dem vills dem vas read."

To made a shord story long (dis vasn'd a song),
You voodn'd be sorry to heard
Dot bedde Miss Shley, she vas dead wery nigh,
Bud habby she's now like a bird.
Yes, she vas dooken ill, bud vas gured by a pill,
Und she married her shdeb-cousin Fred;
Und she nefer dond 'vand to been round any more
Ven some vills vas made oben und read.

Dere vas many shdrange dings in dis gruel vide vorld,
Und dem habbens in dwo or dree days,
Und of course ve all know, dot's so vedder or no—
Yes, no madder vot anyvon says—
Vell, Miss Shley she got dwins der werry first year
She got shbliced mit her shdeb-cousin Fred.
Und deir hair dot vas blink und (so says Doctor Fink)
"D'rye on 'cound of dem vills being read."

GOFTY GOOFT.
On board steamer Charles Morgan, on the Mississippi River, April 12, 1875.

THE BODY-SNATCHERS.

"Talking of that," said Mr. Wilson, getting up and poking the fire vigorously, "reminds me of a little incident that occurred to me in my young days.

The scene is the best parlor of the "Wallsend Arms," at Cossop on the Sore, where there is a snug meeting of the Commissioners of Public Sewers for the district. The small, silver-headed old gentleman who is poking the fire is a retired surgeon of the town; his colleague is Colonel Forrester of Cossop Priory, a tall, gray-haired, ex-cavalry officer; and the red-faced, merry-looking man in the corner is a local lawyer, the clerk to the Board. Wine and biscuits are on the table. There is nothing particular to be done, but they are bound by act of Parliament to sit till two o'clock, and it is now barely one.

"I to smoke, I suppose? I wouldn't do it, anyhow," says the Colonel, looking dolefully out of the window: a wet, dripping day, a High street deserted of passengers, depression prevailing everywhere. "It wouldn't do to smoke, eh?"

"Well," replies the lawyer doubtfully, "perhaps it wouldn't be quite regular, eh? What do you say, Mr. Wilson?"

"Personally, I haven't the slightest objection," replies Wilson; "but whether public opinion would quite sanction the members of a public Board—on public business — What do you think, Colonel?"

"No, no; I see that—I quite see that," said the Colonel, relinquishing his hold of his cigar-case, and yawning dolefully.

"Try a pinch of snuff, Colonel," said Wilson, producing a little horn snuff-box, and tapping the lid with his knuckle. "Public opinion can't object to snuff!"

The Colonel stretched out his hand for the snuff-box, took a pinch, and then examined the box in a listless way.

"That box," went on Wilson, "is connected with a curious incident in my early life."

"Well, let's hear it, Wilson," said the Colonel, good-naturedly; "anything's better than sitting here doing nothing."

"Well, when I first joined the medical school of St. Joseph's," began Mr. Wilson, seating himself by the fire with a glass of sherry in his hand, which he sipped now and then in the pauses of his narrative—"when I first joined the medical school, and made my acquaintance with the dissecting-table, I once was a person in the habit of frequenting the dissecting-room whose position and calling were for a long time a puzzle to me. He was a fine, tall man, well dressed, generally in a blue swallow-tailed coat with brass buttons, a canary-colored waistcoat, white kersey-mere trousers, and Hessian boots—quite a buck, in fact; and to the rough walk up and down the room dandling a great bunch of seals that hung at his fob, and gave himself as many airs as a Queen's physician. The professors seemed to know him well, and treated him with a sort of sarcastic deference: he would often be called out, and closeted with the authorities of the school, altogether, he held an important, although unrecognized position at St. Joseph's. The elder students, when I asked them about him, only mystified me; and at last my curiosity became so strong, that I determined to satisfy it at the fountain-head. So, one day, when I happened to be alone with him in the dissecting-room, I said to him: 'Mr. Blackstock' (that was the gentleman's name), 'I see you here a great deal; pray, excuse me for asking you what is the exact position you occupy in the medical profession?' He turned rather red, and looked down upon me in a haughty kind of way. 'Sir,' he said, 'I am Purveyor-general to the Faculty.'"

"Purveyor—exactly," said the Colonel, as Wilson paused to sip his wine. "Had 'em in the Crimea, I recollect—provided medical stores, and so on. Ah, your friend was a purveyor, then, Wilson?"

"Aha! not that sort of a purveyor, Colonel. Perhaps you might make a guess at his particular line. Give it up, eh? Well, sir, they were subjects—subjects, as we called them; in plain terms—bodies."

"Body-snatcher, eh?" cried the lawyer. "Ought to have been hanged."

"Well, I don't know whether that wasn't his eventual fate; but there were many worse fellows than Blackstock. I'll tell you a little incident that illustrates his kindness of heart. I think I may almost say that he saved my life.

"I must tell you that Blackstock had a little dog called Bingo, the most extraordinary dog you ever saw. He was a yellow dog, of a sickly, unwholesome yellow, without a particle of hair on his body but a tuft at the tip of his tail. He was always with his master.

"I mention Bingo," said Wilson, with a low chuckle, "because he's necessary to my story; and I may remark that, notwithstanding his repulsive appearance, there was something very intelligent—I might almost say human—in his expression. And yet he was morose in disposition—attached to medical students, whom he recognized with marvelous instinct, but to the rest of the world sullen and defiant. But to proceed. One evening, or, rather, I should say one morning, at a very early hour—between two and three—I happened to be returning with a friend, one Jackson, from some scene of gayety, to my rooms in Marylebone. On our way we passed the church of Saint Giles Overreach. Perhaps it wasn't Saint Giles, for my memory is not always accurate on these minor points; but, anyhow, a church with a large wall about it, of which was surrounded by a high wall, on the top of which was a very spiky chevaux de frise. The public footway ran close beside this wall, hardly a foot in width, and the road was very bad just then; in fact, at that season of the year—mid-winter—an impassable slough or quagmire. It is not yesterday I am talking about, mind you; in fact, it was before the time of street gas-lamps. The road was dimly lighted with an oil-lamp that swung in a bracket from the churchyard wall, and the next light was round the corner, quite out of sight. Well, my friend and I were pushing along at full speed, in a very cheerful mood, laughing and singing; but when we came to the foot of the church wall, all looked so gloomy and ghost-like, the black dank wall, the sullen lamp throwing a sort of sickly gleam on the sea of mud below, that involuntarily we grew silent and came to a stand. 'Here goes, Jack!' cried my friend, and scampered hastily along the footpath, whilst I followed him at full speed. It was narrow enough, and some of the stones were loose; and if you lost your balance, you were up to your knees in black mud; so that I had enough to do to see where I put my feet without looking aloft. All of a sudden, rap-bang I struck my head against something—something that gave way, and swung backward and forward, hitting me at each swing, and bringing me to a complete standstill. 'Well, I cast my eyes aloft, and saw, perched on the top of the church wall, sitting on the chevaux de frise as comfortably as you, Colonel, would sit a saddle, a little man in black, who was holding a rope in his hand, and from this rope hung a long narrow package, wrapped up in black tarpaulin—the package, in fact, against which I had knocked my head."

"A body, probably?" suggested the Colonel.

"A very fair inference," said Wilson. "Well, I must tell you that it was an understood thing in the profession that none of us should take any notice of anything of that kind. Public feeling was very high on the point, and I wouldn't have given sixpence for the life of anybody caught in the act; whilst the true interests of humanity demanded that the medical schools should have the means of teaching practical anatomy. So I should have scampered on, and taken no more notice; but, as ill-luck would have it, a dog began to bark from inside the churchyard. It was impossible to mistake that bark—it was Bingo's. Some spirit of mischief entered into me, and I cried out, in a gruff, disguised voice: "What! Blackstock, are you busy, then, to-night?" and ran on. For a moment my voice seemed to have struck terror into the hearts of the resurrectionists. The body came down to the ground with a crash, and, turning round, I saw the little man sitting astride the wall, like one stupefied. But the next moment he dropped softly down, and pursued us. Well, we ran on like the wind—we were both good runners—and yet we could not shake off these pursuing footsteps. The faster we went, the faster they seemed to follow; and I assure you my blood ran cold in my veins, till, turning the corner of the street, we met a party of the watch with staves and lanterns, at whose appearance our follower hastily decamped; and having explained to the watchmen that our flight was a mere youthful frolic, we reached my friend's lodging in safety. I sat for some time within, talking over the adventure, and then made my way to my own rooms, which were at the end of the next street, looking over my shoulder at every corner to make sure that I was not being watched.

"Well, gentlemen, when I reached my own door, imagine my chagrin to find that I had lost the key. It was a large street-door key—latchkeys were little in use in those days—and I could not think how I had managed to lose it; but there was the fact; it was gone, and I was locked out in the street this cold, dreary, Winter's night. I knocked and knocked in vain; my landlady slept at the top of the house, and was as deaf as a post. I roused the neighborhood, but made no impression upon her. Then I returned to my friend's lodging; but had no better fortune there; and, tired and cold, I was obliged to patrol the neighborhood for three or four hours before I could gain admittance. I was not without fear that my friend of the churchyard might be dogging my footsteps; but I saw nothing to excite further alarm. Apparently, we had thrown him off the trail altogether.

"As soon as I got back to my own rooms, I went to bed, and did not get up till nightfall. The cold seemed to have got into my very bones. In the meantime, my landlady was loud in her complaints against me for the loss of her key; and as soon as I rose and had dressed, I was obliged to go to a neighboring locksmith to try and replace it. But the locksmith had no key that would fit; and I found it would cost as little to have the lock replaced as to have a key made on purpose. I ordered a lock, therefore, very unwillingly, for it would cost four or five shillings, a sum that I could ill spare. I was sitting in a meditative mood, depressed by rheum, and chagrined at the waste of so much money, when the locksmith, who had left the house half an hour before, having taken the measurement for the lock, returned, and asked to see me.

"'I have good news for you, sir,' he said smiling; 'the key has been found, and you will be able to get it back for nothing. Such a nice, merry old gentleman has found it, sir! I've brought him with me to see you, and I'll bring him upstairs, if you'll allow me.'

"A merry old gentleman he proved to be, with tightly strapped trousers, very curly-brimmed hat, and a spencer.

"'Good dogs!' he cried, when he saw me. 'Gad, I wish I was young again. Oh, what games, what jolly games! Keys! bless my heart, what do we care about keys? fling 'em away in the street, bless my heart!' And so the old gentleman ran on. The locksmith took his leave; but the merry old fellow remained, laughing and chatting away.

"'Then you really have found my key, sir? I am very much obliged by the trouble you have taken. Pray, how did you find me out?'

"'Ha, ha!' cried the old gentleman; 'lose a watch, go to the watchmaker; find a key, go to the locksmith.'

"'And will you kindly let me have my key?'

"'All in good time, in good time. It isn't here, my boy; I hadn't a pocket big enough. I should have been obliged to hire a coach to carry it; ha, ha! You must come and fetch it, that's the fact. Come and crack a bottle with me, you and your gay young friend; jolly dogs; ha, ha!'

"I was little disposed to turn out; but my new friend was so pressing in his invitation, and, being anxious to recover my key, I was persuaded to accompany him. We called upon my friend, who, being rather a gay young fellow, and fond of wine, made no objection to a bottle; and so we accompanied the old gentleman home in a coach which he hired, to his house, full of life and merriment all the time.

"The old gentleman's house hardly corresponded in appearance with the character of its owner. It was decidedly dark and gloomy, in a low-lying neighborhood, somewhere near the river. But the old gentleman boasted he had some valuable pictures which he had given us in his conversation such glimpses of his hospitable way of life, that we did not doubt we should be well entertained, notwithstanding the unpromising look of his abode.

"'Now, my boys,' he cried, pushing us before him, 'first door to the right. And I'm away to the cellar to get a bottle of my very best. In the meantime refresh yourself with a pinch of snuff.' He gave us a candle and his snuff-box, the identical little box I now hold in my hand, and left us in a low-roofed, villainous chamber, its walls black with the dirt of years, festooned with cobwebs, and furnished with only a few broken chairs and a table.

"'An eccentric, evidently,' said my friend, when the old gentleman had left us alone; 'rich too, I'll be bound. Perhaps, as he seems to have taken a fancy to us, the old fellow will make us his heirs.'

"He kept us waiting so long that we began to be uneasy—but that night, in a strange place, the aspect of which was not reassuring; and yet we could not doubt the respectability of the little old gentleman. Presently we heard his voice, as he sang and shouted merrily, and returned, carrying in one hand a bottle, and in the other something on his finger my key. As he entered, we noticed, for the first time, a tremendous scar below his right eye, the result, as it seemed, of some old wound.

"'Now, my lads, I won't leave you in this old lumber-room any longer; come into my own little snug, and we'll crack a bottle, and make a merry night of it. We've got the key, we've got the key—and we won't go home till morning!' shouted the old gentleman, in the most hilarious voice, snatching up the candle, and leading the way through a door, at the farther end of the room, that opened into a dark narrow passage. Just as he entered the passage, the old gentleman, as if by accident, dropped the candle, so that everything was in profound darkness.

"'Come along, come along; we shall find a light at the other end,' called the old gentleman merrily. 'Give me your arm, young sir, give me your arm.'

"I was following him without thought or hesitation, as was my friend, when all of a sudden I heard, from what seemed to be the bowels of the earth, just in front of me, the barking of a dog. It was Bingo's bark among a thousand. 'Back, back back!' I cried, recoiling with such force that I dragged the old gentleman several paces backwards. He lost his hold; I heard a cry, a splash. 'Back, back!' thrusting my friend into the room we had quitted. The door behind us had swung to, for Jackson had not passed quite through into the passage, and there was such terror and warning in my voice that he sprang back instinctively, and regained the room we had left. The door went to with a bang. It closed with a spring-lock, and there was no means of opening it. We stood together in the darkness, our arms clasped convulsively, daring not to move to one side or the other, lest some pitfall might open beneath us. We saw at once that we had been entrapped into this house to be made away with. We had been lured into an oubliette, from which we should hardly escape with life. We had been hunted down by the body-snatchers, whose safety demanded our destruction.

"At this moment a light appeared beneath the door by which we had first entered, and presently the door itself was opened, and a face appeared, pale, ghastly, and drawn up with strong emotion. A dog ran forward, barking loudly. Next moment the dog began to jump and fawn upon us.

"'Ha, Bingo!' I cried, in a voice that I tried to make calm and assured. 'Where's your master. Bingo? Where's the purveyor?'

"The man stepped into the room suddenly, and flashed his light upon us. It was Blackstock and Bingo.

"'What! Mr. Wilson,' he cried, 'Mr. Jackson! Ah, I never dreamt it was you. Pray what are you doing here?'

"'We have come here by invitation,' I said unconcernedly, 'to drink a bottle of wine with a little old gentleman.'

"'Ah!' said Blackstock, with a forced kind of laugh; 'I know him. Have you been in there with him?'—pointing to the passage.

"'No,' I said; 'no. He left us just now, and hasn't come back.'

"Blackstock looked first at me, then at the dog, which was wriggling and fawning at my feet. 'Ah,' he said, 'you were always kind to Bingo, sir. Step this way.'

"We followed him, cautiously enough, down a flight of stairs, at the bottom of which he flung open a door which led into the street. How delicious was the breath of the air upon our cheeks.

"'Good-night, gents,' said Blackstock. 'You'll keep your tongues between your teeth, I know, for your own sakes and another time. Don't you mention names, sir. You've been precious near to kingdom come, gents, this night. Good-bye.'

"We never saw anything more of Blackstock in our dissecting-room; but a few days after the occurrences of that night we had a new subject, which turned out to be the little old gentleman." Of course, it was no use returning his snuff-box, and I have kept it ever since, as a memento of an occurrence I should otherwise sometimes fancy was but a dream."

"Yes, he was a kind-hearted individual, your Mr. Blackstock, as you remarked when you began your story," said the Colonel, yawning violently. "Why, it's two o'clock! I never spent a longer hour in my life. Well, good-bye, Wilson; gentlemen, good-day! By the way, Wilson, what became of the key?"

"I've no doubt it is at the bottom of the river to this day," said Wilson, with a chuckle. "Adieu, my friends."

AN ODD OLD DANCE.—In a book called "The Dancing Master," published in 1872, appears the following description of a dance called "Longways," to be danced by "as many as will." "Note—Each strain is to be played twice over. The first wo. (short for woman) holds her handkerchief on her face, and goes on the outside below the third wo., and comes up the middle to her place; the man follows her (at the same time pointing and smiling at her) up to his place. First man do the same, only beckon his wo. to him. First wo. makes a motion of drying first one eye, then the other, and claps her hands one after another on her sides (the first man looking surprising at her at the same time), and turns her partner. First co. (couple) move with two slow steps down the middle and back again. The first cuseti and cast off." Most men would now look "surprisingly" at any "wo." during this odd figure, without receiving an order to do so from "The Dancing Master."

A WOMAN'S SEVEN SEASONS.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY E. A. H. D.

I.—Only a tiny thing.
Pink little flower—
Joy of the household,
Light of the hour.

II.—Only a little girl
Entering her teens—
Sunshine and gladness,
Happiness brings.

III.—Only a maiden fair,
Innocent still—
Life of the household,
Duties to fill.

IV.—Bloomed into womanhood,
Hand sought by all;
Happy and virtuous—
Virtue may fall.

V.—Poor fluttering birdie,
Meek as the dove—
Virtue is sacrificed,
Often, to love.

VI.—Only a frail one—
Character gone,
Honor discarded,
Happiness flown.

VII.—Only a stifled cry,
Only a leap—
Troubles all buried
Far in the deep!

THE PLAYS OF PARIS.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY HENRY L. WILLIAMS.

Naturally the playgoer from abroad turns into the new Opera-house to admire the grand staircase, up which a democratic sentiment allows the gallery people to touch elbows with the private-boxites, as well in entering and leaving, as between the acts. Now that the marbles are unflecked and the paint and gilding fresh and fair as a belle just "come out," or a crack horse cantering preliminarily to the first race, the work of Charles Garnier is indeed worth seeing. As for the house, I like it beyond any I other, as it is more cosy than the Academy, and better for seeing than Covent Garden. All the singers were hoarse, save Faure, on my visit, so that one could hardly judge of the acoustical qualities. The ballet is first-rate; and if French women had English figures, there are some twenty ballerinas here to set the heart aflame from Madagascar to Chepultepec. The scene in the dancers' greenroom, where "the mothers" are rightly excluded, is peculiarly suggestive of the state of Parisian morality. In London, you know, though the "nobs" have the "pass" to hang about the stage, even to the crownbearers, they behave sheepishly and have never the air of being at home, as on the Continent. The scene-shifters, too, in England, while grateful for crownpieces, lack the intelligence of the equipage of a French, Italian or even Berlin house. As for the ladies of the ballet, no such running fire of really intelligent conversation is expected at Drury Lane or Covent Garden from girls who consider a white jacket the height of undress, as in the foyer, where every other rat sports her little set of diamonds. If the money thus squandered on vice in the gay city had been expended on missionaries, half the world would have been "Moodies or Sankeys" long ere this—if funds achieve such results.

"Round the World in Eighty Days" has made the Porte St. Martin a mint; but in London it has been no success, because the effects are not novel out of Paris. Think of one baby elephant being a sensation there, when Sanger had twenty on the stage together in the Astley's pantomime. And what ludicrous blunders of the costumer and scene-painter. Give a Frenchman a historical subject, and his notions will fare pretty well as to him at some other contemporary, and he goes ingeniously wrong. According to the Porte St. Martin, the Pacific Railroad runs English third-class cars, with entrances at the sides, as Pullman's palaces, and the conductors are guards who are clad in a sort of Old Continentaller uniform. The West Point cadets who, by-the-by, patrol the station prevent the forays of the Modocs, scarcely manœuvre according to Hardee. However, Mlle. Mariquita is very good in an East Indian ballet, imitating in poses the quaint attitudes of the Hindostanee divinities; the dresses are sufficiently showy, and Moreau (the original Louise of "The Two Orphans") and Patty are winsome. The latter was guilty of a witticism the other day. A bore having murmured something about his "amour sacre de la Patry," was answered by her that she would believe in it when he had "died for his Patrie," and not till then. But as a rule, these clever Parisiennes, whose jokes appear in print, have them made for them by the journalists.

Offenbach is but poorly succeeding with his revivals of his comic operas, remodeled on a large scale to suite the Gaite Theatre. In "Genevieve" he used up the splendid armor of Sardou's unfortunate "La Haine." The grand procession is but poorly done, and has been often surpassed in New York. Offenbach has a fine company, though Montaubry, Christian, Gabel, and so on; Theresa (who is getting refined in style without loss of power); Perret, one of the handsomest of French songstresses; Angele, a beauty, and merely that; Godin, and a little "extra" lady, blonde and petite, something uncommonly pretty for her nationality. The chief novelty is the gathering of all the principal characters in popular operas, "Romeo" to "Boulotte"—the same idea, however, having struck a London writer, who did it with children in "Sindbad the Sailor" (1874-5, Holborn Theatre). Rather "rum" to see the Gretchen drinking champagne (!) as she chorused with the others in the finale.

The Varieties does finely with "The 30 Millions of Gladiator," a funny piece, very "French," but bound to go, with its half dozen first-class low comedians in it—Dupuis, Berthelier, Leonce, Baron, etc. Celine Montaland, that beauteous child whose resistance to Cæsarian homage made her a notability of the last Empire, has become a too matronly creature, and one feels old as he remembers "before the war," when other now-weighty dames were then sprites and fays.

The Folies, since "Madame Angot," has had nothing but failure in the way of buffo operas. Herve's new attempt may turn the tide. Milher is still there, the finest actor-singer in Paris in his line; M. Widener is the comic tenor, nearly as good as poor Luce. Among the ladies are Vanghel, once the charming Mephisto of "Little Faust," who sings the "Four Seasons" and "The Star" of "Tom Thumb" as few can do—poetically, delicously. Paola Marie has not been in proper trim since her husband's (Luce) death—she was highly enchanting, always dressed as if fresh from a bandbox, and acted her best in no fear of ruffling her fine feathers. Such are rare.

La Renaissance fines better with "Giroffe" than did the London Philharmonic. Alphonsine's "Aurora" is inimitable, she being one of the finest artists of her city.

The Bouffes sticks to Offenbach, but the sensation the recruit from the music-halls, Theo, formerly made, has much lessened. She and Peochard, however, carry the pieces well. Judic has gone to Russia; the "Archiduchesse" was a finished bit. Ida

THE TURF.

DEATH OF SIR JOSEPH HAWLEY.

The death of the distinguished English turfman Sir Joseph Hawley, on Wednesday, April 21, is announced by cable telegraph. For more than thirty years he has been prominently identified with English racing; and few, if any, have been so successful, or won such an immense amount of money by the victories of his horses. He has long been regarded as one of the shrewdest and most astute turfmen of the day, and he shrouded his racing and betting tactics with such profound secrecy that he became the terror and dread of bookmakers. His first great turf success was in 1847, when he won the Oaks with his filly Miami, a daughter of Venison, who, with the odds of 9 to 1 against her, beat a field of 22 opponents. In 1849 he won the Great Northamptonshire Stakes and Great Metropolitan Handicap with Fernhill; the Newmarket Ascot Produce; 200sovs. sweepstakes; Grand Duke Michael and Newmarket Triennial Stakes with Vatican, who also ran third to Flying Dutchman for the St. Leger. Two years afterwards, in 1851, he attained the summit of the English turfman's ambition by winning the Blue Ribbon of the turf, the Epsom Derby, with Teddington, a son of Orlando and Miss Twickenham, whom he had purchased when a yearling with his dam for $1,000. It was estimated that the "lucky Kentish baronet," as Sir Joseph was called, won over $500,000 by his Epsom victory. In this same year he carried off the Great Metropolitan Stakes with The Ban (who started at the remunerative price of 40 to 1, and was heavily backed by his clever owner) and the Doncaster Cup with the same horse; the One Thousand Guineas, Park Hill, and Doncaster Stakes with Aphrodite, who also ran second to Newminster for the St. Leger; the Ascot Stakes with Vatican, and the Great Yorkshire Handicap with The Confessor. His winning the Doncaster Cup with The Ban, when he had another horse, Vatican, also running in the race, led to the matter being brought before the Jockey Club; the owner of Black Doctor, who ran second, objecting to The Ban receiving the cup, on the ground that two horses belonging to the same owner could not start in the race. Sir Joseph Hawley alleged that he had sold Vatican to a Mr. Morris the night previously to the race, and had no interest in him when he ran. The Jockey Club decided that The Ban was entitled to the cup, but blamed the steward for allowing Vatican to run when he had been entered in Sir Joseph Hawley's name. The odium caused by this confessedly ambiguous transaction led to Sir Joseph's retirement from the turf for some years. In 1858 his colors were again seen in public, and conspicuously so, for he won the Newmarket Stakes and the Epsom Derby of that year with Beadsman, a son of Weatherbit and Mendicant, bred by himself; and the following year was again enrolled the winner of that great race with Musjid, a son of Newminster, who eight years before had swept the Doncaster St. Leger from his grasp by defeating Aphrodite. After a lapse of nine years, the Derby again fell to his lot by the aid of Blue Gown, a son of Beadsman, who had as a two-year-old won the Champagne Stakes at Doncaster, but had been disqualified because his jockey, Wells, had carried 2lb overweight without declaring it. The year afterwards, 1869, Sir Joseph ran second to Pretender, beaten a head only by the Derby, with Pero Gomez, another son of Beadsman; and to this day it is a fruitful subject of discussion whether he did not win the race. Pero Gomez had his revenge over his Epsom conqueror in the St. Leger at Doncaster, where he clearly proved his superiority by beating him easily, and by three days afterwards repeated his victory over him in the Doncaster Stakes. During his racing career, the deceased baronet won four Derbys, one Oaks, and one St. Leger, besides a vast number of other important races.

DEATH OF KENTUCKY.

The celebrated racehorse Kentucky, the property of Mr. A. Belmont, died at the Nursery Stud Farm near Babylon, L. I., on Sunday, April 18, from inflammation of the lungs. He was bred by Mr. John M. Clay of Ashland, Ky., a son of the "Great Commoner," Henry Clay, and was foaled in 1861; sired by Lexington, out of Magnolia, a daughter of imported Glencoe and imported Myrtle. During his remarkably brilliant career on the turf Kentucky was the idol of Eastern racing-men, and his claims on their pride and affection arose from the fact that out of the twenty-three races (including his great time match) at all distances, for which he started, he only lost one. He was brought East by Mr. Clay, in company with Arcola, by Lexington, out of Topaz, both being two-year-olds, in the Fall of 1863, to the Paterson, N. J., October meeting, and his first appearance was in a two-year-old purse, one mile, against Minnie Minor and Eagle, whom he beat with such consummate ease that Messrs. Osgood & Travers immediately purchased him and his stable companion Arcola, paying $4,000 for the former, and $2,000 for the latter. His new owners at once placed him under the turf management of Mr. John Hunter, whose stable at that time was trained by the late Mr. A. J. Minor. His first race as a three-year-old was in the Jersey Derby of 1864, the first year of its establishment; but at the time he was suffering from rheumatic affection in his feet, and was obliged in consequence to succumb to that great racehorse Norfolk; Tipperary and Eagle both beating him for a place in the race. Two days afterwards, having partially recovered from his lameness, he won the Sequel Stakes, two miles, over the same track. In the Travers Stakes at Saratoga, the ensuing August, one mile and three-quarters, he beat Tipperary and three others in hollow style, although on the morning of the race he was so lame from rheumatism that his starting at all was very doubtful. Warming out of it in his preliminary gallop, he ran and won in commanding style. His next appearance was at the Paterson Fall Meeting, where he won the Jersey St. Leger, two miles and a quarter; the Sequel Stakes, two miles; and a match of two mile-heats against Aldebaran. He came out as a four-year-old at the Paterson Spring Meeting in 1865, and beat Captain Moore in a race of two-mile heats, and Aldebaran and Fleetwing at three-mile heats. At Saratoga the same Summer he won the Saratoga Cup, two miles and a quarter, in 4:01¾, beating Captain Moore and Rhinelander; this time record remained in the Saratoga list for this race until Harry Bassett, seven years later, beat it by putting 3:59 on the record. At Paterson, the following October, he won a race of two-mile heats, beating Oakland and Lord Monmouth; walked over for the three-mile purse; and beat Fleetwing at three-mile heats. In 1866 he began his five-year-old career by beating Julius, Norwich, and Baltimore, the Jersey St. Leger winner, in a race of two-mile heats; beat Lady Dan Bryant and Nannie Butler in a three-mile dash the following day; and the next day beat Richmond, the Derby winner, in a three-mile-heat race. At Saratoga he again carried off the cup from Beacon, Leatherlungs, and Delaware; and in the four-mile dash beat Julius and Leatherlungs. His next appearance was at the Inaugural Meeting of Jerome Park on Sept. 29, 1866, when he won the four-mile-heat race from Onward, Idlewild and Fleetwing. It was in this race that it was anticipated Kentucky and the famous Asteroid would measure speed and gameness together, both horses being entered. Unfortunately, Asteroid broke down a few days before, while taking his galloping exercise on the track at Jerome Park, and the race was consequently deprived of its greatest interest. Four days afterwards he won the Grand National Handicap, two miles and three-quarters, carrying 124lb., and beating Nannie Baker, Aldebaran, Onward and Luther. He was then purchased by Mr. Leonard W. Jerome for $40,000, who put him to the stud in the Spring of 1867, and in the Fall matched him for $5,000 a side to beat his great sire's (Lexington) two-mile time of 7:19¾, over Jerome Park Course, and carry 120lb. Mr. John Hunter was the backer of time, and the match created intense interest, attracting an immense attendance. Kentucky on the day was not in the best condition for such a tremendous task, and his want of sufficiently strong work was superadded to the enervating effects of a season at the stud. He failed to accomplish the task, being wretchedly managed during the race, his time being 7:31¾, or just twelve seconds slower than Lexington's record. This was his last race, for he never recovered from the severe effects of this trying ordeal. The following year he was purchased for $25,000 by the Anniesswood Stable, a racing confederacy composed of Messrs. Belmont, Travers and Hunter, and once more put in training, but, failing to stand a preparation, he was, at the disruption of the Anniesswood Stable, sold at auction, along with the other horses belonging to it, and purchased by Mr. Belmont for $15,000. By this gentleman he was placed at the head of his breeding establishment at The Nursery, Babylon, L. I., where he remained up to the time of his death. As a sire he has not proved a great success; for although in their two-year-old form his stock display great speed, they do not train on at three and four years old. The best of his progeny have been Count D'Orsay, Dublin, Silk Stockings, Medora, Caroline, Countess, Beatrice and Lord Byron. He has, however, left behind him at Babylon some remarkably promising two-year-olds and yearlings. His loss to Mr. Belmont will be compensated by his having Kingfisher, by Lexington out of imp. Eltham Lass, by Kingston, a magnificent-looking stallion and first-class race-horse while on the turf, to supply his vacant place.

RACING ON EPSOM DOWNS.—The Spring Meeting at Epsom, Eng., was held during the past week, commencing April 20, when the City and Suburban Handicap—15sovs. each, 10sovs. forfeit, and only 5sovs. if declared by Feb. 21, with 200sovs. added—was run for. The winner was T. Smith's b. c. Dalham, 4yrs., by Cathedral, dam Gertrude, by the Marquis; Mr. Honeage's c. h. Freeman, 6yrs., second; J. Johnstone's b. c. Tam O'Shanter, 4yrs., third. Twenty-four started, and the betting before the start was as follows: 40 to 1 against Dalham, 16 to 1 against Freeman, 14 to 1 against O'Shanter, and 6 to 1 against Prince Soltykoff's c. c. Timour, 3yrs., who ran very badly. On April 21 the Great Metropolitan Stakes—25sovs. each, 15sovs. forfeit, and only 5sovs. if declared by Feb. 2, with 200sovs. added—was the principal event, and was won by James Nightingale's b. c. Hampton, 3yrs., by Lord Clifden, dam Lady Langden, 82lb; Lord Aylesbury's c. c. Temple Bar, 3yrs., 82lb, second; Mr. Martin's c. m. Rosebluish, aged, 98lb, third. Betting before the start: 7 to 1 against Hampton, 10 to 1 against Temple Bar, 20 to 1 against Roseblush, and 4 to 1 against Lord Bradford's Bugle March, who gained fifth place.

HORSES SCRATCHED.—Mr. Pierre Lorillard has struck off their Spring engagements four of his horses—Attila, Vivien, and the two Leamington colts, now 3yrs. old, out of Ruthless and Relentless. Attila, who last year won the Travers Stakes at Saratoga, after a dead-heat with Acrobat, is scratched for the Monmouth Cup, Long Branch Stakes, and Jockey Club Purse at Monmouth Park; Vivien, who only ran once, and unsuccessfully, last season as a two-year-old, is struck out of the Withers and Ladies' Stakes at Jerome Park, Jersey Derby, Monmouth Oaks, Ocean Hotel, and West End Hotel Stakes, and the Robbins Stakes at Long Branch; the two Leamington colts, whose running qualities he had leased from Mr. Francis Morris, are struck out of all their engagements at the Jerome Park Spring Meeting.

VANDALITE AND LIMESTONE.—Vandalite, the famous winner of last year's Dixie Stakes, pulled up lame last week while taking her trial gallop over her owner's track in Woodford County, Ky. At first it was thought she had irretrievably broken down, but her owner is now in hopes that after a brief season of rest she will come out all right and recover her old form. She has been pretty heavily backed for the Westchester and Saratoga Cups this season. Mr. Hitchcock's Limestone, the famous hurdler, pulled up lame after running second to Tom Leathers in the last day's hurdle race at the recent meeting of the Louisiana Jockey Club at New Orleans. It is feared that the middle tendon of the leg has given way.

SALE OF THE PICKWICK STAKES WINNER.—Captain Cottrill of Mobile has sold to Mr. P. O. Minor of New Orleans his three-year-old chesnut filly Nannie F., by Daniel Boone, with all her engagements. This filly won the Pickwick Stakes at the recent meeting of the New Orleans Jockey Club, beating Mignon, Mainsail and Warfare. She is engaged in the Oleander Park and Gulf City Stakes at Galveston this week, and the Bruce Stakes at Nashville, Tenn.

THE BALTIMORE GRAND STEEPLECHASE POST STAKES closed on April 15 with the following subscribers: D. J. Bannatyne, A. P. Green, J. T. Blanchard, A. H. Torrance, A. D. Brown, O. Bowie and Joseph Donohue. The entrance is $50, h. f., with $875 added.

BASEBALL.

BOSTON vs. NEW HAVEN.

The regular professional championship season for 1875 was inaugurated on the 19th of April, on which day the first match game was played, the contestants being the champion Red Stockings of Boston and the new professional nine of the Elm City Club of New Haven. Last season the first game was played in Philadelphia, April 16, when the Athletics defeated the Philadelphias by a score of 14 to 5. Monday—Centennial day at Concord—was cold and raw in Boston; but so eager were the admirers of the game to witness the opening contest of the campaign that over a thousand spectators were gathered on the Union Grounds, Boston, to see their pet champions take the field in the first pennant contest of 1875. Though the field had been rolled, and sawdust had been freely used in wet places, and everything done to place it in playing condition, still the want of the sun's rays left it unfavorable for sharp fielding purposes. The New Havens won the toss, and sent the Bostons to the bat, play commencing at 3.12, with Fred Cone as umpire. The first inning resulted in both sides going out in one-two-three order. In the second, Spaulding and Leonard came home on passed balls; White was put out at first; Manning, Latham and Schafer made good base-hits, followed by a two-baser by Geo. Wright, which sent Manning home, and Latham came in on a passed ball, making four runs, while their opponents took a cipher. In the third inning, Barnes led off with a two-base hit, and got home on an error by McKelvey, the New Havens taking another cipher. Both clubs failed to score in the fourth inning, and the Bostons made one run in the fifth, which was the last made. The "Reds" showed up in excellent condition, and the disposition of the men was generally good. Latham covered first base almost faultlessly, and at the bat his record was nearly as good as the best. The New Haven players acquitted themselves creditably for a new organization. Sam Wright Jr., a brother of Harry Wright, fills the position of short stop of the Elm City Club very acceptably, and will doubtless become as famous as his two brothers. The score:

BOSTON.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.	ELM CITY.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.
G. Wright, s.s.	0	2	1	1	0	Geer, 2d b.	0	2	6	1	2
McVey, c. f.	0	1	1	0	0	S. Wright, s.s.	0	1	0	4	2
Barnes, 2d b.	2	2	2	5	1	Duff, r. f.	0	1	2	0	0
Spaulding, p.	1	2	1	4	0	Banker, c.	0	0	3	1	4
Leonard, l. f.	1	3	1	1	0	McKelvey, 3d b.	0	0	1	3	2
White, c.	0	2	7	2	2	Gould, 1st b.	0	0	11	0	0
Manning, r. f.	1	1	1	0	0	Ryan, l. f.	0	0	1	0	1
Latham, 1st b.	1	1	14	0	1	Tipper, c. f.	0	0	3	1	0
Schafer, 3d b.	0	0	0	2	1	Nichols, p.	0	2	0	8	4
Totals	6	13	27	14	5	Totals	0	6	27	19	15
Boston	0	0	4	1	0	0	0	0	1	0	—6
Elm City	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—0

Runs earned—Boston, 3; Elm City, 0. Passed balls—White, 2; Banker, 4. Umpire, Mr. Fred Cone. Time, 1h. 50m.

ST. LOUIS vs. LOUISVILLE OLYMPICS.

On April 19 the St. Louis "regulars," under Captain Pearce, invaded the little village of Louisville, wherein the noted Eagles have their nest, and before going for the gentle birds they began a little practice with some Olympic ball-tossers. From The Louisville Courier-Journal of April 20 we extract the following comments on the afternoon's proceedings on the 19th inst.: "The preparations made and care exhibited by the Olympic Club of Louisville since the close of '74's baseball campaign had led many people to suppose that this organization would depart with alacrity from its position as the third-best nine of Kentucky and walk to the forward rank, closing the battle with the championship banner proudly waving over their park. The game of yesterday plainly demonstrates that the Olympics have yet to labor and to learn ere they can win a higher position than was possessed by them last season. The nine is undoubtedly a good team, but does not work well; the lack of 'playing together,' and also of a proper understanding of each other's exact manner of fielding, being plainly observable. The opposing nine, the Brown Stockings of St. Louis, is a professional organization. It is composed of first-class players; men of experience and men who occupy front ranks in the baseball arena, having been prominent players for years. They all understand each other's movements in all respects. The Olympics won the toss and sent their opponents to the bat. The visitors handled the bat very lively during the first round, and by the 'scare' which our boys always manifest in the first inning or two were enabled to make nine runs. Elated by this, they whitewashed Louisville, and ended the initial inning 9 to 0 in their favor. The second, third and fourth innings passed swiftly away, increasing the St. Louis score and adding blanks to that of Louisville. Interest among the spectators now lessened, and the general verdict seemed to be an inglorious defeat for our boys. The remainder of the game was soon played, and nothing added to the Olympic tally, while the Browns increased theirs to twenty-six runs, ending the game with a hurrah for the St. Louis to the tune of 26 against 0, and a unanimous groan for Louisville. The Olympic nine had some good players, especially Brooks, Shaw and Ross, whose fine fielding attracted general attention, as did the excellent batting of Dyler, who only needed a good man to follow him to have made several runs. The weak points in the Louisville nine seemed to be at first and second bases and pitcher. The St. Louis team is a powerful one, and, if they had any weak points, failed to show them yesterday. The best playing was done by Chapman and Pearce. Score:

ST. LOUIS.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.		OLYMPIC.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.
Price, s. s.	3	0	1	4		Walsh, c.	0	0	5	1
Cuthbert, l. f.	2	1	0	0		Wright, 2d b.	0	0	1	0
Chapman, r. f.	2	2	4	0		Booth, p.	0	0	0	3
Pike, c. f.	1	1	0	0		Dyler, 1st b.	0	2	0	0
Bradley, p.	3	3	2	1		Burke, 3d b.	0	0	5	1
Dehlman, 1st b.	3	1	13	0		Graham, l. f.	0	1	10	0
Miller, c.	1	0	9	0		Ross, c. f.	0	0	1	4	1
Battin, 2d b.	4	3	1	2		Brookshaw, s. s.	0	0	2	0
Hague, 3d b.	3	1	1	2		Gault, r. f.	0	0	2	0
Totals	22	14	27	11		Totals	0	6	27	10
Bases on called balls—Bradley, 1. Left on bases—Olympic, 5; St. Louis, 7. Umpire, Mr. W. G. Osborne of Eagle Club.

The Louisville Eagle Grounds have been much improved and beautified. The ladies' stand has been enlarged and made quite comfortable, so that the ladies, in attending, will be conveniently provided for.

HARTFORD vs. FIELD.

The strong New England team of the Hartford Club took the field on April 20 in a regular practice match, "Nine vs. Field," and the, ground being in good condition, a well-played game was the result, as far as the nine were concerned, especially so considering the high chilly wind which prevailed. The Hartford Courant, in its report of the game, says: "Bond and Harbridge, with a strong nine picked from the spectators, were opposed to the regular nine, who had Robert Kellogg, a fine amateur player, in right field. The professionals proved conclusively that they will work well in their positions during the season. The ease with which they batted the swift and very effective delivery of Bond also speaks well for their batting ability, and the best of pitchers will have to use all their 'headwork' they have at command in order to prevent heavy and effective batting by the Hartford players; for, if they can hit Bond, there is little doubt that they can hit other pitchers with ease. But four base-hits were made on his pitching. The fielding throughout was fine, but the outfielders had nothing to do, with the exception of Remsen, who took two fly-balls very prettily. Ferguson at third, Carey at short, and Burdock at second did good work, though the latter made a bad 'snap-throw' to first, which gave a man a chance to secure second base. Allioch took several pretty foul-tips, threw well as ever to second base, and played his position finely. Harbridge, the change-catcher, did well, making two very difficult foul-tip catches. He throws well, and will undoubtedly prove a valuable member of the team. The best playing by the amateurs was done by Daniels at second and Maine at first. 'Old Reliable' Ev Mills played at first fastlessly, as he always does." The score:

HARTFORD.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.	FIELD.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.
Harbridge, c.	0	0	7	1	1	Allison, c.	0	1	5	12	2
Bond, p.	0	2	0	2	4	Burdock, 2d b.	3	2	2	2	3
Daniels, 2d b.	0	0	5	6	2	Carey, s. s.	3	2	0	4	0
Smith, l. f.	0	0	0	0	1	Cummings, p.	1	1	0	3	1
York, 1. f.	1	1	12	0	0	York, 1. f.	2	3	0	0	0
Crowley, 3d b.	0	1	1	3	4	Ferguson, 3d b.	3	1	1	1	0
Ramsey, s. s.	0	0	1	0	2	Remsen, c. f.	3	3	2	0	0
Conner, c. f.	0	0	1	0	1	Mills, 1st b.	3	10	0	0	0
Stivetts, r. f.	0	0	0	1	0	Kellogg, r. f.	3	1	0	0	0
Totals	1	4	27	14	23	Totals	24	21	27	11	6
Hartford	1	1	3	2	5	2	2	2	2	2	24
Field Nine	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	—1

Bases by errors—Hartford, 15; Field, 3. Struck out—Hartford 1; Field 1. Earned runs—Hartford, 1; Field, 0. Time of game, 1h. 50min.

The following games have been arranged by the Hartfords for their Southern trip:

May 20, Hartford vs. Atlantic, at Brooklyn.
May 21, Hartford vs. Mutual, at Brooklyn.
May 22, Hartford vs. Athletic, at Philadelphia.
May 24, Hartford vs. Philadelphia, at Philadelphia.
May 25, Hartford vs. Washington, at Washington.
May 26, Hartford vs. Washington, at Washington.
May 27, Hartford vs. Centennial, at Philadelphia.
May 28, Hartford vs. Athletic, at Philadelphia.
May 29, Hartford vs. Atlantic, at Brooklyn.
May 30, Hartford vs. Mutual, at Brooklyn.

THE HARTFORDS AT WORK.

The Hartfords are rapidly getting ready for their meetings with the strong nines, and in their opening practice games they have displayed a degree of skill fully up to the high standard anticipated. On April 20 they opened play against a field nine in which Bond pitched and Harbridge caught; but, unluckily for Bond, his general support was not up to the mark of that he had behind the bat, and though but one run was earned off his pitching, 26 were scored, while the field side could only secure a single unearned run off Cummings' delivery, the fine support given him being specially noteworthy. On the 22d the nine played another practice match, Bond this time changing places with Cummings. In this second match, while but one run was earned off Cummings and none off Bond, the total score stood at 13 to 3, the field side playing a strong game. The score:

HARTFORDS.	TB.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.	PICKED NINE.	TB.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.
Allison, c.	0	1	2	10	0	Cummings, p & l. f.	0	4	11	3
Burdock, 2d b.	6	4	3	4	3	Harbidge, c.	1	4	0	2	4
Carey, s. s.	5	2	1	4	1	Brady, 3d b.	4	0	1	4	1
Bond, p.	5	1	1	1	5	Daniels, 2d b.	4	0	0	2	1
York, l. f.	5	1	0	0	0	McKernan, l. f.	4	0	0	1	0
Ferguson, 3 b.	5	1	1	0	5	Lincoln, c. f.	4	1	2	2	0
Remsen, c. f.	5	2	2	0	0	McKennan, r. f.	3	0	0	0	0
Mills, 1st b.	5	1	2	11	0	Maine, 1st b.	3	1	1	10	0
"Cully," r. f.	5	0	0	0	0	Bloom'ghd, s. s.	3	0	0	4	4
Totals	47	13	12	27	17	6	Totals	33	3	6	27
Hartfords	1	0	4	1	0	1	2	1	1	2—13
Picked Nine	0	0	0	0	0	2	1	0	0	0—3

First base by errors—Hartfords, 9; Picked Nine, 1. Runs earned—Hartfords, 1; Picked Nine, 0. Umpire, Mr. McCann of the Hartford Amateurs. Time of game, 1h. 45m. Played Wednesday, April 21, on Hartford's grounds.

COLLEGIANS vs. SOLDIERS.

The ball season "'way down in Alabam'" was opened recently by a game between the nine composed of soldiers belonging to Co. E, Seventh Cavalry, and the College Club at Opelika. The students won by the appended score:

COLLEGE NINE.	R.	GRAY HORSE NINE.	R.
Cooper, c.	2	Kluts, 2d b.	2
Bailey, p.	3	McDougall, s. s.	2
Fowler, 1st b.	3	McPeak, 1st b.	3
Carlisle, 2d b.	6	Lange, l. f.	2
Settles, 3d b.	3	Williams, p.	2
Hanson, s. s.	3	Vansant, 3d b.	1
Holifield, c. f.	4	Howard, c.	3
Carlisle, r. f.	2	McClure, r. f.	0
Wordlow, l. f.	4	Torrey, c. f.	2
Total	29	Total	18

College	7	0	8	0	0	0	6	1	7—29
Gray Horse	3	1	2	3	0	0	6	0	3—18

Fly-catches—Carlisle, 1; McDougall, 1; Williams, 2. Umpire, John S. Ogden. Scorer, Geo. C. Brown.

THE NINE of the Lowell Club will be composed of the following-named good players: Brown (captain), Rule, Enright, Cook, Wentworth, White, Doyle, Fox, and Woodhead.

MUTUAL vs. FIELD.

On April 23 the Mutuals found the weather fine enough to take the field again for practice on the Capitoline Grounds, on which occasion they played a strong field-team, composed of Blodget, McGrath, and Hayes of the Arlingtons, Roche and Metcalfe of the Chelseas, Boyd and Clack of the Atlantics, and Clinton and Shevlin of the Reliances. Blodget pitched with excellent effect, but one run being earned off his pitching. McGrath showed excellent play at first base, and Shevlin at short field, Metcalfe also doing service. Boyd made some long throws in from centre field. The Mutuals went into the game so strong in fielding that it looked at one time as if they would "Chicago" their opponents; but a lucky hit of Metcalfe's broke the ice, and the field-party finally got in a couple of runs. They kept the Mutual score down, except in the sixth inning, when they got into a batting "streak," after escaping a whitewash. The score below gives the figures:

FIELD.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.	MUTUAL.	R.	I.B.	P.O.	A.	E.
Metcalf, s.s.	1	2	5	3	3	Hicks, c.	2	2	9	2	1
Clinton, 3d b.	0	0	1	2	2	Mathews, p.	0	1	2	4	3
Sherlin, 2d b.	0	0	5	6	2	Start, 1st b.	3	1	7	0	0
Boyd, c. f.	0	2	0	0	1	Nelson, 2d b.	2	1	3	3	0
Roche, c.	0	1	3	2	1	Gerhardt, 3d b.	2	3	2	3	1
Blodget, p.	0	1	0	3	0	Holdsw'h, s.s.	3	4	0	1	1
Mcgrath, 1st b.	1	1	12	0	1	Gedney, l. f.	3	2	1	0	0
Clack, c. f.	0	0	1	0	0	McGee, c. f.	2	2	2	0	0
Hayes, r. f.	0	0	0	0	0	Booth, r. f.	1	2	0	0	0
Totals	2	7	27	14	13	Totals	19	16	27	12	6
Field	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	—2
Mutual	0	1	2	1	0	12	3	0	0	0	—19

First base by errors—Field, 2; Mutual, 12. Runs earned—Field, 0; Mutual, 1. Umpire, Mr. Chadwick. Time of game, 1h. 30m.

LIVE OAK vs. BEACON.

These clubs, respectively of Lynn and Boston, Mass., played a match for the former place April 19, the home nine winning by the score given below:

LIVE OAK.	R.	I.B.	T.B.	P.O.	A.	E.	BEACON.	R.	I.B.	T.B.	P.O.	A.	E.
S. Hawkes, as.	2	0	0	2	8	1	Lamb, c. f.	0	1	1	0	0	0
Whitney, 1f.	3	2	2	1	0	0	Briggs, 1 f.	0	0	0	2	1	0
Madden, 3d b.	3	2	2	2	0	2	Crider, s. s.	1	0	0	2	2	1
Niven, 1st b.	2	3	4	10	0	1	Lloyd, 3d b.	1	1	1	4	2	3
S. Record, r f.	3	2	2	0	0	0	Sumner, r f.	1	1	2	1	1	1
McGlynn, c.	3	1	1	7	4	0	Moore, 2d b.	1	0	0	2	3	2
White, p.	0	0	0	0	0	1	Cotting, c.	0	2	2	2	1	1
C. Hawkes, c f.	0	1	1	1	0	1	Beals, p.	0	2	2	3	2	1
Cashman, 2 b f.	1	1	1	3	1	1	Elliott, 1st b.	0	0	0	10	0	2
Totals	17	12	14	27	13	11	Totals	4	7	7	27	12	12
Live Oak	4	7	0	0	2	0	0	4	0	4	0—17
Beacon	0	0	0	1	0	2	1	0	0	0	0—4

Umpire, Mr. Beals, Boston Club. Time, 2h.

A HINT TO PROFESSIONALS.

Professional clubs who purpose visiting Louisville this season will do well to read the following communication:

LOUISVILLE, April 14, 1875.

FRANK QUEEN, EDITOR NEW YORK CLIPPER.—My object in addressing this communication to you is to ascertain, through your columns, if they are worthy of your consideration, request a reply. Being an ardent admirer of the game of baseball, I have tried to be present at all the games played here in which professional clubs participated, commencing by witnessing the game between the National Club of Washington, D. C., and Louisville, years ago, and ending with the Philadelphia vs. Eagle, last season; and I can truly say that in all the games played here during this period, in which professional clubs were engaged, their style of play was exactly the same, they neither doing their best nor their worst playing. If their object was simply to give an exhibition of fine batting and catching, it was a success, but in every other way a palpable failure. Four-fifths of the outs (by the local club) in these games were by strikes and fouls, which is too great a disproportion, giving no chance to display the chief beauty of the game, viz., the in and outfielding. Professional clubs or their managers seemed to forget that the spectators paid for admission, and the whole desire is to see the nine perform, and not merely two of their players. In fact, when by chance the ball was batted past the pitcher, the other players didn't seem to care much whether they fielded it or not. This was the case in all the games, with one notable exception, viz., that between the Philadelphia and Eagle. In this game the Eagles were only allowed to score one run, while their opponents made twenty-five. The Pearls played a good game at every point, both in the field and at the bat; and, to the spectators, it was the most interesting game of the season. Should the Philadelphia Club visit Louisville this season, they deserve to attract a larger attendance than any other professional club, as the spectators last year gave them the credit of trying to play to please them, instead of their opponents. They have, however, in common with all other professional clubs, made one great mistake, viz., they forgot they were playing amateurs, and not professionals. Professional clubs (when here) should always commence with their best pitcher and catcher, and, after the spectators have been regaled with about four innings of strikes, outs, ties and fouls, they should send in their medium-paced pitcher. This would at least obviate the necessity of our boys striking out. In fact, I think they might hit some of the balls which would give the baseemen and fielders an opportunity to get the game and distinguish themselves. It would at least keep them from standing grinning at their pitcher and catcher, while they do all the playing. The admirers of the game here will no longer be satisfied with paying to witness games where an amateur score from six to ten runs on the best of professional clubs, nor will they be satisfied with seeing men play when they cannot tell how many fingers are before them, or whether there are one or two balls in motion. I have noticed that some of the players of clubs which visited Louisville last season always endeavored to bat the ball to a good soft place, so as to be put out as quickly as possible, and resume their pleasant occupation of riding a bat, or (I may be thankful they did it to keep from delaying the game. If this was their idea, it was a very commendable one. But if they try it this season there will not be quite so many to pay to look at them. Now, Mr. Editor, I desire to ask who are the managers of professional clubs on their tours? And whether, when playing amateur clubs, they cannot arrange to let someone beside the pitcher and catcher do some playing? If so, I trust that the communication may at least be the means of calling the attention of club managers to the views of a large number of votaries of the game here. Yours very respectfully, PARIS M. CRANE.

ST. LOUIS GOSSIP.

In a communication to THE CLIPPER, the writer, under date of St. Louis, Mo., April 18, says:

The St. Louis professionals have had quite a good week of practice. They played the Empires a practice game on the 16th, and defeated them without any trouble by a score of 25 to 1. Miller and Bradley are winning a host of admirers by their clock-work playing. The whole twelve are, in fact, thought much of, and great confidence is reposed in them. There seems to be no doubt in the minds of all here that the boys will make it warm for all who come in contact with them, particularly Keokuk and Chicago. The boys and a few friends left for Louisville on the eve of the 16th. They play there April 19, 20, and 21, with the Eagles and Olympics of that city. The St. Louis nine appeared on the field in the Empire game with their new uniform, consisting of a light-blue t-shirt, with the words St. Louis across the breast, and a little light-brown trimming around the neck, white knee-pants, brown hose, and a white cap. The taste displayed in its make-up was much admired. The grounds are being fitted up with new stands, fences, etc., which will make them, when completed, the best in the country. Chas. Swasey has returned to town last week. He plays with the Reds, and has been training them the past week. The St. Louis professionals beat the Cricketers at their own game on the 16th. Score, 87 to 67. Alex. Davidson, manager of the Mutual Club of New York, was in town last week, making telegraphic arrangements for his pool-business. Mack, formerly of the Philadelphias, arrived in town last week from New Orleans. He will probably play with the Reds or Empires. The weather there is delightful for playing.

Yours, etc., MACK.

THE FLYAWAYS.—On April 22 the Flyaways of this city played their opening game with the club's junior nine at Melrose. The amateur nine were short four of their best players, and they had all they could do to beat the junior nine. The latter is composed of a fine set of young players, and the way they scooped up the hot grounders and captured difficult fly-balls astonished the big fellows of the THEATRICAL RECORD.

Movements, Business, and Incidents of the Theatrical, Circus, Musical, and Minstrel Professions.

THE CLIPPER POST-OFFICE.

☞ A STARRED ENTRY plainly addressed, must be inclosed for each and every letter, and the line of business followed by the party addressed should be given, in order to prevent mistakes.

Letters received for week ending 5 P. M., MONDAY, April 26.

LADIES' LIST.

Arnett, (actress) Jennie
Alexander, Laura (of Janauschek Co.)
Andrews, Lillian Arnett, Minnie
Avery, Carrie (3)
Allen, Mrs. D. R.
Adams, Mrs. Edwin
Alexandre, Ada
Augustus, Emma Angell, Lottie
Boshell, Louise
Bain, Rosa (2) 10c.
Barrett, Mrs. Julia
Budworth, Mrs. Jas H.
Bartlett, Belle (of Keller's Co.)
Bolger, Mrs. Kate
Brevoort, Kate
Baker, Minnie
Burke, Nellie M.
Brooks, Kittie
Bohme, Ida
Chanfrau, Mrs. F. S.
Cushman, Charlotte
Chapman, Julia
Chancy, Ellen
Coventry, Mrs.
Julia S.
Chambers, Gussie
Clifton, Emma
Coombs, Jane 3c.
Carey, Annie
Louise
Cornforth, Mrs. H.
Clifton, Bella
Craven, Carrie
Cotton, Mrs. Mary
De Brent, Amy
Deschon, Sabre
De Brent, Sallie
De Mar, Mollie
De Witt, Lottie M.
Esmond, Ella
Forepaugh, Adam
Fitzhugh, Geo. B.
Fyffe, C. J.
Forbes, (manager)
Gaston, Isaac
Gilkins, Charles
Berger
Manager of Batchelder, J. W. (manager)
Bidaux, Gustave (2)
Bergen, Mrs.
Bernard, A.
Budworth, J. H.
Berry, Cash
Breedlove, S. P.
Bowers, G.
Barton, Joe (vocalist)
Buckley's Hippo., Mallory, Geo. F. (2)
Blanchard, Harry
Barcus, J. C.
Bassett, Chas. M.
Burke, John, Jr.
Brown, Chas. J.
Burdeau, W. H.
Baldwin, Harry S.
Byers, Alex. (late of Galveston)
Bryant, W. (of Scott & Bryant)
Barclay, Geo. Lifford
Bradam, Harry (comed.)
Brown, Geo. W.
Brown, H. (of H. & Carr's Co.)
Barrett, C. (song-and-dance)
Bray, Walter
Brennan, R. A.
Barnum, P. T.
Baldy, (of Haight's Cir.)
Bell, Frank (song and-dance)
Boyd, C. (of Price's Minst.)
Buckley, G. Swaine
Bell, (of Queen's Cir.)
Bernardo, Bernie
Brimmer, L. (banjoist)
Blaisdell, W. B.
Charles, Geo. W.
Cooper, Mr. & Mrs.
Coleman, F. R.
Connors, W. (circus "biz")
Canfield, M.
Capola, Sig. A.
Carter, Billy (banjoist)
Capranio, G. (of Ristori's Co.)
Clark, Cy.
Case, Thos. Ilc.
Clarke, H. (with McGill & Strong)
Cooper, C. T.
Colby, Geo. W.
Cobb, Willis
Carner, J. W.
Colville, Saml.
Crofutt, E. P.
Cook, Mr. V. (2)
Cole, S. (of Cole's Cir.)
Carey, W. H. (of Washburn's Show)
Cody, W. F. ("Buffalo Bill")
Cooper, N. H. (of Gilbert Sisters)
Craven, Isaac
Chapelle, Jas.
Cook, H. (of Morrow's Cir.) 10c.
Cook, Geo. (of Murray's Cir.)
Cowles, M. B.
Coleman, W. (advance manag.)
Corwin, Mr.
Dwyer, W. H. (concert "biz")
Davis, C. (son of J. L. Davis)
Dunbar, Geo. W.
D'Ormer, Mons. (sword "biz") 13c.
Delaney, W. (musician)
Davenport, R. G. (gymnast)
Davis, Arthur (Irish comed.)
Dittman, Chas. H. (2)
Denier, Jno.
Dodge, Ben
Dawson, Tom
Durham, Saml. (circus "biz")
De Haven, Claude
Durand, Chas. (ventriloquist)
P. T. Barnum
Derious, Geo. (rider)
Dupree, Chas. H. (2)
Durand, "Dick" (banjoist)
Durand, A. P.
Dobson, Frank P.
Dunlack, L. (scenic artist)
Downie, John
Drum, Chas. (circus "biz") 10c.
Devere, Charlie
Edwards, W. F.
Edwards, Chas. G.
Edwards, W. G.
Elder, Matt
Edwards, Robt. (circus "biz")
Eddie, Jack
Elsman, Emil
Edwards, C. (musician "biz")
Eunice, Wm.
Emerson & Clarke
Eckart, Prof. Jno.
Florence, Geo.
Ferman, Ed.
Fulton, Chandos
Friesl Bros. Comp.
Flannigan, E. (of Jno. Rob. Cir.)
Forepaugh, Adam
Frothingham, Geo. B.
Fyffe, C. J.
Forbes, (manager)

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

Francis, Lu-lu (scenic com.)
Fuller, Blanche
Foy, Bertha
Grinnell, Mrs. Addie
Gilsey, Ida
Gorenflo, Amelia
Gracie, Mlle.
Graham, Mrs. Nelson
Gilbert, Katie (of Gilb. Sist.)
Gaugain, Marie
Halpine, Kate (2)
Holman, Mrs. H.
Hermann, Mrs. A.
Howard, Nellie (jig-dancer)
Howitt, Belle
Howard, Gussie
Herbert, Carrie (2)
Hussey, Mrs. Frank
Jourdan, Alecia
Lewis, Maude
Leslie, Jennie (vocalist)
Lander, Mrs. Genl.
Lamont, Ada
Lenton, Mrs. H.
"Little Della"
Lotta" (2)
Lockwood, Mrs. Celia
Lilly, Lizzie
Lee, Jennie
Lawrence, Ada
Langdon, May
Laurent, Ada
Loder, Minnie
La Rue, Ella (banjoist)
Lind, Ida Rohme 10c.
Mortimer, Lu-lu
Markley, Emma
Malmburg, W. V.
Morris, A. W.
McGill, W. (of Mirror of Ire.) (2)
Milner, J. K.
McGowan, G. (of Wildman's Co.)
Mack, J. H. (minst. "biz")
Manchester & Jennings
Mooney, Thos. (jig-dancer)
Mimic "biz")
Norton, Jos.
Noyes, Chas. W.
Nash, John
Newby, Dr. Jas. H.
Piaff, Conrad
Paul, W. M.
Peak Family B. B. Manag.
Pease, Harry
Phillips, Harry
Pullman Bros. (2)
Phillips, Gus
("Goofy Goof")
Price, Wally
Phillips, Granville
Plunkett, Sr., Chas.
Phillips, Saml. S.
Price, Mr. & Mrs. Chas.
Prime, Prof. C. A.
Pierce, Frank M.
Pierce, John
Powers, J. (of Mel. Mag. Co.)
Pickert, W. (clogdist)
Prentice, Chas. F.
Robinson, Sam. (of Robinson's Cir.)
Rosario Bros. 3
Mlle. Alice
Rice, Dan (manager)
Ruelig, R.
Ryan, Sam E.
Reynolds, M. (of Indianapolis)
Russell, Jas. (musician)
Richards, Prof. (mind-b.)
Raynor, Harry
Rogers, Loraine
Rubini, Carl
Rehlly, Michael K.
Rosenbaum, E.
Robinson, Harry
Rickards, Harry (2)
&c.
Rippey, Jos.
Rivolia, Frank
Relton, Jas.
Rother, Hughe
Sheehan, J. (of Sheehan & Jones)
Sanford, J. (gymnast)
Snow, Ben M.
Stutz, J. G.
Sheppard, P.
Seeley, Chas.
Schilling, Wm. P.
Stewart, S. S.
Spencer, Lew
Sheppards, Harry
Sweeney, Jno. F.
Smith, (of Smith & Waldron)
Smith, D. H. (of Dup. & Bened.)
Scott, A. R.
Sayics, Jno. W.
Snow Bros.
Shepard, W.
St. Ormond, H. L.
Sterling, Jno. S.
Sands, F. D. ("Schacknasty Jim")
Southwell, Geo.
Spiers, Jno. H. 11c.
Sparks, Wm. (of Bishop's Serena.)
Stone, Wm. (of Boston)
Sanford, J. (of Marionette Co.)
Smith, R. (scenic artist)
Shelley, W. (of Janauschek Co.)
Tyrrell, R. T.
Thompson, Den
Tyler, Geo. H.
Throckmorton, H. D.
Trigonne, Mr. 10c.
Thompey, W. J.
That, M. (of Martinette Co.)
Tayleure, C. W. (2)
Tyler, J. S. (late of Bar's Op.-ho.)
Taylor, Jas. (comiquer) (2)
Turner, Ned (com.)
Unsworth, "Sammy"
Van Delft, Mr. (2)
Victorelli, Jno.
Williams, W. W. (leader) (3)
Warden, Ed. Adams
Winship, Geo.
Wyman, Al.
Wambold, Ned
Withers, Reuben
Wilson, G. (of Harrigan & Hart)
Washburn, E. S.
Ware, Geo.
Warren, Jas. L.
Woodfield, W. H.
Woodnick "Nic"
Weber, H. Price
Wyatt, W. S.
Wachtel, M. V. B.
Worthington, D. W.
Wells, R. (changed artist)
Window, R. R.
Weldon, G. H.
Williams, Nicholas O.
Williams, W. D.
Washburn, Leon
Whitney, John (2)
Wilton, Ed. (circus "biz")
Wells, W.
Waldron, Geo. B.
Woodson, Harry
Wilson, J. (of Robinson's Cir.)
Wingfield, J. (gymnast)
Whitney, J. (song-and-dance)
Young, Chas. W.
Yeager, (of Washb'n's Show.)
Zebold, Geo. W.
Zellner, Xavier

THERE ARE LETTERS in the Detroit (Mich.) post-office addressed Howard Clayton, Howard Clifton, vocalist; J. Gorton of N. O. Minst.; Prof. Seward of Jubilee Singers. W. Miles, late of Rice's Circus, and agent of Soldene Opera Company.

LETTERS FOR THE FOLLOWING PROFESSIONALS are at the Erie (Pa.) post-office: H. R. Abbey, manager (2), and Adelaide Stewart of Deburg's Company.

INTRODUCTORY OVERTURE.

MONDAY, April 26, '75.

THE ANNIVERSARY of the birthday of Shakespeare has been permitted to pass without recognition of the occasion by the "legitimists" of this city. In fact, but little attention has been given to it anywhere in this country. We are ashamed of ourselves for this disregard of the claims of the "immortal" bard of Avon who, were he to appear among us, materialized by the sweet Holmeses or by the gentle Eddies, would read us an appropriate lecture from his own most approved good works. The 23d of April has come and gone, and but for the reminder by that genial journal, THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, but very few persons would have given a thought to the natal day of the world's greatest poet. The "mighty press, that great lever that moves the world," and that is forever reminding us of our great love for the drama pure and undefiled; the pulpit, in which the works of William are held up as silent admonitions to an erring world; the bar, the bench; yea, even the Grand Duke's Opera-house, have all ignored the fact that such a man as W. Shakespeare ever existed, and have permitted the anniversary of his natal day to pass unnoticed. When William first saw the light of day, in an obscure tenement, "the midwife wondered and the women cried"—[Excuse us, this passage has reference to one of Shakespeare's creations, yea, even to Gloster, of crooked-backed tyrant renown; but when we make reference to the bard we are always apt to mingle his works with his never-to-be-forgotten name.—ED. CLIP.] That Shaky poached on his neighbor's preserves should not be urged against him at this late day, when similar charges are made against the very elect, as it were, else why this Brooklyn scandal? we should like to know. Again—because Billy grubbed checks at the entrances to the theatres, is he to be denied the civil rights that we guarantee to all men? Is his poverty to be held up as a crime? Gadzooks, no; a thousand times no—otherwise Lexington and Concord fought and bled in vain. Furthermore, it is charged that Shakespeare never wrote Shakespeare, that the grand moral lessons inculcated in that grand book were the offspring of one Bacon. "Now hung be the heavens with black" when such a perfidious claim can find supporters in this age of reason and flow of soul! The midnight fiends who would thus seek to rob the poet of his name, steal that which is not his'n, but makes him poor indeed, or something like that. We would rather be a toad, and live on lizards and scorpions' tongues, than try to deprive the lamented Bill of his well-earned fame; but these ghouls, these vampyres, to put it mildly, will not be able to save their Bacon by defamation, cruelty and slander. No doubt these essays of Bacon had their origin in Connecticut! [This is a mild rebuke to the savans of that city, whose fame rests on her hogs.—ED. CLIP.] O! William Shakespeare, William Shakespeare, better hadst thou been born with a grindstone around thy neck than to have lived and learned of the ingratitude of thy countrymen. Peroration: And when the last lingering silver threads tint the gold as the sun makes its last stand beyond the vast waters of the teeming West; when the rifts in the clouds shall be riven, letting sunlight in where shadows fear to tread; when a world in arms shall stand on the confines of eternity, and behold Bismarck and his legions holding in check the cohorts of beleagured Belgium; when the Appian Way shall be strewn with the corpses of those who have fallen in the great crusade of Brooklyn, and Tiltonism and Henriwardism shall lie together after life's fitful fever is o'er; when Comptroller Green shall be ousted from his golden rule, and W. Tweed shall emerge from Blackwell's slimy vaults; then, O then, W. Shakespeare, shall thy deeds be recorded in scrolls of living green, and thy name be placed high in archambient glory, with colored fires and slow music to light and waft thee to "realms of eternal bliss!" . . . And this concord of sweet sounds reminds us of the sweet sounds of Concord one hundred years ago, when the ploughshare was turned into swords, the pruning-hook into spears, and the hoe into seven-barreled revolvers. We can scarcely recall the events of that distant period, for they flashed upon us like a plate of turkey hash at a free lunch, and left their impress there. With the kind permission of our readers, we will let ourselves out in grateful strains:

CENTENNIALISMS.

On the 19th day of April, in that nattiest of towns,
With the bands of music playing—'twas a Concord of sweet sounds;
In days of revolution militia soldiers stood
To fight malicious soldiers for Uncle Samuel's good:
They gave a shot heard round the world to all the world in view,
For though the town was Concord, it wasn't conquered, too!

. . . . . Let it be stated that on Saturday night, April 24, and early Sabbath morning, April 25, 1875, a furious snow-storm raged in the metropolis, and gentle Spring was once more chased out of sight. Recorded! . . . . . Time makes all things even. When Lydia Thompson and her beautiful fiends were slandered by The Chicago Times, the lovely ones did not imagine that revenge would be so swift and sure as it has been. Last week one of his victims got up Early in the morning, had Wilbur tried for libel, and a gallinaceous snow-storm raged in the metropolis, and gentle Spring was once more chased out of sight. Recorded! . . . . . Time makes all things even. When Lydia Thompson and her beautiful fiends were slandered by The Chicago Times, the lovely ones did not imagine that revenge would be so swift and sure as it has been. Last week one of his victims got up Early in the morning, had Wilbur tried for libel, and a gallant lady awarded the Early bird twenty-five thousand dollars damages! And Alice Early is her name. Alas! "the old, old Storey!" . . . It is quite proper that, in these centennial times, Josh Hart should name his new theatre "The Eagle;" because, imprimis, of his flight upward, and because people will flock there by Eagles; and, possibly, because he hopes to feather his nest by it; also, that, being a national name, the nation all will desire to be present. We should qualify our remarks, however, by saying that, after all, the name is a matter of a pinion! . . . . . The most noteworthy event in theatrical circles this week is the Bryant Testimonial, to take place at our various theatres and halls on Thursday afternoon, April 29. It promises to be a "Big Bonanza" if all things work together for good as we trust they will, notwithstanding managers "under distinguished patronage." We have been informed that the fund gathered by the managerial combination will not be permitted to be diverted from its original purpose, viz: the support of the family of the deceased. The entire receipts are to be so given, the combination-managers liquidating all expenses themselves. Every benefit will be under distinguished patronage—born of the heart-felt sympathies of the people at large. . . . . The Majilons sailed for Europe on Saturday last, per steamship Egypt. And now that they are "gone from our gaze like a beautiful dream," an indignant correspondent, whose overtures have been rejected by the charmer of the unbending trio [No, James; he was not a musician], says that Marie may jilt on as much as she pleases, but "no more for him." Should he refused next month by a second cruel deceiver, we suppose he would call him Joe, a May jiltin'! . . . Now here is something "new and novel"—at Robinson Hall, for fifty cents, you can enjoy "Two Hours in Paradise." No other paper has the news . . . . . Is Bouciault going to the bad? or what is the matter? In Sunday's Herald he announced that he would appear that week as Conn at the Boston Theatre. Pity for Boston! . . . . . "King Henry V" has been deposed at Booth's Theatre by Miss Neilson, who begins her farewells to America this evening, in "Amy Robsart," in which she robes art so skilfully that "tis taken for nature. "Mine graciousness, is dot so-a!" "I bees you." The pure German dialect spoken at this office, and no extra charge for reserved seats.—ED.] But talking of Amy, 'twere only amiable to express a wish to see Amy able to fill the house, and give the noble commander Tooker a "rest" from his ingenious advertising labors. Amy, not that kind of army. Tillotson has had that honor for defying a civil-rights colored brother. And in this connection we are authorised to give an unqualified contradiction to the silly rumor that the protesting colored man is to be initiated into the new Order of the Golden Fleece when the case comes up for a hearing. . . . . The full strength of the Lawrence Barrett Comique are to be seen "In the Tombs" this week! Great excitement! Hundreds turned away unable to gain admittance . . . . . Wallack's Theatre was frightfully deserted last week, and the stock looked chapfallen as they gazed upon the empty seats before them. When the dog star faded from our view, the audiences faded, too; and it will take a dog star or two to bring them back. Sadness! A few lines of well-intentioned poetry may not be lost upon

JOHN!

You found "The Road to Ruin"
When first you turned your head
From all your father's precepts,
And tried your own, instead;
The path, perchance, looked tempting,
Bestrewn with leaves and Moss,
But, John, it was the road to ruin,
You'll rue it-deed your loss.

. . . . . It's strange but true that a horse is a knowing animal; but would you think that the animal drinks more on one day than on another? Eh? Well, it does, and that's when it's Thursday! [Owing to the extreme length of the bill, our friends will please to bear in mind that no act can be repeated.—ED. CLIP.] And, speaking of Thursday, let no one forget Thursday of this week, when the Bryant Testimonial takes place. Of our regard for Dan and those he has left behind him, let us make Thursday's testimonial a day of remembrance. We are in receipt of a friend asked Jeems "What Kin's Harry Watkins to Charley Watkins?" And the boy sensibly replied: "What kin I know about it?" . . . . . Donaldson the acronaut doesn't want to cross the ocean. The other day he went up in a balloon at Philadelphia, and he was having a pleasant time of it as the gentle zephyrs carried him over Smith's Island in the Delaware, and far inland among the Jersey pines. There the zephyrs began to increase a-pace, and the aerial ship went along a-kiting. W. H. was in raptures of delight as he gazed down upon the desert sands and jungles of Jersey. Presently the wind blew somewhat nifty, a trifle rebellious, and the farther into the bowels of the air he got, the more gallus grew the gale. Then the wily seaman of the main scented the ocean afar off, and his bowels did grow disturbed thereat, and he fain would alight; but there was no place to alight in sight but the sea, and on and on, on, like a Wandering Jew, until he got real skeered, and sighed for the pleasures of home and all it held dear, but he was still wafted. Now, this sort of thing becomes monotonous when an aerial gymnast has enough of it, and so it was with W. H. Donaldson, Esq. He tried to jibe her, but she wouldn't mind her helm. He fancied he heard the breakers roar that washed the beach at Barnegat, and he commenced to take in a reaf in his 't'gallantsil, but damn his tarry toplights if she minded it a bit; then he looked about him for an anchorage, but the pines were still under him, and the ocean before him. "Stands to reason I can't drop anchor!" Norbeoreast—two p'ints. This buoyed him up a little, but he found it necessary to throw over the deck-load, for the anchor wouldn't hold, and the trees were shivering his timbers and splitting his sails at every plunge. She rose like a phœnix! Saved! "Avast there, me hearties! Let go all!" And the anchor was dropped in sixty feet of wind, and it caught! But it was a struggle between the Jersey pines and the balloon; and, just as the balloon was about jerking out a big pine tree, W. H. cut the netting, let the ship go to sea herself, while he fell a distance of many feet to the soft sands below. It was a narrow escape, and the aeronaut thinks less of ocean trips than he has done before. The balloon is on her way across the ocean, and ought to be off the Irish coast by this time if the gas held out.

CITY SUMMARY.

"HENRY V" was withdrawn from the stage of Booth's Theatre on April 24, after a run of eleven successive weeks. An extra matinee was given on Thursday afternoon. The attendance during the past week was large. Miss Adelaide Neilson is to begin an engagement of two weeks' duration on April 24. "Amy Robsart" will be the first attraction, and in it Frederick B. Warde will make his reappearance since Jan 1. Studley and Miss Ida Vernon their first appearance here.

MARGARET MALMBURG died in this city March 31, on which day she was 59 years of age. She was the mother of G. W. Malmburg, an actor now performing at the Sea Breeze Varieties, Pensacola, Fla., and of W. T. Malmburg, likewise an actor, now performing in the West. Her funeral took place from the late residence No. 136 Rivington street, on April 2 and her remains were interred in Calvary Cemetery.

OLIVER DODD BYRON acted during the past week at Wood's Museum at the evening performances and Wednesday and Saturday matinees in "Donald McKay." At the matinee on Monday Louis Aldrich received a benefit, when Frank Mayo and E. F. Thorne voluntarily appeared, and "The Marble Heart" and "Yankee Jack" were performed. On Friday afternoon Charles Sturges had a benefit, when Alice Harrison, Belle Howitt and numerous other volunteers appeared. "Nimble Jim" was acted at the other matinees.

AN INJUNCTION DENIED.—Messrs. De Fontaine, Leech and Denity, who recently made application before Judge Shipman of the United States Circuit Court for an injunction to restrain W. B. Freligh of the Bowery Theatre from using the title of the play "Around the World in Eighty Days," were denied their petition.

GUSTAVE BIDEAUX arrived from France April 20, after an absence of two years. He has retired from the profession, and comes hither to visit his old friends and acquaintances.

CHARLES MACKAY'S HIBERNICON and Emerald Comedy Company closed their season at Robinson Hall, which has proved very successful, on April 24.

EDWARD KELLY and Francis Leon, the well-known minstrels, arrived in the city from Chicago, Ill., during the past week.

THERE HAS BEEN NO FALLING-OFF in the large attendance at the Union-square Theatre, and the performances of "The Two Orphans" continue to be as enjoyable as ever.

"DAVY CROCKETT," with Frank Mayo in the leading role, continued the attraction at the Park Theatre during the expired week. The announcement "Last Nights" served to increase the attendance somewhat. The present will be the last week of Mr. Mayo's engagement.

THERE WERE NO ADDITIONS to the company at the Bowery Opera-house during the past week. Harry Kennedy the ventriloquist is deserving of special mention on account of the great improvement which he has made in his entertainment since his last appearance in this city. He now uses puppets representing a little boy, a negro, an old gentleman, and an old lady. He imitates at least five distinct voices, and during his entire performances keeps his face, which is clean-shaven, squarely towards his audience. Attendance good.

THE ONLY CHANGE at the San Francisco Minstrels since our last report has been the singing of "Lost in the Wide World," by Carl Rudolph in the first part. "The Spelling Match" continues a feature. The attendance has been good.

ADELAIDE MAPP, twin daughter of Manager William B. Freligh and Henrietta, his wife, died on Thursday, April 22, at the age of 3 years and 11 months. The funeral took place from her parents' residence, 243 East Forty-first street, on Sunday, a half-past one o'clock.

SHERIDAN SHOOK was presented by his wife on Thursday morning, April 22, with a son and heir. All is serene

"Bryant's Little One."

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

Oh papa! I tum home, I feel, O! so bad—
Mama is tyin', and sister's so sad;
Dey say 'oo is gone, and will tum 'nat no more,
But I tink dey is fooling, so I'se watchin' de door.

Oh, papa! tum home—what teeps you so long?
I'se waitin' and waitin' to hear that nice song.
Oh! it's such a long time since I see 'oo afore—
Won't you tum? I'se sood by, whenever 'oo tood. L. S.

Papa, dey brought a long box, 'tudder day,
And put it in there, where 'oo used to lay;
Dey said 'oo was in it, but dat wasn't true,
'Cause 'oo didn't sing like 'oo used to do.

Well, I'se tired now, an' I'se doin' to s'eep,
But I'll teep one eye open, like little "bo-peep."
I know 'oo'll tum bat, 'cause 'oo said dat 'oo would—
An 'oo always tept 'oo word, whenever 'oo tood. L. S.

THE BRYANT FUND.—A meeting of the associated managers of this city for the purpose of completing the arrangements for the benefit of the late Dan Bryant's family was held at the Union-square Theatre on Monday afternoon, April 19. Lester Wallack presided and A. M. Palmer acted as secretary. A letter was read from Augustin Daly, notifying the managers that he would give a special performance at the Fifth-avenue Theatre on Wednesday afternoon, April 28, and that he would receive at their face value the admission tickets sold for the general benefit. The performances to be given will be found described in our advertising columns. It may be worthy of remark that in "Ticket-of-leave-man" the following person will perform the characters originally acted by them when this drama was first produced in America at the Winter Garden in this city Nov. 30, 1863—W. J. Florence, Bob Brierly; Vining Bowers, Green Jones; T. J. Hind, Mr. Gibson; T. E. Morris, Mr. Willoughby. The original representatives of Jem Dalton, (A. H. Davenport) and Melter Moss, (Humphey Bland) are dead, and the impersonator of Hawkshaw (J. F. Hogan) has retired from the stage. A meeting of representatives of the press was held at Wallack's Theatre on Monday afternoon, April 19. William Winter was called to the chair and Charles Chamberlain Jr., was elected secretary. On motion of Mr. Joseph Howard the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That, having learned of the sudden and untimely death of Mr. Dan Bryant, and the further fact that his family are left without adequate pecuniary reliance, and remembering the rare gifts and many popular and artistic graces of the friend whose memory we respect and whose death we mourn, and recognizing the signal propriety of the movement initiated by Mr. Bryant's fellow-managers, it is hereby

Resolved, That the press of New York heartily sympathize with the endeavor of the managers to aid Mr. Bryant's family by a series of benefit performances, and will do all in their sphere to further and enhance the same.

Resolved, That we tender our cordial sympathy to Mr. Bryant's family, and our hearty cooperation to the management.

Resolved, That the press . . . . . is hereby consented to lend their influence to the success of the arrangements and will accordingly give such notices of the several performances as may be deemed necessary.

C. A. Wells were appointed a committee to consider the expediency of arranging a supplementary benefit to overtop the Union-square affair, to be made upon an evening hereafter to be named. At a second meeting, held on Friday afternoon, the committee made a report detailing the success that had attended their efforts. Particulars concerning this benefit will not be made public until after the others are over; but we may remark that it will be upon a grand scale, and will probably surpass any entertainment hitherto given in any theatre, both in the nature and number of the attractions and the people at large. . . . . The Majilons sailed for Europe on Saturday last, per steamship Egypt. And now that they are "gone from our gaze like a beautiful dream," an indignant correspondent, whose overtures have been rejected by the charmer of the unbending trio [No, James; he was not a musician], says that Marie may jilt on as much as she pleases, but "no more for him." Should he be refused next month by a second cruel deceiver, we suppose he would call him Joe, a May jiltin'! . . . Now here is something "new and novel"—at Robinson Hall, for fifty cents, you can enjoy "Two Hours in Paradise." No other paper has the news . . . . . Is Bouciault going to the bad? or what is the matter? In Sunday's Herald he announced that he would appear that week as Conn at the Boston Theatre. Pity for Boston! . . . . . "King Henry V" has been deposed at Booth's Theatre by Miss Neilson, who begins her farewells to America this evening, in "Amy Robsart," in which she robes art so skilfully that "tis taken for nature. "Mine graciousness, is dot so-a!" "I bees you." The pure German dialect spoken at this office, and no extra charge for reserved seats.—ED.] But talking of Amy, 'twere only amiable to express a wish to see Amy able to fill the house, and give the noble commander Tooker a "rest" from his ingenious advertising labors. Amy, not that kind of army. Tillotson has had that honor for defying a civil-rights colored brother. And in this connection we are authorised to give an unqualified contradiction to the silly rumor that the protesting colored man is to be initiated into the new Order of the Golden Fleece when the case comes up for a hearing. . . . . The full strength of the Lawrence Barrett Comique are to be seen "In the Tombs" this week! Great excitement! Hundreds turned away unable to gain admittance . . . . . Wallack's Theatre was frightfully deserted last week, and the stock looked chapfallen as they gazed upon the empty seats before them. When the dog star faded from our view, the audiences faded, too; and it will take a dog star or two to bring them back. Sadness! A few lines of well-intentioned poetry may not be lost upon

JOHN!

You found "The Road to Ruin"
When first you turned your head
From all your father's precepts,
And tried your own, instead;
The path, perchance, looked tempting,
Bestrewn with leaves and Moss,
But, John, it was the road to ruin,
You'll rue it-deed your loss.

. . . . . It's strange but true that a horse is a knowing animal; but would you think that the animal drinks more on one day than on another? Eh? Well, it does, and that's when it's Thursday! [Owing to the extreme length of the bill, our friends will please to bear in mind that no act can be repeated.—ED. CLIP.] And, speaking of Thursday, let no one forget Thursday of this week, when the Bryant Testimonial takes place. Of our regard for Dan and those he has left behind him, let us make Thursday's testimonial a day of remembrance. We are in receipt of a friend asked Jeems "What Kin's Harry Watkins to Charley Watkins?" And the boy sensibly replied: "What kin I know about it?" . . . . . Donaldson the acronaut doesn't want to cross the ocean. The other day he went up in a balloon at Philadelphia, and he was having a pleasant time of it as the gentle zephyrs carried him over Smith's Island in the Delaware, and far inland among the Jersey pines. There the zephyrs began to increase a-pace, and the aerial ship went along a-kiting. W. H. was in raptures of delight as he gazed down upon the desert sands and jungles of Jersey. Presently the wind blew somewhat nifty, a trifle rebellious, and the farther into the bowels of the air he got, the more gallus grew the gale. Then the wily seaman of the main scented the ocean afar off, and his bowels did grow disturbed thereat, and he fain would alight; but there was no place to alight in sight but the sea, and on and on, on, like a Wandering Jew, until he got real skeered, and sighed for the pleasures of home and all it held dear, but he was still wafted. Now, this sort of thing becomes monotonous when an aerial gymnast has enough of it, and so it was with W. H. Donaldson, Esq. He tried to jibe her, but she wouldn't mind her helm. He fancied he heard the breakers roar that washed the beach at Barnegat, and he commenced to take in a reaf in his 't'gallantsil, but damn his tarry toplights if she minded it a bit; then he looked about him for an anchorage, but the pines were still under him, and the ocean before him. "Stands to reason I can't drop anchor!" Norbeoreast—two p'ints. This buoyed him up a little, but he found it necessary to throw over the deck-load, for the anchor wouldn't hold, and the trees were shivering his timbers and splitting his sails at every plunge. She rose like a phœnix! Saved! "Avast there, me hearties! Let go all!" And the anchor was dropped in sixty feet of wind, and it caught! But it was a struggle between the Jersey pines and the balloon; and, just as the balloon was about jerking out a big pine tree, W. H. cut the netting, let the ship go to sea herself, while he fell a distance of many feet to the soft sands below. It was a narrow escape, and the aeronaut thinks less of ocean trips than he has done before. The balloon is on her way across the ocean, and ought to be off the Irish coast by this time if the gas held out.

CITY SUMMARY.

"HENRY V" was withdrawn from the stage of Booth's Theatre on April 24, after a run of eleven successive weeks. An extra matinee was given on Thursday afternoon. The attendance during the past week was large. Miss Adelaide Neilson is to begin an engagement of two weeks' duration on April 24. "Amy Robsart" will be the first attraction, and in it Frederick B. Warde will make his reappearance since Jan 1. Studley and Miss Ida Vernon their first appearance here.

MARGARET MALMBURG died in this city March 31, on which day she was 59 years of age. She was the mother of G. W. Malmburg, an actor now performing at the Sea Breeze Varieties, Pensacola, Fla., and of W. T. Malmburg, likewise an actor, now performing in the West. Her funeral took place from the late residence No. 136 Rivington street, on April 2 and her remains were interred in Calvary Cemetery.

OLIVER DODD BYRON acted during the past week at Wood's Museum at the evening performances and Wednesday and Saturday matinees in "Donald McKay." At the matinee on Monday Louis Aldrich received a benefit, when Frank Mayo and E. F. Thorne voluntarily appeared, and "The Marble Heart" and "Yankee Jack" were performed. On Friday afternoon Charles Sturges had a benefit, when Alice Harrison, Belle Howitt and numerous other volunteers appeared. "Nimble Jim" was acted at the other matinees.

AN INJUNCTION DENIED.—Messrs. De Fontaine, Leech and Denity, who recently made application before Judge Shipman of the United States Circuit Court for an injunction to restrain W. B. Freligh of the Bowery Theatre from using the title of the play "Around the World in Eighty Days," were denied their petition.

GUSTAVE BIDEAUX arrived from France April 20, after an absence of two years. He has retired from the profession, and comes hither to visit his old friends and acquaintances.

CHARLES MACKAY'S HIBERNICON and Emerald Comedy Company closed their season at Robinson Hall, which has proved very successful, on April 24.

EDWARD KELLY and Francis Leon, the well-known minstrels, arrived in the city from Chicago, Ill., during the past week.

THERE HAS BEEN NO FALLING-OFF in the large attendance at the Union-square Theatre, and the performances of "The Two Orphans" continue to be as enjoyable as ever.

"DAVY CROCKETT," with Frank Mayo in the leading role, continued the attraction at the Park Theatre during the expired week. The announcement "Last Nights" served to increase the attendance somewhat. The present will be the last week of Mr. Mayo's engagement.

THERE WERE NO ADDITIONS to the company at the Bowery Opera-house during the past week. Harry Kennedy the ventriloquist is deserving of special mention on account of the great improvement which he has made in his entertainment since his last appearance in this city. He now uses puppets representing a little boy, a negro, an old gentleman, and an old lady. He imitates at least five distinct voices, and during his entire performances keeps his face, which is clean-shaven, squarely towards his audience. Attendance good.

THE ONLY CHANGE at the San Francisco Minstrels since our last report has been the singing of "Lost in the Wide World," by Carl Rudolph in the first part. "The Spelling Match" continues a feature. The attendance has been good.

ADELAIDE MAPP, twin daughter of Manager William B. Freligh and Henrietta, his wife, died on Thursday, April 22, at the age of 3 years and 11 months. The funeral took place from her parents' residence, 243 East Forty-first street, on Sunday, a half-past one o'clock.

SHERIDAN SHOOK was presented by his wife on Thursday morning, April 22, with a son and heir. All is serene

MUSICAL NOTES.—Lina Mayr vocalized as Fantasca in Strauss' opera of "Indige" at the Germania Theatre on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and as the Twin Sisters in "Girofle-Girofla" on Friday, appearing also in the dual role of the same opera at Adolph Neuendorff's complimentary benefit at the Academy of Music on Thursday evening. . . . . Fred Bergner, who deservedly occupies the first rank in this country as a violoncellist, gave his annual concert at Steinway Hall on Monday evening, April 19, the attractive programme including among its many excellent features a quartet for violoncellos and some admirable vocalizations, and afforded Mr. Bergner an opportunity of fully displaying his ability as a 'cellist. . . . . The Linda Gilbert Concert at the Hippodrome on Tuesday evening, in aid of the Gilbert Library and Prisoners' Relief Fund, proved the reverse of the success that was anticipated, the attendance being light, and the excellent artists who took part being placed at a decided disadvantage by the miserable acoustic effect of this immense building. The programme was an admirable one, and would have proved elsewhere, with the artists engaged in its interpretation, a most enjoyable bill. The expenses exceeded the receipts by more than $3,000. . . . . At the twenty-third grand organ concert of the Church of the Holy Trinity on Wednesday afternoon, April 21, S. P. Warren and Miss Josephine T. Losee were the organists, and Adolph Bohst, basso, vocalized. . . . . The debut of the young American singer Mlle. Mohalbi in "Ernani," announced to take place on Wednesday at the Academy of Music, was postponed owing to the severe illness of the lady, who is billed for Wednesday evening of this week. . . . . At the vocal and instrumental concert at the Madison-avenue Reformed Church on Thursday, Miss Clementine Lasar, the well-known cantatrice, and others rendered an interesting programme. . . . . The accomplished composer and pianist Robert Goldbeck gave a concert at Steinway Hall on Friday evening, he being assisted in the recitals, consisting mainly of his own compositions from his own works, by some of our best concert talent, including Miss Henrietta Beebe and Mrs. W. N. Oliver, soprani; Miss Finch, contralto; Mr. C. G. Bush, alto; Messrs Nilsen and Rockwood, tenori; Beckett, baritone; Mr. Aiken, bass; and a string quartet, comprising Messrs. Brandt, Schwarz, Berger and Bartels. . . . . Mme. Anna Bishop and a number of our most capable artists took part in the complimentary concert given by the St. Mark's Literary Society to one of its members, at the Historical Society Hall, on Friday evening. . . . . The last public rehearsal of the Philharmonic Society took place at the Academy of Music on Friday afternoon, the full programme of the concert on Saturday evening being given. The interesting feature of the recital was the successful appearance of the young American pianist Miss Julia Rive, who rendered Liszt's concerto in E flat, with orchestral accompaniment, and a WILTON NOBLES has been playing to crowded houses at Hooley's Opera-house, Brooklyn, L. I., during the second week of his engagement, appearing in "The Lancashire Lass" 19, 20, "Jim Bludsoe" 21, 22, "Blackeyed Susan" and "Nick of the Woods" 23, 24. Miss Minnie Oscar Gray, W. H. Brent, G. A. Henderson, Miss Ida and Louise Forrester are worthy of favorable mention. John Thompson commences an engagement on 26 in "On Hand," which will be given every evening during the week and matinees Wednesday (the first time) and Saturday.....At Mrs. F. B. Conway's Theatre "The Two Orphans" has more than realized the manager's expectations. M. A. Kennedy and A. H. Hastings terminated their engagement with this theatre on April 24. They soon leave for San Francisco, Cal., where they have a year's engagement to fulfill. J. Z. Little takes Mr. Kennedy's place as Pierre the cripple, and M. W. Leffingwell has been engaged to personate Jacques in the place of Mr. Hastings. Mr. Kennedy is to be the recipient of a grand complimentary farewell testimonial tendered by Mayor Hunter, Hon. Thos. Kinsella, and other citizens of Brooklyn, at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, April 30.....At Mrs. Conway's Theatre there will be an extra matinee April 29, given by the Brooklyn Theatre and Col. Wm. E. Sinn's Park Theatre Companies, for the benefit of the family of the late Dan Bryant. Tickets issued by the managers of the New York Theatres will be received on this occasion.

SARGENT'S ATHENÆUM, Columbus, O., closed for the season April 21. The winding-up was devoted to benedits. F. D. Allen and Phil Sager, treasurer, were the recipients 19, the former appearing in "Don Cæsar De Bazan," and the latter singing "Old Black Joe" in character, and in a very creditable manner. W. S. Davis followed with a benefit 20, and the Francis Sisters 21, the latter having the largest house of the week.....At the Opera-house, H. B. Curtis of the Athenæum company was tendered a complimentary benefit April 24, supported by amateurs and Mr. J. R. Grismer of the Grand Opera-house, Cincinnati. Advices of April 23.

MRS. ROUSBY appeared at the Opera-house at Hartford, Ct., April 19, as Lady Elizabeth in "Twixt Axe and Crown" to a good house.....A portion of Daly's Fifth-avenue Theatre Company produced "The Big Bonanza" 23 to a large and fashionable audience.....Bessie Darling is announced for May 3, 4, in "Lucretia Borgia" and "The Hunchback."

THE BELLA GOLDEN TROUPE, who performed at Gonococcus, Ind., April 22, 23, 24, will amuse the public of Crawfordsville this week. J. T. Eagle joined the company at Evansville. On April 19, P. J. Wade the comedian and Miss Lottie Rainford, juvenile lady, were married at Vincennes, by the Rev. Father Contin.

ROLLIN HOWARD, in his plays of "Bafiled," "The Stubborn Juror," "Charlotte Temple," and "Sunlight Through the Mist," is open for engagements after May 15. All communications should be sent to the address published in his card elsewhere. His route is Tarrytown, N. Y., April 26, Peekskill, 27, Saugerties 28, Hudson 29, Amsterdam 30, Utica May 1.

JAMES ZIMMERMAN, the late popular treasurer of Niblo's Garden, who was reported as having been found recently at Richmond, Ind., hopelessly insane, we are happy to state, was only afflicted with a slight stroke of paralysis, which affected his speech. He is in Philadelphia, Pa., and is rapidly recovering.

AT FORD'S OPERA-HOUSE, Washington, D. C., Buffalo Bill and Kit Carson Jr., assisted by Mr. Thomas L. Graham, an excellent Irish comedian, and supported by the regular company, appeared in "The Scouts of the Prairie," and "Life on the Border," during the past week, attracting a moderate attendance. The plays were nicely mounted and effectively played. Hermann the prestidigitateur commences a week's engagement April 26.....Mme. Adelaide Ristori and company appear at the National Theatre three nights, commencing April 26, presenting "Elisabetta," "Marie Antoinette," "Lucrezia Borgia," and the sleep-walking scene from "Macbeth."

SAM HEMPLE and the stock company of the Arch-street Theatre, Philadelphia, performed at the Grand Opera-house, Harrisburg, Pa., on April 22, 23 and 24.

MISS LILLIE ELDRIDGE and the Union-square Theatre Combination are to perform "Two Orphans" at Worcester, Mass., April 26, Lowell 27, Lawrence 28, Portland, Me., 29, 30, May 1.

AT THE GRAND OPERA-HOUSE, Toronto, Ont., "The Shaughraun" has attracted fine audiences during the expired week. Mr. McDowell as Conn was easy and natural in a character that would tempt one of less experience to exaggeration. The piece was judiciously cast, Mrs. Morrison as Claire Ffolliott, Mr. Couldock as Father Doolan, and the Corry Kinchilla of Mr. Sambrook, which was a capital conception, were the best-acted parts. Some attractive scenery was introduced in the sensation scene in the revolving gate-tower scene, and St. Bridget's Abbey by moonlight. April 26, Mrs. Rousby opens in "Twixt Axe and Crown.".....At the Royal Opera-house benefits have been in order during the week; Geo. Barton's on Tuesday evening being largely attended; Allan Hallett took his benefit under patronage of Lieut.-governor Crawford on Friday. It proved a substantial addition to his coffers. Letter of April 23.

MESSRS. SHOOK & PALMER of the Union-square Theatre, through their representative, Hart Jackson, during the past week, appeared in Syracuse, N. Y., to procure injunction against N. C. Forrester, restraining him from further performing or causing to be performed the drama of "The Two Orphans." The papers were served upon Mr. Forrester at Ogdensburg, and the hearing as to whether the injunction shall be made perpetual or not is to take place in New York City on Wednesday, April 28.

MRS. ISABELLA PHILLIPS, an excellent actress, who was last engaged with the Fanny B. Price Combination, is now said to be an inmate of an insane asylum at Indianapolis, Ind.

G. L. FOX'S "HUMPTY DUMPTY" COMPANY are to show this week in Cincinnati, O., Indianapolis, Ind., May 3, 4, 5, Louisville, Ky., 6, St. Louis, Mo., 7, 8, to continue the week; Chicago, Ill., one week, beginning 17. The Spauldings—W. P. and Georgie Dean—rejoined the party at Pittsburg, Pa. Mons. Grossi, ballet master, and La Petite Gabrielle, performer on musical glasses, etc., joined the company at Erie.

JOHN T. RAYMOND will play at the Varieties, New Orleans, early next season.

BAKER AND FARRON, supported by their own company, gave two performances and matinee at the Richmond, Va., Theatre, April 23 and 24, to fair business. The company left Norfolk for Richmond thence to Petersburg, where they will disband for the season.

W. C. POPE advertises for a few good people to travel in Canada.

OLIVER LOGAN will make a Summer tour through Canada, commencing the middle of May, and managers of theatres or halls desiring to arrange dates can address as per advertisement.

MRS. G. C. HOWARD and a dramatic company were in Wheeling, W. Va., April 20, 21, and will be at Erie, Pa., 29.

TO CORRECT IT, we reprint the following paragraph, which is going the rounds of the public press:

The remains of Ada Isaacs Menken the actress, which are lying in the vaults of the Pere la Chaise, will be removed, according to the rules of the cemetery, if the five years' lease, which soon expires, is not renewed.

The facts in the case are as follows: The late Ada Isaacs Menken the poet-actress died in Paris, France, Aug. 10, 1868, in the age of 29 years. Her remains were temporarily interred in the cemetery Pere La Chaise; but on April 21, 1869, they were exhumed and reinterred in the cemetery Mont Parnasse, where, by the agreement then perfected, they are to repose for all time. A monument now marks the spot.

MUSICAL.

LEAVITT'S SWISS BELLRINGERS TROUPE No 1, with the Batchelder Sisters, vocalists, and Jas. R. Field, humorist, performed at Manchester, O., April 19, Greensburg 20, Greentown 21, Uniontown 22, Marlboro 23, Deerfield 24, Ravenna 25, Canfield 26, Poland 27, Lowellville 28, Pulaski, Pa., 29, Middlesex 30, Hubbard, O., May 1, Girard 3, Vienna 4, Brookfield 5, Sharpsville 6. Prof. J. Early of Kalamazoo, Mich., solo-pianist, joined the troupe at Jerome, Mich.

A LIST of some of the latest music published by Pond & Co., including "Happy Little Flip-flaps," "Mother, is the Old Home Lonely?" "While the Silver Tints the Gold," "Flowret, I Kiss Thee," and others, with prices, can be found published elsewhere.

H. C. PFAFF, clarionet and alto player, advertises for an engagement.

CHAS. KONOLLMAN'S New York Society Songster, containing the popular songs of the day, can be obtained by addressing as per card.

THE LATEST SONGS, at 10c. per copy, can be obtained at Harding's, 220 Bowery, opposite Prince street. See his list in card elsewhere.

ROACH'S CHAMPION SONGSTER, containing a large number of songs and twenty pages of music, can be obtained as per address elsewhere.

FRED C. LEPPERT, clarionet player, is engaged at Barton Opera-house, Syracuse, N. Y.

J. H. SULLIVAN, leader, cornet, composer and arranger, advertises for an engagement.

THE EMPIRE CITY BAND, which is reorganizing for the tenting season, can be engaged by applying to W. L. Bowron, leader, who advertises.

THE KELLOGG ENGLISH-OPERA TROUPE sang at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, Md., April 22, 23, and at matinee 24. Their repertoire embraced "Martha," "The Talisman" and "The Bohemian Girl." Mrs. Lizzie Annandale of Baltimore made her debut in opera as Nancy in "Martha," and was very successful. Route: Philadelphia, Pa., 26, Newark, N. J., 27, 28, Brooklyn, N. Y., 29, Albany 30, May 1.

THE CENTENNIAL JUBILEE SINGERS announce a concert at the Maryland Institute, Baltimore, Md., on April 30.

TEN MUSICIANS and two lady vocalists are wanted for a bellringing troupe by "Manager," whose address is care of this office.

PHIL P. KEIL, pianist, advertises that he is at liberty to engage.

THE KELLOGG ENGLISH-OPERA TROUPE gave nights of opera at the National Theatre, Washington, D. C., April 19, 20, 21, presenting "Ernani," "Mignon" and "The Talisman." An immense audience was in attendance to witness the first representation of "The Talisman." The opera has many excellent scenic effects and beautiful situations. The music, generally, however, is cumbersome and heavy to the ear. The costumes and stage appointments were very fine. Miss Kellogg, Miss Beaumont and Mr. Carleton were in excellent voice. Mr. Maas, however, carried off the honors. He has wonderfully improved in his acting. The same may be said of Mr. Carleton.

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, Philadelphia, a matinee on the 22d of April was given a concert by Mr. Hermann's military band of the Centennial Musical Association, being the first of a series of three. The attendance was but moderate.

THE AMERICAN QUARTET and Batchelor Combination gave a concert at Concert Hall, Philadelphia, on April 19.

FRANK A. CONLY'S annual benefit concert will be given at Concert Hall, Philadelphia, on the 3d of May. "GIROFLE GIROFLA" will be given at the Arch-street Theatre, Philadelphia, during the week ending May 1 by Miss Lina Mayr and her German Opera-bouffe company.

GILMORE'S 22D REGIMENT BAND will give a series of promenade concerts at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, commencing May 10. Miss Emma C. Thursby, soprano, will also appear at these concerts.

MLLE. AIMEE and troupe will play a farewell engagement of one week in Philadelphia, at the Arch-street Theatre commencing May 3, with the production of "La Jolie Parfumeuse."

MISS EDNA MARKLEY of St. Louis, Mo., is at present completing a course of vocal and dramatic instruction under the guidance of Sig. Vallo in Philadelphia, in preparatory to her debut upon the operatic boards.

CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG and her English-opera company have tendered Manager C. D. Hess a complimentary benefit, which will take place at the Academy of Music April 29. "Mignon" has been selected as the opera to be given.

W. W. PUTNAM, who advertises, wants to engage musicians—tuba, alto, tenor and cornet-player.

"BAMBI-EYED LOU," song-and-dance, is published by Roe Stephens of Detroit, Mich., who will mail it on receipt of price.

MAUM (AAS' BURLESQUE-OPERA COMPANY is to perform at Reading, Pa., May 1, and G. H. Van Wormer, business-manager, will then leave the company.

F. W. HELMICK, music publisher, Cincinnati, O., advertises several new songs, which he will mail on receipt of price.

THE KELLOGG ENGLISH-OPERA COMPANY is to sing at Newark, N. J., April 27, 28.

THE WILKINSON JUVENILE SINGERS sang at Scranton, Pa., April 23. Wilkesbarre 24. Route: Back to Scranton 26, Brooklyn 27, to continue one week.

THE BERGER FAMILY gave their musical entertainment at Port Huron, Mich., April 16, 17, Sarnia, Canada, 19, St. Mary's 20, Bratford 21, 22, Guelph 23, 24. Route: London 26, 27, St. Catharines 28, 29, Hamilton 30, May 1, and their season of forty weeks closes at Toronto, May 8. During their recent tour through Kentucky they are reported to have met with extraordinary success, turning people away almost every night, and the following press notices seem to verify the statement:

THE BERGER FAMILY.—This well-known and popular troupe gave one of their concerts in this city last Thursday evening. The hall was crowded with a fashionable audience, and the performance was superior to anything of the kind ever seen in this city. The high character of the ladies and gentlemen of the Berger Troupe is a sufficient guarantee that their programme embraces nothing that is not chaste and refined.—Maysville (Ky.) Bulletin, April 8.

The ever-popular Berger Family and their unrivaled music brought out an immense audience last night. Miss Anna is a marvel of musical talent, and her masterly execution on the cornet is truly artistic. * * They will ever be welcome.—Daily Independent, Richmond, Ind., April 13.

THE BERGER FAMILY.—This troupe gave one of their elegant entertainments at the Opera-house last Tuesday. They draw the largest houses known to the profession. The vocal and instrumental music is of the highest order, and the entire concert one of the best ever presented to a Piqua audience.—Piqua Journal, April 8.

THE NORTH CAROLINIANS, colored vocalists, are thus noticed in The St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer:

The Opera-house was well filled to listen to those genuine colored singers, and but few were prepared to listen to an entertainment excelling the "Tennesseeans." Yet it must be admitted the North Carolinians bear away the palm.

VARIETY HALLS.

AT THE METROPOLITAN, Newark, N. J., the attractions the past week have been numerous. Ida Morton and La Belle Paulina in their dual dances and vocalisms have met with well-merited applause. The Ventini Pantomime Troupe have no need of comment, as their performances are always good. James Luprotil of this troupe, while doing a single trapeze act on the evening of April 20, fell from the bar to the floor, at least fifteen feet, but escaped with only a few bruises. Fred J. Mackley continues to please. Departures 24: Ida Morton and La Belle Paulina, to Albany. To open 26: the Warren Sisters—Dollie and Bessie—and Carrie Wall..... From the Odeon the departures 24 were the Lillian Sisters to Col. Winn's, Brooklyn, and Lester and Allen to Olympic, N. Y. Announced for 26: Mlle. Lottie, Mlle. Leah, Frank Angel, Frank Jones and John Peasly.....At the Palace Music Hall biz has been good. The singing of Mr. Hirst is better than the average, and Mlle. Rosetta receives her share of the encores, to which she is justly entitled. Thatcher and Mack in their old-time plantation sketches, Sallie St. Clair in songs and dances, Annie Mack in fancy dances, and James Radcliffe, general performer. Charley Howard has lost none of his old-time popularity, and was accorded a most genial welcome. The departures 24 were Johnny Hamilton, Mlle. Henriette, and Annie Mack. The announcements for 26 are Joe Coburn, George Rooke, Frank Cushman, Sallie Adams, and La Belle Pauline. The Cancan continues to be a feature. Advices of April 25.

AT WARD'S OPERA-HOUSE, East Saginaw, Mich., the first week in Paris, April 19 were Mlle. Annetta and Gus Peters. Closing 24: the Love Sisters and Petre Goalla, to Detroit. Underlined for 26, Maggie Clair and Josie Austin. Business moderate, owing, in a measure, to counter-attractions.

IDA WALLACE, who was known in private life as Mrs. Annie Childs, died at Toledo, O., April 20, at 8 A. M. She was the wife of Joe Childs, the stage-manager at the Theatre Comique in that city. Her maiden name was Annie Carr, and she had been in the circus and variety business for a number of years. She was with the first circus-party that crossed the plains, and later had been playing successful engagements as a dancer, and many of the variety theatres of the East. She was taken sick while playing in the South, and had been steadily failing for the past eleven weeks. She had formed many friends at Toledo, and her demise will be keenly felt. She was born in New York Jan. 25, 1848, and was buried in Toledo April 22, general agent, leaving a husband to mourn his early departure.

THE ARRIVALS at the Theatre Comique, Cleveland, O., on April 19 were Harry Eagan, Jennie Eagan and Josie Farron, who, by the way, are great favorites, and they fully sustained the good reputation they have heretofore acquired. The funniest feature of the entertainment was the prestidigitation of Harry Eagan, assisted by B. C. Hart. Jennie Eagan's skipping-rope dance was artistic and nightly recalled. The Hofer Family close 24, going to the Adelphi, Chicago. Miss Minnie Rainforth lays off one week at Nashville, Tenn., thence opening at Pittsburg, May 3, Julia Davenport goes to Toledo 26; Will C. Burton to Grand Rapids same date, to take an interest in a Variety Theatre. Underlined for the 26th are Frank Bell, J. R. Campbell, May Franks, the Brandt Sisters, Carrie Watson, Alice Bateman and Emeline De Witt. Manager Montpelier will sail for Europe from New York, 26, and has leased his Opera-house for three months to Messrs B. C. Hart and John Kellackey, they taking possession May 3. Letter of April 23.

THE ATTENDANCE at the Adelphi, Peoria, Ill., continues unabated. Lew and Alfie Hallett came to time as previously announced, and met with an enthusiastic reception. As an end-man, and for his wooden-shoe specialty, Mr. H. fully sustained the reputation that had preceded him, while Miss Alfie Hallett in her trapeze and flying rings held the audience spellbound by her daring and graceful performances. Kirk and Drew, both re-engaged for another week. The departures April 24 were Scott and Patti Rosa to Burlington, and Gussie Keating to Looney's, St. Louis. Mr. Bucklin has been superseded by Mr. Ransom, as stage-manager.

AT THE METROPOLITAN, Indianapolis, Ind., the attendance improved some during the past week. The new people on April 19 were Flora McDonald, who, owing to a severe cold, has been able to sing but once; Lizzie Lagrange, who does an excellent jig; Hays and Edgel, who are very clever song-and-dance men; Hall and Kennedy, who do a rough-and-tumble song-and-dance, which is fair. Underlined for 26: Goss and Fox, Dunbar and Montanio. Departures 25: Ada Carlyle and Frank Lee to Louisville, Hall and Kennedy to Cincinnati, and Hays and Edgel to Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harris returned from Baltimore, their child having recovered.

NO CHANGES occurred in the company at the Theatre Comique, Providence, R. I., the past week. The departures 24 were Bob Scott and Patti Rosa to Philadelphia, William Ashcroft and Kittie Brooke to Boston, the Kine Brothers to Baltimore, James Roach to Syracuse, and Cotton and Birdue to New York. The following open 26: John T. Kelly, Ben Gilfoil, Joseph Norton, Foley and Wade, Blanch Selwyn and Jennie Sothern .....Tony Pastor's troupe appeared at the Academy of Music 23, 24, to large houses.....Manager Stalker takes a benefit at the same place.

AT THE COMIQUE, Toledo, O., the new arrivals April 19 were Bryant and Williams and Mlle. Zittella. Annie Arnette was announced, but failed to arrive. Bryant and Williams are very funny in their songs-and-dances. Mlle. Zittella is a pretty and handsome-formed blonde, with a clear, powerful voice, well controlled. She re-opens in Detroit May 3. Bryant and Williams close 24, as also Jessie and Mattie Taylor, who go to Bloomington, Ill. The Henri Family, Lewis Parker, Paulina Parker, and the Barlow Bros. open 26.

AT THE ADELPHI, Wilmington, Del., Miss Butler, Agnes Sutherland, and J. Mulligan were the fresh appearances of the past week. Nellie Nelson and Frank Grayton left April 24. For the 26th, Laura Graham, Lou Edwards, W. Florence, Add Ringler, and Minnie De Kalb are announced.....From the Seventh-street Opera-house Billy and Maggie Ray, and Billy Johnson departed to Baltimore 24. Clara May, Thomas Murray, and Mlle. Henrietta are billed for the 26th.

LADY VOCALISTS, dancers and other variety performers, also ballet dancers, are wanted at the Avenue Theatre, Washington, D. C. Address Geo. W. Bauer, as per advertisement.

MONS. RIVOLTA, the boy Sampson and iron-jaw artist, desires engagements. His address can be found published elsewhere.

SHERIDAN AND MACK, the well-known character duettists, celebrated on April 19 the eleventh anniversary of their copartnership, which was formed on that date in 1864.

THE WAITE SISTERS, burlesque and pecialty artists, are at present performing at the Theatre Comique, Providence, R. I., where managers can address them.

LITTLE TOMMY FISH the child cornet-player, the "Merry" Austins, and a company are to perform at New Milford, Ct., April 28, Falls Village 29, Great Barrington, Mass., 30, West Stockbridge May 1. C. A. Pratt is the agent, and J. H. Hall the assistant.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., variety news to April 23 is thus given by our correspondent: "The Theatre Comique has had good business this week. The company is very large, 'The Black Crook' party of Palmer & Co. being the feature, through which ran the olio, without any new faces. Billy Carroll, Dutch comedian, was heavily billed. He arrived, rehearsed and left, without notice to manager. Departures 24: Prof. Fox, Burton Stanley, James Douglas, Ifferd Sisters, El Nino Eddie, Worden and Mack, Martinetti, Marian Howard, Leon Brothers and 'The Black Crook' company, to Cincinnati. Underlined for 25: O'Reardon, pianist; Jee Brothers; Langlois Brothers, jugglers; and N. D. Roberts' 'Jack and Jill' Pantomime Troupe. Burton Stanley and the Weston Sisters sail Saturday, May 15, for London.....Business at Deagle's has been good. The new arrivals are Wayne and Lovely, who in their acrobatic song-and-dances have made a hit, and have perceptibly swelled the business of the house. B. J. McLaughlin, after an absence of nearly a year, has been added to the stock. Departures 20: C. C. Jordan, without notice; 24, Lewis and Paulina Parker, to Toledo, O.....Esher's business has been satisfactory. Johnny Max, Dutch comedian, put in a fresh appearance, and was good. The friends of Johnny presented him, April 16, with a $100 gold medal, appropriately inscribed, through Jacques Kruger.....Departure 22: Millie Estelle, retired from the stage; residence this city."

LADY ARTISTS and first-class variety stars are wanted at the Canterbury Varieties, Buffalo, N. Y. Address as per advertisement.

THE GAIETY THEATRE, New Orleans, La., continues a popular resort for the lovers of variety business. The new appearances April 19 were Miss Mollie Somers, John Smith and Miss Lizzie Stemple, all good and well appreciated in their respective lines.

STUART'S LAST SENSATION, under the management of Miller & Anderson, with Harry Colwell in advance, left Columbus, O., April 19, by canal, and played to good business at Lockburn. After doing the towns of the Hocking Canal, they will return and exhibit in Columbus May 1.

LEON WASHBURN'S GREAT MORAL SHOW opens in St. John, N. B., April 26, for one week, then goes to Halifax, N. S., one week, Quebec, P. Q., one week. Mr. Chappelle, the general agent, informs us that business was very good with this company in Maine, which State they have just left.

HARRY DIAMOND, the Irish boy, was the only appearance at Tooker's Varieties, Norfolk, Va., April 19.

MISS LAVARD, song-and-dance artist, whose address is published elsewhere, is at liberty to negotiate for engagements.

KELLEY AND DEMPSEY, song-and-dance and specialty artists, advertise their address in another column.

THE ROSPOTT OPERA-HOUSE, N. Y., opens to-night, April 26, for the season, under the proprietorship of Harry Hart and James Johnson. Variety talent desiring engagements are requested to communicate with Walter Bray, stage-manager, as per card.

CHARLES C. ORMS died in Philadelphia, Pa., April 17, of consumption, in the 24th year of his age. He was not a professional, but was a brother of Sam Orme, stage-manager of the Varieties, Norfolk, Va.

TOMMY GRANGER and Miss Ella Sheldon were united in marriage, on April 25, at Lutt's Hotel, Baltimore, Md.

THE VARIETY THEATRE in Bay City, Mich., was opened for a season April 17.

THE SEASON at the Adelphi, Buffalo, N. Y., is drawing to a close, and Manager Shelby has no reason to complain of its success. The "Hamtown Students," introducing Harris, Carroll, Chrissie and Kennedy, has been one of the great drawing cards of the season. Pierson goes to New York, as do the Halleys, who have been well received. Frankie Christie will appear April 26 in Toronto. Harris and Carroll jump to Cincinnati, and W. H. Stowe and Hattie Hawthorne go to Syracuse. On April 26 Cool Burgess and his company, the Lantons and the Newboldts, Alice Bateman, and by particular request of many admirers—Mrs. Blanche (Shelby) Castle, appear..... The Canterbury is doing fair business, Fannie Duane and the Garlands being well received, and Dick Mack making a special hit in his North of Ireland dialect. Nat (this) week the Wast Brothers open. Letter of April 23.

SIG. MARTINI, dancing-barrel and bar performer, has been re-engaged for the Heywood Brothers' Combination, and can be addressed care of this office.

THE OPENING COMPANY at the Theatre Comique, Bay City, Mich., includes Lizzie Le Mar, Ida Vincent, Ada St. Clair, Kitty Bennette, Annie Gibbons, Henrietta Blanche, Jennie Gibbons, Nat Blossum, Ned Reed, and George Annibal. Joe Mills is the manager; Ned Reed, stage-manager; and John E. Hassett, leader of the orchestra.

THE QUAKER CITY, Toronto, Ont., opened April 18 with Palmer's "Black Crook" Company. For the 26th Gilday and Gineven, Clara Belmont, Harry Monroe, Grace Harris, Gilmore and Smith, Ben Dodge, Nellie Nelson, Mlle. Helene and Frankie Christie are announced.

E. D. ASHBURN'S GREAT SENSATION is to show in Albany, N. Y., April 28, North Adams, Mass., 29, Westfield 30, Holyoke May 1, Turner's Falls 3, Greenfield 4, Brattleboro, Vt., 5, Bellows' Falls 6, Keene, N. H., 7, Fitchburg, Mass., 8.

WOODWARD'S LONDON COMIQUE COMPANY is announced to open the route about May 15. A number of performers are wanted, including a couple for the brother act, Irish, Dutch and negro comedians, a leader of brass band and a few musicians. See advertisement.

ALEX. ZANFRETTA, Mlle. Josie Zanfretta, Sheetruck Zanfretta, Max Walhalla and Thomas Vance were added to the company at Trimble's Varieties Theatre, Pittsburg, Pa., on April 19. Alex. Zanfretta, Josie Zanfretta, and Thos. Vance appeared in "The French Dancing master," Alex. Zanfretta's performances eliciting considerable laughter. Mr. Walhalla's acrobatic specialties were skillfully executed, and met with approval. Miss Nellie Vincent, Chas. and Carrie Austin, Steve Severe, Joe Lang, Neil Campbell, Geo. W. Herman, Miss Lucy Clifton, and H. W. Williams participated in the entertainment, the show ending with the comic pantomime of "The Magic Flute." Leaving after the 24th: Chas. and Carrie Austin, to Philadelphia; Billy Devere, destination unknown; and Alex. Zanfretta, to Mt. Vernon. The Prosper Family, the Snow Brothers, Minnie Jee, and Johnny Reese open on the 26th.

THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Rochester, N. Y., will be reopened May 3, under the management of J. Laurent, and artists are advertised for.

THE NEW VARIETY THEATRE now in course of erection at Troy, N. Y., will be opened to the public June 7, under the management of Thos. Miller, a former resident of New York. Geo. Coes will be the star person and his ballast, and it discended near Atco, stage-manager of the Varieties, Norfolk, Va.

TOMMY GRANGER and Miss Ella Sheldon were united in marriage, on April 25, at Lutt's Hotel, Baltimore, Md.

THE VARIETY THEATRE in Bay City, Mich., was opened for a season April 17.

THE SEASON at the Adelphi, Buffalo, N. Y., is drawing to a close, and Manager Shelby has no reason to complain of its success. The "Hamtown Students," introducing Harris, Carroll, Chrissie and Kennedy, has been one of the great drawing cards of the season. Pierson goes to New York, as do the Halleys, who have been well received. Frankie Christie will appear April 26 in Toronto. Harris and Carroll jump to Cincinnati, and W. H. Stowe and Hattie Hawthorne go to Syracuse. On April 26 Cool Burgess and his company, the Lantons and the Newboldts, Alice Bateman, and by particular request of many admirers—Mrs. Blanche (Shelby) Castle, appear..... The Canterbury is doing fair business, Fannie Duane and the Garlands being well received, and Dick Mack making a special hit in his North of Ireland dialect. Nat (this) week the Wast Brothers open. Letter of April 23.

SIG. MARTINI, dancing-barrel and bar performer, has been re-engaged for the Heywood Brothers' Combination, and can be addressed care of this office.

THE OPENING COMPANY at the Theatre Comique, Bay City, Mich., includes Lizzie Le Mar, Ida Vincent, Ada St. Clair, Kitty Bennette, Annie Gibbons, Henrietta Blanche, Jennie Gibbons, Nat Blossum, Ned Reed, and George Annibal. Joe Mills is the manager; Ned Reed, stage-manager; and John E. Hassett, leader of the orchestra.

THE QUAKER CITY, Toronto, Ont., opened April 18 with Palmer's "Black Crook" Company. For the 26th Gilday and Gineven, Clara Belmont, Harry Monroe, Grace Harris, Gilmore and Smith, Ben Dodge, Nellie Nelson, Mlle. Helene and Frankie Christie are announced.

E. D. ASHBURN'S GREAT SENSATION is to show in Albany, N. Y., April 28, North Adams, Mass., 29, Westfield 30, Holyoke May 1, Turner's Falls 3, Greenfield 4, Brattleboro, Vt., 5, Bellows' Falls 6, Keene, N. H., 7, Fitchburg, Mass., 8.

WOODWARD'S LONDON COMIQUE COMPANY is announced to open the route about May 15. A number of performers are wanted, including a couple for the brother act, Irish, Dutch and negro comedians, a leader of brass band and a few musicians. See advertisement.

ALEX. ZANFRETTA, Mlle. Josie Zanfretta, Sheetruck Zanfretta, Max Walhalla and Thomas Vance were added to the company at Trimble's Varieties Theatre, Pittsburg, Pa., on April 19. Alex. Zanfretta, Josie Zanfretta, and Thos. Vance appeared in "The French Dancing master," Alex. Zanfretta's performances eliciting considerable laughter. Mr. Walhalla's acrobatic specialties were skillfully executed, and met with approval. Miss Nellie Vincent, Chas. and Carrie Austin, Steve Severe, Joe Lang, Neil Campbell, Geo. W. Herman, Miss Lucy Clifton, and H. W. Williams participated in the entertainment, the show ending with the comic pantomime of "The Magic Flute." Leaving after the 24th: Chas. and Carrie Austin, to Philadelphia; Billy Devere, destination unknown; and Alex. Zanfretta, to Mt. Vernon. The Prosper Family, the Snow Brothers, Minnie Jee, and Johnny Reese open on the 26th.

THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Rochester, N. Y., will be reopened May 3, under the management of J. Laurent, and artists are advertised for.

THE NEW VARIETY THEATRE now in course of erection at Troy, N. Y., will be opened to the public June 7, under the management of Thos. Miller, a former resident of New York. Geo. Coes will be the star person and his ballast, and it' descended near Atco, stage-manager of the Varieties, Norfolk, Va.

The balloon was a small one, capable of holding but one person and his ballast, and it' descended near Atco, New Jersey, when it becoming unmanageable, Donaldson fell (?) out, and the balloon was soon lost to sight. Three telegrams were sent to Philadelphia stating that Donaldson had been killed, having fallen from the balloon at a great height. These telegrams were signed "J. M. Spencer, M. D.," and created quite a sensation for a time, only to be followed by other telegrams announcing that Donaldson was alive and well. Further investigation, it is alleged, intimates that Donaldson himself sent the telegrams signed "J. M. Spencer, M. D.," and that the losing of the balloon was a prearranged advertising gag. Comment is needless.

HOWE'S LONDON CIRCUS and Menagerie is billed at Indianapolis, Ind., for May 5, 6.

HOWES & CUSHING'S CIRCUS is to show at Hartford, Ct., April 30.

C. W. NOYES, who was so seriously ill with typhoid pneumonia recently at Dallas, Texas, that his life was despaired of, writes us under date of April 20 that he has recovered, and that he will remain in that town this Summer. He reports business very dull, crops not very god, and in many portions of the State they have raised the license fees so high that it will not pay a show to visit the towns of rain, bad roads, etc.

NILES, MICH., has for a long time had the want of a suitable show-grounds for circuses, etc., those hitherto used being two miles from the city. Mr. Parker, manager of the Reading House, and the City Marshal, has built a road from the principal street of the city to an island in St. John's River, opposite the most populated part of the town, and has sufficient space to accommodate the largest show that travels.

FOREPAUGH'S AGGREGATION gave a series of performances on Broad street near Columbia avenue, Philadelphia, from April 19 to 23, inclusive; and notwithstanding the cold weather, the attendance daily was very good.

WM. MARCO, contortionist, tumbler and leaper, whose address is care of this office, can be engaged.

AMERICA'S RACING ASSOCIATION opened in St. Louis, Mo., April 19, to low business, owing to stormy weather—business increased large at closing of the week. Sideshows are under Uffner & Norman. Route: Chicago 26, one week.

LAURA, gymnast, and Harry Clark, who have just arrived from South America, advertise that they have been engaged for the Summer season and travel with Howe & Cushing's Circus.

MOLLIE BROWN and Charles Fish, now performing with the Queen show in California, created quite an enthusiasm in San Francisco, as the following notices of their performances, copied from the press of that city, show:

Who has seen the magnificent riding of Mr. Charles Fish and not been astonished at his confidence and daring? The ease with which he takes backward somersets on a flying bareback stud is the wonder of all beholders. Apparently, the greater the difficulty presented by any equestrian feat, the more pleasure he takes in performing it. He looks only in his native element when somersetting high in the air and gracefully alighting on a bareback. Like Cæsar, he is grand on horseback, whatever he may be on foot, and startles and pleases at the same time. If the performance embraces anything in the line of any equestrian feat, the patronage it receives; but there are other intensely interesting features. The charming, sprightly, daring little Mollie Brown, who

Around the magic circle flies,
With beaming face and glowing eyes, is there, the pet of all audiences. It is rightly said of her: "She has no superior—knows no equal." For ease, grace and unaffected delicacy, her riding is peculiarly distinguished, and she may aptly be called the equestrian fairy of the arenic world. Just witness her bareback somerset! There is ease, elegance, style and daring for you.—Daily Evening Post, April 8.

Little Mollie Brown's bareback riding is remarkable for its grace and daring, and the ease with which she makes a flying somerset is probably unprecedented. Charles Fish's equestrian performance is closely criticised on account of the many opinions entertained in regard to the skill of two rival champions. The unprejudiced verdict is favorable to the star rider of this circus, and it will be readily admitted that Fish's riding has points of excellence and daring which it would be very difficult to improve upon. Last evening Miss Brown was presented with a handsome gold medal inscribed with a graceful compliment to the young lady's equestrian prowess. The incident was enthusiastically applauded, proving the great popularity of the graceful and daring little rider.—Daily Evening Post, April 3.

The equestrianisms of Charles Fish are something beyond the ordinary efforts of the arena, while little Mollie Brown is also a most daring and audacious equestrienne, performing the most impossible things on the back of her steed. They may talk of the respective merits of Robinson and Fish, but we think that little Mollie Brown can hold her own with either of them.—Golden Era, April 4.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DIVINE & COOPER, billposters and distributors, Jacksonville, Fla., advertise that they are ready to attend to orders from show agents about visiting their town.

AT THE CENTRAL HOTEL, Baltimore, Md., professionals will be boarded at special rates. For further particulars see card.

SARGENT'S ATHENÆUM, Columbus, O., can be rented from May 1, and Mr. Sargent announces through his advertisement that next season it will be run as a combination theatre, on sharing terms or otherwise.

PROF. E. C. TAYLOR and company, giving magical entertainments with gifts, were at Anamosa, Ia., April 20, 21, 22, Monticello 23, 24, 26.

THEATRICAL SCENERY of every description can be had of L. W. Seavey, whose card can be found in another column.

QUEEN & Co., whose card is in another column, have a number of cheap magical tricks for sale.

THE HETWOOD BROTHERS' COMBINATION is to show at Albany, N. Y., April 27, Troy 28, Cohoes 29, Schenectady 30.

THE ST. CLAIR HOTEL, St. Louis, Mo., is recommended by a number of professionals, whose names are attached to a card in our advertising department.

THE THEATRE on Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa., can be rented or purchased by applying to James Hays, who advertises elsewhere the terms, seating capacity, etc.

IDA DE VERE, premiere danseuse, is open for engagements for the coming season. Her address can be found published elsewhere.

DUFREZ & BENEDICT'S MINSTRELS are to show at Detroit, Mich., April 27, 28, Toledo, O., 29, Cleveland 30, May 1, Erie, Pa., 3, Buffalo, N. Y., 4, 5, Hornellsville 6, Binghamton 7, Wilkesbarre, Pa., 8, Philadelphia 10, one week, Chestnut-street Theatre.

MERRILL'S MINSTRELS is the name of a company about to take the road from Milwaukee. The list is as follows: F. N. Merrill, proprietor and manager; George Lawrence, business manager; W. L. Forsythe, stage-manager; Will Sutherland, treasurer; Geo. Duncan, Gus Edgar, Harry Robbins, Frank Dean, Nick Webber, Joe Dickey, D. J.

TERMS.

Single copy, 10 cents. Per annum, $4.00 in advance, including postage, to any part of the United States. Foreign postage extra.

To clubs of four or more, a deduction of 50 cents is made from each yearly subscription.

ADVERTISING under the head of Amusements, 15 cents per line for each insertion.

Miscellaneous and Sporting advertisements, 20 cents per line for each insertion.

Extracts from other papers, incorporated in news departments, 30 cents per line.

Advertisements to be paid for at the time of insertion, and liberal discount made when paid for three months or longer in advance.

FRANK QUEEN, Editor and Proprietor.
CLIPPER BUILDING, Centre and Leonard streets, N. Y.

AMUSEMENTS.

CLIPPER ALMANAC
FOR 1875.

NEWSDEALERS AND AGENTS
SUPPLIED BY OUR WHOLESALE AGENTS,
THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY,
117 to 121 Nassau street, New York.
SENT BY MAIL ON RECEIPT OF PRICE, 15 CENTS.

P. O. BOX 3,860.

FRANK QUEEN, Publisher,

88 AND 90 CENTRE ST., NEW YORK.

NOTICE TO MANAGERS.
FIRST-CLASS ONLY.
MLLE. JEANFETTE PROSCHER,
premiere danseuse assoluta, just returned from Mexico, has a few open dates. Address C. W. KLEBISCH, 5-1t* 339 E. Houston street, N. Y.

KELLY AND DEMPSEY,
DOUBLE SONG-AND-DANCE, CLOG, and SPECIALTY ARTISTS.
Permanent address,
5-1t* CINCINNATI, OHIO.

MISS LAVARD,
CHAMPION SONG-AND-DANCE ARTIST.
Managers will please address
5-1t* 205 W. Houston street, New York.

NEW MUSIC.
Since Jerry Joined the Gang, Walt till the Moonlight Falls on the Waters, Don't you go and tell my Father, The Belle of the Avenue, and 500 others, ten cents each. Send for catalogue. HARDING, 229 Bowery, opp. Prince st., N. Y. 12t

RONDOUT OPERA-HOUSE.
HARRY HART & JAS. JOHNSON.....Proprietors
WILL OPEN APRIL 26,
FOR THE SEASON.
All letters of communication addressed to
WALTER BRAY, Stage-manager.
5-1t* "ROOM ENOUGH FOR ALL."

SARGENT'S ATHENÆUM,
COLUMBUS, OHIO,
For RENT from May 1, by night or week.
WILL BE RUN NEXT SEASON
as a combination theatre. Parties can either rent or play on shares with the undersigned.
The theatre is situated on the ground floor, in the centre of the city, and is thoroughly stocked with scenery. Properties, set stuff, carpets, furniture, calcium lights, etc.
5-1t H. J. SARGENT, Manager.

A. B. DORMAN, GENERAL ADVERTISER, DISTRIBUTOR AND BILLPOSTER, controls all principal bill boards. Willimantic, Ct., Box 538. Any information in regard to hall, hotel or advertising, etc., given by addressing as above with stamp. 5-2t*

SAM MURDY,
TAMBOKINE SOLOIST
AND COMEDIAN,
now traveling with
MLLE. LE BERO'S FEMALE MINSTRELS.
Direct letters care of CLIPPER office. 5-1t*

ANDY KLEMM,
IN HIS
COMIC HAT-SPINNING ACT, would like to get an engagement with circus or responsible combinations for the season of 1875.
Address 65 Pipe street, Allegheny City, Pa. 5-1t*

TO THE THEATRICAL PROFESSION.

We, the undersigned, having been guests at the St. Clair Hotel, cor. Third and Market streets, St. Louis, V. S. Gerber & Bro. proprietors, cheerfully join in commending the hotel to members of the profession who may have engagements in St. Louis. The house is convenient to all theatres, has first-class table, good rooms, and moderate charges to the profession as are every way reasonable and satisfactory.

A. Bernard, Th. Comique.	Foster & Leigh, Deagle's Th.
Perry Bros., S. Francisco.	B. Quinn, Ol'p'c Th., Kan. C.
G. Dollinger, Looney's Var.	Herd Sisters, Comique.
Palmer & Co., N. Y. Spec. Or.	De Angelis Family, Deagle's.
Chas. A. Wing, Deagle's.	Jackley Family, Deagle's.
L. Parker & wife, D'gle's Th.	Boisses Family, Deagle's.
Chas. Daly, Deagle's Th.	Chas. Diamond, Comique.
G. Lincoln & wife, D'gle's Th.	R. Ferguson, Provid'ce, R. I.
Wayne & Lovely, D'gle's Th.	Hugh McNalry, Louisville.
Miss M. Louise, Steel's Op.-h.	Johnny Clark, Memphis.
Miss R. Marretta,	Miss E. Burnett, Memphis.
Chas. Howard, Deagle's Th.	Keating (Gussie), Cincinnati.
F. Frayne & wife, D'gle's Th.	S. Philleo, De Bar's. 5-1t

THE CANTERBURY VARIETIES, 88 and 90 Commercial street, Buffalo, N. Y. GEO. HUMPHRIES, Sole Proprietor; BOB LANE, Stage-manager; THOS. J. OLDFIELD, Leader of orchestra. First-class Variety Stars wanted, LADIES ESPECIALLY, at all times. Salaries must be low, as they are "sure." Address as above. 1-26t*

MISS KATE FRASER FOX, having entirely recovered from a long and severe illness, begs to state that she is now prepared to receive offers
FOR SEASON OF 1875-6,
FOR LEADING, JUVENILE, COMEDY AND SINGING BUSINESS. Address
5-1t* care of CLIPPER Office.

THE TWO ORPHANS. Manuscripts of this great French play at low terms. Order at once.
5-2t* PICARD ALLOWAY, 637 Pine st., Phila., Pa.

MONS. RIVOLTA, THE BOY SAMPSON, and only boy Iron Jaw artist in America. Address
5-1t* care of CLIPPER Office.

JOLIETTE,
KING OF CLOWNS,
with pantomimes for ring or stage,
AT LIBERTY.
Managers address EUGENE JOLIETTE,
5-1t* Box 58, Watchmoket, R. I.

WANTED FOR WOODWARD'S LONDON COMIQUE CO.,
to take the road on or about the 15th of May, a couple to do Brother Act, Hat-spinning, etc.; a good Irish, and good Negro Comedians. Those to play brass preferred. Salary must be low. No fares paid.
P. S.—A good leader of brass and string and a few musicians wanted. Address
LEW WOODWARD,
5-1t* Hornellsville, N. Y.

A GOOD CLARIONET
AND ALTO PLAYER
desires an engagement. Address
H. C. PFAFF,
5-1t* Syracuse, N. Y.

WHO SPEAKS FIRST?
Variety and Negro Sketches, Burlesques, Farces, Acts, etc., also Sensational Specialty Dramas, written to order by I. DAVEAU, 116 South First st., Brooklyn, E. D., N. Y. 5-2t*

A LADY would like to engage herself to a circus manager to learn to perform with animals. Address H. A. BROOKS; 645 Broadway, N. Y., care of R. Hill. [5-1t*

THIS LADIES OWN THEM ALL.—Charles Konollman's New York Society Songster, containing all the most popular songs of the day, together with the song of the day, "Since Terry first joined the Gang." Sent postpaid by mail on receipt of 10c. to Charles Konollman, No. 410 East Fifteenth street, N. Y. Also Harding's 10c. music. 5-1t*

A FIRST-CLASS MUSICIAN, competent to lead orchestra and band, desires to negotiate with responsible parties. Address
4-2t* CHAS. J. MARSH, East Calais, Vt.

COSMOPOLITAN HALL,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.
No. 32 Royal street.
Vocalists (ladies), young, of good appearance and with good voices, are wanted. Applications requested, stating terms and references. 1-9t* THE PROPRIETOR.

GROVE HOUSE,
176 Bleecker street, near Broadway, N. Y. Fine rooms with excellent board, for families and single; $6 to $12 per week, $1.50 to $2 per day. 1-5t*

PROFESSIONALS
HAVING ENGAGEMENTS IN BALTIMORE will find it to their advantage by stopping at Brown's Hotel, 119 NORTH HIGH STREET, near Gay.
PRICES TO SUIT. 1-9t*

BRANT'S HALL,
HARRISBURG, PA.
For rent for variety business, and traveling companies. One night $30; one week $100; and for the season, lower rates. Address JNO. H. BRANT, Proprietor. 1-7t*

TIMMS' HALL,
MOLINE, ILLINOIS.
Situated on ground floor. Seating capacity, 500; full set of scenery; lighted with gas. Troupes visiting Rock Island and Davenport, should give us a call. Good show-town; situated within three miles of Rock Island. Population 9,000. Terms reasonable. Address
2-12t* W. G. MORRIS, Agent.

SIDESHOW AND CANDY-STAND PRIVILEGE, with Cole's North American Circus and Balloon Show, are offered for sale, cheap. Address SAM COLE, 4-2t* St. Thomas, Ont., Canada.

"HEDGE WAIF."
"RENA."
All business communications regarding
MISS RENA
addressed FRED. G. MAEDER,
Adelphia Theatre, Chicago, till April 25.
Afterwards Station D, N. Y. 4-2t*

TO RESPONSIBLE CIRCUS MANAGERS.
GEO. M. KELLY, Campion Leaper, can be engaged for the coming season of 1875.
Address G. M. KELLY, 337 Vine street,
4-2t Cincinnati, Ohio.

FOR SALE.
W. J. Steele wishes to sell his business of billposter in the town of Pittsfield. Satisfactory reasons given for selling.
4-2t* Address W. J. STEELE, Billposter, Pittsfield, Mass.

WASHINGTON HALL,
SCRANTON, PA.
This hall, once the only public hall in Scranton, has been throughout refitted—we may say rebuilt—and is now the most desirable hall in the city for parties and entertainments. First-class traveling exhibitions will find this the most pleasant as well as the most profitable in Scranton. A look at the old Washington Hall, and the present new one, would be scarcely recognized, so great are the changes which have been made. The hall is centrally located, and is now ready for occupancy. For particulars apply to
JAMES JIPKINS,
4-3t* Scranton, Pa.

THEATRE ROYAL,
MONTREAL, the recognized and largest theatre in the city. Combinations and stars wanting time apply instantly. Kellogg, J. L. Toole, Fifth-avenue Co. already engaged. Address H. Lindley, Manager, Theatre Royal, Montreal. 4-2t*

HENRY ARMITAGE,
BAGGAGE EXPRESSMAN AND GENERAL BILL-POSTER, PITTSTON, PA.
3CTS PER SHEET. Prompt attention given to orders, and charges reasonable. 1-5t*

ABELARDO LOWANDE,
SOMERSET RIDER,
can be engaged. Address No. 48 Foulkrod street, Frankford, Pa. 1-4t

TO AMATEURS.—PLAYS, WIGS, Beards, Colored Fires, Prepared Burnt Cork, etc., etc., for sale. Inclose stamp for price list to 1-13t* JAMES P. CROSSEN, 8 Lafayette place, N. Y.

COL. WOOD'S MUSEUM, PHILADELPHIA. Dates open after May 1, 1875, for FIRST-CLASS COMBINATIONS.
Apply to COL. J. H. WOOD,
Museum, Philadelphia.
Silence a respectful negative. 5-1t

ATTENTION TO MANAGERS,
CLORINDA LOWANDE,
THE BRAZILIAN FEMALE BAREBACK RIDER, can be engaged (with her own horse) for the coming season. Also,
ALEXANDER LOWANDE,
with his celebrated trick mare,
FANNIE.
Managers wishing their services will address 48 Foulkrod street, Frankford, Pa. 1-4t

MUSIC HALL,
CADIZ, OHIO.
On Pan Handle Railroad, midway between Steubenville and Coshocton. The largest and only popular hall in the best show town in the State. Everything new and attractive. Stage commodious, with large dressing-rooms. Scenery complete. Foot and border gaslights. Will share or rent low to first-class troupes. Address C. P. DEWEY. 1-10t*

NEW MUSIC.—"MULCAHY'S GONE AWAY," the latest out, 10c. per copy. Send stamp for catalogue. HARDING, 229 Bowery, opposite Prince street, N. Y. 3-4t

FOR SALE.
Two elegant Museum wagons (nearly new and in good running order), with large collection of first-class wax figures and views.
Address NATH'L JOHNSON, Arlington, Mass., or J. W. HASKINS & Co., Boston. 2-4t*

TO CIRCUS AND VARIETY MANAGERS. THE CALDWELL BROTHERS, HENRY, TONEY, and FRANK, are at liberty to negotiate for the season of '75 and '76. Bin: L'Escheille, double-trapeze and horizontal bar. Address 1013 PENN STREET, PITTSBURG, PA. 2-4t*

C. A. H. HATCH,
ADVERTISING, CONTRACTING, PRESS AND GENERAL BUSINESS AGENT.
P. O. Address care N. Y. CLIPPER or N. Y. Mercury. [2-4t*

M. FARRELL,
City Billposter and Baggage Express. Office at COYNE HOUSE, Scranton, Pa. 2-4t*

W. P. STANLEY IN HIS GREAT SENSATION drama, in a prologue and 3 acts, entitled UNDER A CLOUD, OR THE MURDER IN THE SNOW, is prepared to accept engagements. Managers having open dates will please address C. H. FLEMING, Front-street Theatre, Baltimore, Md. 5-3t*

JIM BOHEE,
CHAMPION BANJOIST OF THE WORLD, and his unrivaled troupe. Every night at CASEY'S, 388 6th ave., between 23d and 24th streets. Admission free. 3-13t*

TO CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE MANAGERS.—Good accommodation for the largest show at CREEDMOOR BOARDING STABLES, 7th, between South 4th and South 5th sts., Brooklyn, E. D.
3-13t* FRED COCHEU, Proprietor.

CIRCUS LIGHTS.
KIDD'S
PATENT LIGHTS are the
CHEAPEST, BEST AND MOST DURABLE.
SOLE AGENTS,
TAYLOR & BASSEMIR,
1-7t* 97 Cliff street, N. Y.

FRESH LAGER BIER
can always be found at HERMAN GROBE'S, No. 74 Prince st., N. Y., the favorite resort of the theatrical profession, middle of block, first street below Metropolitan Hotel. 1-11t*

PITTSBURG OPERA-HOUSE TO RENT,
FROM THE 1ST OF JUNE TO 28TH OF AUGUST, to all first-class combinations, by the night or week, or upon sharing terms.
FIFTH-AVENUE THEATRE, PITTSBURG,
FOR RENT FOR THE SEASON OF 1875-76.
Nightly, weekly, or for the season, or will play parties upon sharing terms. Apply to ELLSLER & GOTTHOLD,
Pittsburg, Pa.
ACADEMY OF MUSIC, CLEVELAND, OHIO.
This theatre will be for RENT, for ALL TRAVELING ATTRACTIONS, from the 1st of June during the entire season of 1875 and 1876. Will play parties on sharing terms if preferred. Address
JOHN ELLSLER,
1-11t Cleveland, O.

UNION HALL, FREDONIA.
N. Y., 40 miles from Buffalo and 3 miles from Dunkirk, on the Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley and Pittsburg R. R. Street cars from Dunkirk. The only hall in town; will seat 1,000. Large stage, with all necessary equipments, gaslight, etc. Population of town, 5,000. Terms reasonable. Address
D. A. CLARK,
1-9t* P. O. Box 288, Fredonia, N. Y.

M. KIENZE,
LEADER OF ORCHESTRA AND BRASS BAND, for theatres or variety business.
CAN BE ENGAGED
by addressing 74 East Fourth street, N. Y. 4-2t*

MISS ELLA WREN CAN BE engaged for next season; also for short engagements, to produce her new plays entitled
IN THE DARK and HECTOR'S WIFE.
These plays are duly copyrighted. Address
ACADEMY OF MUSIC,
4-2t* New Orleans, La.

A FIRST-CLASS VIOLIN player wants an engagement as leader or first violin. Plays piano also. Address C. KREBS, Scranton, Pa. 4-2t*

TO GYMNASTS.
C. H. HAWKINS, No. 118 E. 13th st., N. Y., maker of gymnastic apparatus, horizontal bars with steel centre, leaping bars of lancewood, globes and dancing barrels, revolving pedestal for barrel, etc.
Send stamp for circular. 4-13t*

NEW OPERA-HOUSE, PELLA, IOWA Completed April 15, 1875. Everything new. Stage commodious, with full set of scenery. To rent by the night, or on sharing terms to first-class troupes. Address
4-4t* PELLA OPERA-HOUSE CO., Pella, Iowa.

MOZART HALL, HOPKINSVILLE, KY., situated on St. Louis and Nashville RaRroad, connections with Louisville, Memphis and Paducah. HALL FURNITURE AND SCENERY NEW AND COMPLETE. To rent on reasonable terms, or on percentage of receipts. Population 6,000. Address
1-8t* N. L. BAKER, Agent.

CHICAGO MUSEUM,
CHICAGO, ILL.
R. J. WATERS,
Manager.
F. L. KELLER,
Stage-manager.
AGENTS OF CURIOSITIES,
Address
CAPT. E. L. DICKEY,
5-1t Supt. Museum.

MENAGERIE TO RENT.
A complete menagerie of animals, consisting of the best performing den of lions in America; lioness and five whelps two weeks old; leopards, hyenas, panthers, sacred cattle, buffalo, camels, etc., performing elephants, and other animals, too numerous to mention, making 14 cages. All nearly new, which will be rented in one or two lots. For sale—2 pair lions, 2 deer, and 3 elks. Parties wishing to rent or buy will do well to call on or address J. M. FRENCH, Detroit, Mich. Reference: H. L. STEBBINS, 58 Ann st., N. Y. 5-1t

MAGICAL MANUFACTORY.
SEND STAMP FOR CATALOGUE.
SEND 15cts. FOR NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE.
1-14t* THOS. W. YOST, 120 North Ninth st., Phila., Pa.

FOR RENT,
WOOD'S THEATRE, CINCINNATI, O.
MACAULEY'S THEATRE, LOUISVILLE, KY.
The above popular houses will be for rent by the night or week
DURING THE SUMMER SEASON.
VARIETY COMPANIES.
MINSTREL and other TROUPES can apply to JOHN HAVLIN, Wood's Theatre, and WM. A. WARNER, Macauley's Theatre. 1-16t*

OPERA-HOUSE, KOKOMO, INDIANA. Completed one year ago. One of the best and most convenient halls in the West. Will seat 900. Large and commodious stage, with all modern improvements; full set of scenery; brilliantly lighted with gas, and furnished with every convenience necessary to make it a first-class theatre. NO LICENSE, and RENT REASONABLE.
For dates, etc., address H. H. WINSLOW,
1-7t* Kokomo, Ind.

WANTED AT ALL TIMES,
FIRST-CLASS
SPECIALTY ARTISTS.
SKETCHES,
Also, small combinations of six or erght performers, in PANTOMIMES,
SONGS AND DUETS.
Must be sober people. Direct
FRED. WALDMAN, Metropolitan Hall,
1-10t* 162 and 164 Market street, Newark, N. J

UNCLAIMED BAGGAGE.
ALL BAGGAGE REMAINING UNCLAIMED AT ST. CHARLES HOTEL, N. Y.
at the end of 60 days from April 10
WILL BE SOLD AT PUBLIC SALE.
3-3t* GEO. S. & LEWIS LELAND.

NEWBURG OPERA-HOUSE.
60 miles from New York. Cuts up the Hudson. The only hall in the city. Will seat 1,200. Population 18,000. To rent by the night or on sharing terms.
Apply to WILLIAM D. DICKEY, Proprietor,
1-13t* Box 111, Newburg, N. Y.

TO BE LET.
THE NEW MASONIC TEMPLE,
CORNER OF 23D STREET AND SIXTH AVENUE,
NEW YORK.
(Opposite Booth's Theatre).
This elegant and commodious hall can be rented for concerts and lectures. Apply to JAMES M. AYMAR, M. D.,
1-11t* Grand Secretary, Masonic Temple.

D. H. ELLIOTT,
GENERAL, RAILWAY AND BUSINESS AGENT, IS AT LIBERTY AT PRESENT.
Address care
NATIONAL PRINTING CO., CHICAGO.
NO CANCAN NEED APPLY. 3-4t

FOR SALE.—THE MOST POPULAR HOUSE in the United States with professionals. The stock, fixtures and furniture, complete, with four years' lease of a hotel, adjoining the Richmond Theatre. Bar does a business of from $15,000 to $20,000 a year, as books will show. Terms easy. Apply to CHAS. MANLY, 705 Broad street, Richmond, Va. 2-4t*

GILMORE'S VARIETIES.
Tenth and Callowhill streets, Philadelphia.
W. J. GILMORE.....Proprietor and Manager.
WM. R. CAVANAGH.....Stage-manager.
THE GREATEST SUCCESS ON RECORD.
A COMPLETE CHANGE IN EVERY FEATURE.
Respectably managed, and in consequence a grand success.
Houses crowded.
THE FASHIONABLE MATINEES A PERFECT OVATION.
Specialty artists, burlesque and dramatic stars treated with on liberal terms. Wanted, a few ladies of attractive appearance for dramatic stock and ballet. Address the Proprietor.
LADIES' MATINEES EVERY TUESDAY AND THURSDAY, AT 2 O'CLOCK. 1-4f

OLYMPIC MUSIC HALL,
Davenport, Iowa, newly painted and decorated, with new and complete scenery and over dressing-rooms. Companies visiting the West will please address
FRANK I. JERVIS, Business Manager,
1-5t* Davenport, Iowa.

MOBILE VARIETIES.
Corner of Royal and Conti streets, MOBILE, ALABAMA.
G. A. HIPPLER.....Lessee and Proprietor
TOM CLANNON.....Director of Amusements
Wanted at all times—especially artists, both ladies and gentlemen. None but those that know their business need apply. Salaries sure. Address as above.
1-7t* TOM CLANNON, Stage-manager.

SET OF TRAVELING OR AMATEUR Scenery for sale. Inclose stamp for price and description to A. L. GAMBLE, 339 Union st., Brooklyn, L. I. 4-13t*

THE NEWEST AND BEST MUSIC.
"Happy Little Flip-flaps," Brinkworth, 35c.; "Mother, is the Old Home Lonely?" Blake, 40c.; "While the Silver Tints the Gold," Blake, 40c.; Flow'ret, I Kiss Thee," from "The Talisman," by Balfe, 40c.; "Wait Till the Moonlight Falls"—serio comic—by Bagnall, 35c.; "Patrick's Day Parade," for Orchestra or Brass Band, $1; "Skidmore Guard," for Brass Band, $1. Copies mailed.
WM. A. POND & CO., 547 Broadway,
5-1t* Branch, 39 Union square, N. Y.

TO ADVERTISERS AND SHOW AGENTS.
DIVINE & COOPER, Billposters and Distributors, of Jacksonville, Fla., having made extensive increase in their facilities to do all kinds of advertising, are now ready for all orders, and solicit a share of your patronage. Address
5-1t* DIVINE & COOPER, Jacksonville, Fla.

J. BRUCE,
SHOW PAINTER,
is now doing first-class paintings at shortest notice at 222 RUTLEDGE STREET, WILLIAMSBURG, N. Y., near Union Ball Ground.
N. B.—His new shop, now building expressly for show painting, will soon be completed, due notice of which will be given in THE CLIPPER. 5-1t*

A DECIDED HIT!!!
The New and Original Sensational Drama, in four acts, WEALTH AND CRIME;
OR, ESCAPED THE GALLOWS,
introducing THE AMERICAN FACIAL COMEDIAN, AUTHOR, MIMIC, AND VOCALIST,
A. H. SHELDON
Wood's Museum, N. Y., March 27, Front-street Theatre, Baltimore, May 3, one week, Wood's Museum, N. Y., May 24, one week, making the THIRD engagement in New York this season. For vacant dates address
A. H. SHELDON,
5-3t* No. 66 East 128th street, New York.

HENRY STONE & CO. 102 JOHN ST. N.Y.
MAGICAL APPARATUS FOR THE PROFESSION & AMATEURS
Send 15 cents for descriptive catalogue. 5-2t*

SEAVEY'S SCENIC STUDIO
ESTABLISHED 1865.
Theatrical scenery of every description. Halls and theatres refitted in latest style. Every stage requisite. Several second-hand cloths on linen, 17x20, low. Address LAFAYETTE W. SEAVEY, 8 LAFAYETTE PLACE, N. Y. CITY. 3-13t*

MAGIC TRICKS
Trick Cards, 25c. Magic Pocketbook, 25c. Second-sight Mystery, 25c. Knot and Ring Trick, 15c. The New Hindoo Block Trick, 25c. The most marvelous trick ever invented. Send stamp for Catalogue.
1-12t* QUEEN & CO., Stoneham, Mass.

Shannon, Miller & Crane,
IMPORTERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF THEATRICAL GOODS,
No. 46 Maiden Lane, New York.

BEST ENGLISH COTTON TIGHTS & SHIRTS...per set.	$3 75
GOOD ENGLISH COTTON TIGHTS & SHIRTS, per set.	2 75
ROWING SHIRTS.....each, $2 00 to	4 25
ROWING TIGHTS.....$3 50 upwards.
WORSTED KNEE TIGHTS.....per pair,	3 50
WORSTED TIGHTS, SHIRTS, LEOTARDS AND BODY DRESSES.....each,	8 50
BEST SILK TIGHTS, COTTON TOPS.....per pair,	12 50
WORSTED TRUNKS.....per pair,	1 75
RED CLOGS.....per pair from $3 50 to	4 50
CLOWN SUITS.....from $8 00 upwards.
STRIPED STOCKINGS.....per pair,	1 75
SPANGLES.....per lb.	2 25
SKULL CAPS.....75c. each, upwards.
SUPPORTERS.....each,	1 00
MAKE UP BOXES.....each,	1 00
PREPARED BURNT CORK & CLOWN WHITE, in boxes of ¼, ½, ½ & 1 lb. ..per lb.	2 00
NEGRO WIGS.....each, $1 50, $2 50 &	3 50
CHARACTER WIGS.....from $4 00 upwards.
MUSTACHES.....each, 25 to	50
WHISKERS AND BEARDS.....per set, $1 25 to	3 50
BOXING GLOVES, Best of 3 pairs, from $ 00 upwards.
HORSE PLUMES, Plain and Fancy Colors, 18 in. per doz.	32 00
CALF STOCKING PADS.....per pair,	4 00
CALF AND THIGH PADS.....per pair,	10 50
LONG BURLESQUE SONG & DANCE SHOES, 12, 13 and 18 inches.....per pair,	6 50
WHITE CANVAS SLIPPERS.....per pair,	1 25
" " GAITERS.....per pair,	2 50

THEATRICAL, MILITARY AND REGALIA GOODS
IN EVERY VARIETY.

Flags, Banners; Rowing Suits; Bear, Monkey, Frog, and other Suits; Theatrical Jewelry; Papier Mache Heads and Wax Figures to order; Combat Swords; Linen Thread for Spangling; Gilt, Plated, and Tinsel Fringes; Laces, Gimps, Braids, Cords, Stars, Tassels, Brocades, Embroideries, &c., every variety; Cotton and Satin Dominoes and Wire Masks; Foil Paper and Copper Foil; Armor, Helmets, &c.; Indian Moccasins, Sandals, &c.; Satin Opera Slippers and Theatrical Boots; Gold and Silver Leather Real Skeletons and Imitation of Papier Mache; Fencing Materials; Worsted and Silk Fringes, Tassels, &c.; Banner Silk and Bunting; Spears, Eagles, &c.; Every Pattern of Hat to order.

Goods Sent C. O. D. Send for Circular.

PLAYS! PLAYS!!
PARLOR TABLEAUX, PANTOMIMES, OPERAS, CHARADES AND HOME AMUSEMENTS GENERALLY.
PLAYS JUST PUBLISHED,
Price 15 cents each.
ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA MARRIED AND SETTLED.
MY FRIEND IN THE STRAPS.
THE SCHOOL FOR SCHEMING.
AN IRISH ENGAGEMENT.
OUR MARY ANNE.
THE MISERIES OF HUMAN LIFE
HOW TO SETTLE ACCOUNTS WITH YOUR LAUNDRESS
A WOMAN WILL BE A WOMAN.
The most complete catalogue of plays and dramatic works ever published, containing over
SIX HUNDRED PLAYS
not found in any other list, together with illustrated price list of wigs, beards, moustaches, colored fires, rouges, burnt cork, whiting, etc., etc., will be sent free on application.
HAPPY HOURS COMPANY, Publishers,
3-13t,eow 1 Chambers St., New York.

CENTRAL HOTEL,
HOLLIDAY STREET,
Opposite New City Hall, adjoining Holliday-street Theatre,
BALTIMORE, MD.
Everything new and first-class. Convenient to all the theatres. Special rates to the theatrical profession. [5-13t

WANTED.
An engagement with some first-class Circus and Menagerie, or the two combined, as GENERAL AGENT, PRESS AGENT, TREASURER, TICKET-SELLER or CONTRACTOR
HAVE HAD EXPERIENCE.
Beferences if desired. Address H. D. VOUGHT,
5-3t City Editor "Evening Post," Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE OR RENT.
THE LEASE OF THE THEATRE
ON FOURTH AVENUE, PITTSBURG,
SEATING CAPACITY ABOUT 1,500.
TERMS OF SALE, $3,000. $1,000 DOWN, balance in easy payment. Terms of Rent, $2,000 per year, with good security. Apply to JAMES HAY, 35 Diamond street, Allegheny City. 5-1t

V. S. GERBER. GEO. GERBER.
ST. CLAIR HOTEL.
V. S. GERBER & BRO., Props.
S. W. COR. THIRD AND MARKET STS.,
St. Louis, Mo.
$2 Per Day.
HEADQUARTERS THEATRICAL PEOPLE. [1-25t

GIVE THE OLD MAN A CHANCE.
Mr. E. S. WASHBURN, G. D. S.,
sole proprietor of that "Copyright," and grand head-centre of "MY LARGE PARTY," is evidently alarmed at the immense patronage bestowed upon LEON WASHBURN'S Great Moral Show, the most gigantic organization of modern times, with its grand army of
36 SPECIALTY ARTISTS. 36
and appeals to the people of Maine to save their money for him.
Reliable statistics show that on April 1, 1875, the sum of $24,842,761.08 cash was in circulation in the State of Maine; and, as my entire receipts in the State (ten towns) was only $4,780.09, a little calculation will satisfy his Royal Highness that there will remain for him the sum of $24,837,980.99; and I would most earnestly appeal to Mercury and CLIPPER correspondents, billposters, hall proprietors, and citizens generally to "hand it over" at once. Wait for the BIG SHOW and do not be deceived. The trade-mark, LEON WASHBURN'S GREAT MORAL SHOW, THE GREAT SPECIALTY TROUPE, BLOWN IN EVERY BOTTLE. L. W. WASHBURN,
Sole Manager and Proprietor.
W. J. CHAPELLE, Genl. Agent; F. C. WHITE, Press Agent; "YANKEE" HOLDEN, Adv. Agent. 5-1t

TO CIRCUS MANAGERS.
FOR RENT FOR THE TENTING SEASON.
THE BEST LOT IN THE CITIES OF PITTSBURG AND ALLEGHENY.
Located on Federal street, Allegheny, Pa., at end of the Suspension Bridge and in the business centre of the city, with frontage on Federal street for large billboard, making an unequaled stand for bills. The only lot that can be had anywhere near the business portion of the city.
For terms, etc., address WM. BURDETT, No. 4 Federal street, Allegheny, Pa. 5-2t*

COMMODORE NUTT,
P. T. BARNUM
FAMOUS
$30,000 NUTT,
late of the Gen. Tom Thumb Troupe, is open for an engagement after May 20. Address letters
5-3t* COMMODORE NUTT, Manchester, N. H.

MAGIC, ILLUSION, MYSTERY.
PROGRAMME.—PART FIRST.
1. PROTEUS' MYSTIC CARDS.
2. MERLIN'S MAGIC POCKET.
3. SULTANA'S HANDKERCHIEF.
4. LA PRODUCTION MARVELOUS.
5. THE FLORAL OMELET.
PART SECOND.
1. THE BIG BONANZA.
2. THE PHILOSOPHIAN CANDLE.
3. LA CHAPEAU DIABOLIQUE.
4. FLORA'S OFFERING.
5. LA CHAPEAU MISERABLE.
To conclude with the original and only
DOVETAILED-BOX MYSTERY, as invented and exhibited only by
MORTIMER THE AMERICAN ILLUSIONIST.
Now open for engagement by responsible managers—for open dates or a six months' tour—with the largest, most elegant and attractive repertoire ever presented to an American audience. Address
5-1t* Care of CLIPPER Office.

THEATRE COMIQUE,
Eleventh st., below Pennsylvania av., Washington, D. C.
OPEN THE YEAR ROUND.
JOHN F. ROGERS.....Proprietor and Manager
First-class variety talent treated with at all times.
Dramatic stars treated with on certainty or sharing terms.
All communications received or sent by the above management, if not answered within seven (7) days, the same shall be considered a negative answer by all parties interested. 1-8t*

BANJO!
BOGAN'S SILVER RIM AND ROSEWOOD BANJOS, OF superior tone and finish. Tambourines, Bones, and all kinds of musical instruments and strings sent C. O. D. Bogan's Simplified Banjo Manual, the only method of the kind ever published, containing 50 popular airs, with directions for tuning, fingering and fretting the Banjo. This method is not by note, but so simple as to enable the pupil to play at sight. Price, bound in cloth, $2. Banjo, song-and-dance, jig, clog and Irish jig-dancing taught for the stage. Bogan's Guide to the Stage, or Dancing Without a Master, comprising all the above dances, complete, with directions for practice, price $1. Send stamp for price-list and sample of banjo-method. JOHN J. BOGAN,
5-1t* 100 E. Houston street, New York

BIRCH HOUSE,
134 Water st., near the Railroad Depot, in the centre of business, CLEVELAND, O. L. D. & H. S. HUNT, Props. This house having recently been repainted, recarpeted and newly-furnished throughout, is now prepared to furnish traveling companies with better accommodations than ever before. It has been the best and only theatrical house in Cleveland during the past four years, and continues the same. 4-3t

TO CIRCUS AND SIDESHOW MANAGERS.
JAMES MARTIN & SON,
Manufacturers of Circus and Show Canvases, Bunting, Flags, etc. 114 Commercial street, Boston.
PRICE LIST SENT FREE. 4-13t

TO THEATRICAL COMPANIES.
NEW OPERA-HOUSE
GREENSBURG, PA.
31 miles East of Pittsburg, on the P., R. R. and junction of South-west branch. One of the best show towns in the State. Parquet, Gallery, Private Boxes, large and convenient Dressing-rooms, Stage, Scenery, etc., all modern, extensive and complete; brilliantly lighted with gas. The only hall in town, and will seat from 1,000 to 1,200.
Will be completed about July 1, 1875.
PROPOSALS BY FIRST-CLASS COMPANIES FOR THE OPENING SOLICITED.
Address
W. S. NALY, Proprietor,
4-4t Greensburg, Westmoreland Co., Pa.

AVENUE THEATRE.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
GEORGE B. RADCLIFFE.....Stage-manager
Lady vocalists, dancers, and variety performers of every description wanted at all times. Address
GEORGE W. RADER, Proprietor and Manager.
P. S.—Wanted immediately ten good ballet dancers. 5-4t*

MISS LILLIE ELDRIDGE
AS LOUISE, THE BLIND GIRL, IN THE TWO ORPHANS,
NEW ENGLAND CIRCUIT. 5-1t*

A. STEINAU & CO.,
No. 80 Fourth Street,
CINCINNATI, O.

IMPORTERS OF FRENCH, ENGLISH, AND GERMAN
CHEAP JEWELRY
AND WATCHES.
HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL KINDS OF CHEAP GIFT JEWELRY FOR SHOW BUSINESS
AND PEDDLARS' SUPPLIES.
Send for new Illustrated Price List. Mailed free. Goods sent C. O. D. to all parts of the world.
A. STEINAU & CO.,
P. O. Box 616. No. 80 FOURTH STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

NEW PARK THEATRE,
BROOKLYN,
FOR RENT, SUMMER MONTHS,
from the 1st July to 15th Aug.,
to FIRST-CLASS COMBINATIONS, MINSTRELS, BURLESQUE or DRAMATIC COMPANIES ONLY.
4-4t Address COL. WM. E. SINN.

New and Beautiful Songs
BY
S. GEO. SOULES.
KISS ME, MOTHER, ERE WE PART. Song and chorus for part first.
MINNIE RAY. Song and chorus for part first.
KATHLEEN O'NEIL. Waltz song. Easy and brilliant. For soprano.
SWEET PRUELLA KATE. Serio-comic. Nice for light parlor song.
FAIRY MAY. Song-and-chorus or ballad,
40c. each. Sent postpaid on receipt of price by the publishers, WHITE, SMITH & CO.,
4-2t* 298 and 300 Washington st., Boston, Mass.

WORCESTER THEATRE TO LET,
by the night, week, month or year. It